Plan for Movement Of 'Several' Offices To Be Finished Soon, GSA Head Reveals

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

Several Federal agencies soon will move permanently from the Washington area to other cities, Jess Larson, General Services Administrator, told Congress yesterday.

The moves, he said, will affect between 5000 and 15,000 Government workers. "It probably will be around 10,000 persons," he added.

Larson explained that the permanent decentralization plan would be completed by the end of this month, at which time the agencies earmarked for removal will be made public.

This program is apart from the Administration's 190-million-dollar plan for dispersing key Government agencies to eight sites in Maryland and Virginia within a 20-mile radius of the Capital.

The dispersal program, which President Truman asked Congress to approve "without delay" three days ago, was the subject of an all-day hearing before the House Public Works Committee.

Later Chairman Whittington (D., Miss.) said no committee action would be taken for several days. "The committee wants to think this one over very carefully," he told reporters.

Several committee members, by their questioning and comments, indicated they were far from enthusiastic about giving an immediate green light to the program.

Larson emphatically told the Congressmen that the disperal program had been under study by the National Security Resources Board and other agencies since October, 1948, and that he is convinced "dispersal is the only practical means" of insuring continuous operation of essential Government services through an enemy attack.

Earlier Roger W. Jones, assistant director of the Bureau of the Budget, said "it is conceivable we may have to evacuate this city entirely" if an atom bomb attack is ever made here.

Terming such an eventuality as "unlikely" but possible, Jones insisted that the dispersal plan was an adequate program for keeping the Government functioning in the Washington area.

Larson and Jones said the administration is thinking in terms of Government personnel here swelling again to the World War II level of 270,000. In that event, they said personnel would be housed as follows:

Working on three shifts, the 83 permanent Federal buildings here could accomodate 160,000 workers. Some 15,000 employes would work in leased buildings; and

Note Signed H. S. T. Threatens Critic of Miss Truman's Singing

MISS TRUMAN

MR. HUME

The Washington Daily News carried the following story Friday afternoon:

H. for Hello
S. for Sweet
T. for Thing

Margaret Truman sang here the other day.

Paul Hume, The Washington Post's music critic panned her unmercifully.

He is now showing around a letter, which goes like this: "I have just read your lousy review buried in the back pages. You sound like a frustrated old man who never made a success, an eight-ulcer man on a four-ulcer job, and all four ulcers working.

"I never met you, but if I do you'll need a new nose and plenty of beefsteak and perhaps a supporter below. Westbrook Pegler, a guttersnipe, is a gentleman compared to you. You can take that as more of an insult than as a reflection on your ancestry."

The letter was initialed "H. S. T." and Mr. Hume, who once wanted a career as a singer himself, is wondering whether the initials stand for whom he thinks they might stand for.

Mr. Hume issued the following statement:

"The day after my review of Margaret Truman's concert I received a note on White House stationery signed "H. S. T." It was similar to but not identical with the quotation above. The letter was seen by my office associates and by my editors, but I did not desire to publish it. I can only say that a man suffering the loss of a close friend and carrying the terrible burden of the present world crisis ought to be indulged in an occasional outburst of temper."

Later yesterday, White House officials confirmed that Mr. Truman had written to Mr. Hume, and one source said the published version sounded like what Mr. Truman wrote.

Mr. Pegler, mentioned in the quotation, is a columnist. In a statement issued in New York last night, Mr. Pegler said:

"It is a great tragedy that in this awful hour the people of the

Six Day Care Centers Face Early Closing

Dec. 22 Date Fixed By Welfare Board As Funds Run Out

The city's Child Day Care Centers, started in World II to increase the manpower supply, will close December 22. The Board of Public Welfare so announced yesterday at a meeting in the Municipal Center.

Congress this year appropriated $50,000 to terminate the six centers, with 49 staff members, by December 31. The board decided to close them while employes were still being paid. The average daily attendance has been 259 children of employed mothers.

The centers began in 1943 through efforts of a citizens' committee operating under the District Commissioners with Lanham Act funds. The Board of Education took over the program later and ran 22 centers for 800 children.

But in 1946, the Lanham Act funds were depleted, and a citizens group formed a corporation to operate 14 centers. The Community Chest aded to fees paid by parents. Later Congress appropriated $250,000 for 12 centers and transferred the project to the Welfare Department.

In 1947 and 1948, Congress set aside $150,000 for six centers. Last year this was reduced to $100,000. When Congress decided to end the program at the close of 1950, attempts were made to organize carry-over facilities, but failed.

The Welfare Board also announced it had reduced the delay between applications for public assistance and interviews from five weeks to one day. It also disclosed a saving of $10,000 a year through reduction of three drivers made possible by police taking over the function of bringing children to the Receiving Home.

Truman Appoints 'Joe' Short As White House Secretary

President Truman, who has had trouble finding qualified men for jobs, yesterday reached into the White House press room and tapped Joseph H. Short, jr., for a big one.

Short, 46-year-old reporter on the Washington staff of the Baltimore Sun, is to be the new White House Press Secretary, succeeding the late Charles G. Ross. The job pays $18,000 a year.

Short is from the deep South, specifically, Vicksburg, Miss. This however, has no political significance as related to his appointment. Mr. Truman picked "Joe" because he knew him to be a first-class newsman and because he liked him.

There was another thing. Short has been covering the White House from the time that Mr. Truman took over the Presidency in 1945. Before that he traversed the country with Mr. Truman when the Missourian campaigned for the Vice Presidency in 1944.

A number of Washington correspondents have served as White House press officers, including Stephen T. Early, who was called back temporarily after Ross' death. Short, however, is the first reporter actually assigned to the White House to be named to the post.

He was born in Vicksburg, February 11, 1904, son of Joseph Hudson and Irene (Jones) Short. One of his grandfathers, Joseph W. Short, was a Yankee, a native of Indiana who went to Vicksburg during the Civil War siege of that Mississippi River town. He was a civilian clerk on the staff of Gen. U. S. Grant. Another grandfather, James E. Jones, was a hard-fighting soldier of the Confedera-

Long Tension Period Seen By Marshall

Calm Determination, Not Violent Emotions Needed, NAM Told; Must Support U. N.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8 (U.P.). Defense Secretary Gen. George C. Marshall said tonight that this Nation's military situation is graver than in the early days of World War II.

"We must not be deterred by temporary military reverses," General Marshall said. "It must be made unmistakably clear to all the world that we do not waver in our purpose."

Marshall warned that the "very best we can hope for" is an unprecedented era of "prolonged tension."

"We are not in a world war," he told the National Association of Manufacturers fifty-fifth annual Congress of American Industry, "but we are in a period of the greatest tension and facing the possibility of such a catastrophe, and we are engaged in the heaviest of fighting in the restricted area of Korea."

Fear of World War

"The country is facing an unprecedented era in the American life and we have to do all in our power to prevent the state of affairs of today, bad as it is, from deteriorating into something dreadful to contemplate—another world war."

General Marshall said the Chinese Communist intervention in Korea placed "a very heavy burden on the United Nations."

"It has deliberately challenged the U. N.," he said. "We must recoup this situation and put the U. N. back on the forward path toward world peace. It is very important to remember that we went into Korea to sustain the United Nations in its great purpose of enforcing peace. Our purpose, therefore, was one of the highest moral principle. We must not be deterred by temporary military reverses."

The Defense Secretary recalled that eight years ago, when he was Chief of Staff of the United States Army, he also spoke to the annual Congress.

"Today is very reminiscent of eight years ago," the general said" . . . today the military situation is grave, more grave, I very much fear, than it was even in those more difficult days of eight years ago. We had then won our first strategic success by the landing in North Africa, but there were years of bitter fighting ahead."

General Marshall said that the American tendency, then and now, was to rush from pessimism to jubilant optimism, or the reverse, over the results of a single campaign or even a single battle.

"Tonight I would caution you,"

Still Serious

Rout in Korea Seen Avoided In New View

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Two things now are clear about the situation in Korea:

The military disaster threatened last weekend—destruction or decimation of our army—has been avoided.

Even if forced to withdraw from the embattled peninsula, we should be able to evacuate our troops and much of their equipment.

This brighter estimate of the war situation can be made on the basis of the latest information here and the new stabilization of the main front in western Korea.

Plight Still Serious

But in expressing this cautious optimism, military men still view the situation as serious and believe that we can and may well be driven out by the overwhelming manpower of the Chinese army. The more favorable picture must be attuned to the dark gloom of a week ago, when there was a real prospect that our retreat might turn into a complete rout.

The previously confused picture of what happened has been clarified greatly by the return of Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army Chief of Staff, who made a hurried trip to Korea and Japan for a first-hand appraisal. He told reporters here yesterday:

"Our forces will be able to take care of themselves without further serious losses."

Other Factors Noted

Two other factors contribute to the relative optimism now felt:

1. Reports from General MacArthur that Chinese casualties have been running more than 10 times those of United Nations forces.

2. The fact that the Truman-Attlee conferences concluded without making any provision for further action if U. N. troops are driven out of Korea.

Pentagon chiefs view the heavy enemy casualties as an important factor—despite China's vast manpower reserves—for these reasons:

Allies Have Bargaining Power

Even though the million-man Chinese Red Army in Korea and in Manchuria outnumbers the U. N. forces better than four to one and probably could drive us off the peninsula by sheer weight of numbers, it well could be badly crippled in the process. If U. N. superior air, sea and land fire power can continue to exact such disproportionate losses for territory gained, General Mao's army might be weakened more than he is willing to accept.

There are reports that additional Chinese armies are moving north toward Manchuria, which would weaken the forces available for the Indo-China campaign, to combat Nationalist guerrillas or withstand a possible attack by Chiang Kai-shek's Formosan armies.

While the latter may not be a real immediate threat, these are

No Appeasing Of Reds, Says Communique

'Ike's' Selection To Direct Forces In Europe Near, Leaders Indicate

(Text of statement on Page 13)

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman and Prime Minister Attlee agreed yesterday that only great strength could prevent World War III. They promised, accordingly, that the United States and Great Britain would move rapidly and with "all vigor" to build up their armed forces.

The two leaders, after surveying the globe in a five-day conference, issued a 2000-word communique summing up their views and conclusions.

Apropos Korea, where Chinese Communists are driving back United Nations forces, they said there could be "no thought of appeasement or of rewarding aggression." They are ready to seek an end to hostilities "by means of negotiations," but the aim must be "a free and independent Korea."

Other highlights of the communique were:

Mr. Truman and Mr. Attlee desire that an appointment "shall be made soon" of a supreme commander for the Atlantic Treaty forces that will defend Western Europe. This indicated that the naming of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower is imminent.

The President hopes that world conditions will never be such as to call for the use of the atomic bomb.

The United States (it was indicated but not stated) stands firm on its Formosa policy. It will continue to "neutralize" the island stronghold of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and his Nationalists by having the Seventh Fleet patrol the Formosa Straits.

The United States and Britain continue to differ on two questions about Red China. Britain has recognized the Central Peoples government (Communist), and thinks its representatives should be seated in the United Nations. The United States is opposed to seating them. The two nations are determined that this difference in viewpoint will not interfere with their "united effort in support of . . . common objectives."

The communique, in dealing

U. S. Army Units Due to Arrive In England Soon

LONDON, Dec. 8 (U.P.).—The British Defense Ministry announced today the first American ground troops to come to Britain since the end of World War II will arrive "in the near future."

An announcement said the force will be composed of three United States Army antiaircraft artillery battalions and an artillery group headquarters, about 2400 men.

The decision to dispatch Army forces to Britain to support American Air Force units already here was regarded as proof of Anglo-American determination to speed formation of the Atlantic Pact army, which Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower is expected to command.

Formosa Link

Cairo Pledge May Be Used Against Reds

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

President Truman and Prime Minister Attlee have dusted off the old Cairo Declaration of 1943 and have discovered that it may become a useful weapon in their diplomatic armory.

Their communique yesterday reminded the Chinese Communists that the Cairo Declaration not only promised the restoration of Formosa to China, but also pledged the creation "in due course" of a free Korea.

In giving this reminder, the United States President and British Prime Minister may well have laid the groundwork for a future Formosa-Korea "deal," although the United States has no intention of negotiating about Formosa now.

Ever since the Communists seized power in China, they have stressed the Cairo Declaration as a basis for their claim to Formosa. Their Nationalist opponents have done the same, and when President Truman ordered the fleet to Formosa last June, they protested almost as bitterly as did the Communists.

But the Red Peiping authorities have never mentioned the Korea pledge also signed at Cairo, nor

Wage-Price Freeze Called Unwarranted

DiSalle Spikes Rumors; Ford, GM Reject Price Protest

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

On a day reeking with rumors of a general wage-price freeze within 48 hours, the Nation's price administrator declared yesterday that even if he wanted to, he could not impose general ceilings for at least 60 to 90 days.

The official, Michael V. DiSalle, told reporters his office was preparing orders for "all contingencies"—general price ceilings or selective ones—but he saw no reason to invoke them at this time and, in fact, hoped their ultimate imposition would be unnecessary.

DiSalle intimated that it would be possible to apply ceilings to certain individual commodities or industries much sooner than two or three months. Alan Valentine, director of the Economic Stabilization Agency, pointedly warned that exactly this might be done to the auto industry if it does not agree voluntarily to suspend car price increases announced earlier this week.

Ford, GM Explain Stand

But within a matter of hours after Valentine's warning—which he coupled with repeated allusions to his legal authority for ordering price roll-backs—both Ford and General Motors told the Government they would not comply with the request. On Thursday, Valentine had asked them to suspend their announced increases, pending a meeting he called here for next Wednesday.

General Motors proceeded to raise the price tags on Chevrolet, the first of the G. M. 1951 line to

Fleet Ready, Says Adm. Joy as Yanks Battle Their Way Through Red Trap

TOKYO (Saturday), Dec. 9 (AP).—The commander of United Nations naval forces in Korea said today his ships were standing off the east Korean coast port of Hungnam, "ready for any eventuality."

Vice Admiral C. Turner Joy, the U. N. naval commander, made the remark to a news conference on the northeast Korean front when he was asked about the possibility of the seaborne withdrawal of all U. N. forces in the northeast sector.

In that sector more than 100,000 Chinese Reds were seeking to trap elements of three American divisions and South orean forces.

Confers With General Almond

Admiral Joy saw newsmen after conferring today with Maj. Gen. Edward M. Almond, commander of the United States Tenth Corps, which embraces all U. N. troops on the northeast front.

That conference followed a secret meeting yesterday of Joy with top Navy and Marine officers.

U. N. troops in northeast Korea include a force of 20,000 Americans bloodily battling their way southeast toward the coast from the Changjin Reservoir area.

A Tenth Corps spokesman said the force made good progress Friday in a blizzard which deprived it of much-needed support of Allied aircraft.

Others Not Located

An Eighth Army spokesman said his reports were that the main advance group was only 5 miles beyond the town of Koto, where the attempt to break Chinese encirclement started yesterday.

Whereabouts of other U. N. forces withdrawing in northeast Korea was cloaked in secrecy.

In the northwest, Allied planes attacked large Chinese convoys moving south toward the Red capital of Pyongyang in a build-up for smashes against the new Eighth Army line. That line is between Pyongyang and the thirty-eighth parallel boundary.

Fifth Air Force planes alone flew 350 sorties in Korea Friday. They reported they inflicted 1100 casualties on Communist troops.

A U. S. Tenth Corps spokesman who announced the "good progress" against intense small arms fire said two new threats

Price of Grade A Large Eggs Near Dollar a Dozen

The retail price of grade A large eggs was expected to push the dollar mark for a dozen in the District today.

A spokesman for the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association explained that a rise to 80 cents a dozen wholesale on the New York Mercantile Exchange yesterday would bring about a retail range here from 95 to 99 cents. Some retailers, however, were reportedly holding prices below 90 cents, at least for today.

The wholesale increase — 14 cents a dozen since Monday in New York — was attributed to heavy buying by the armed services, curtailed transportation due to stormy weather and a shortage of cold storage eggs. The District's present "deficit market," with demand outstripping supply, forces wholesalers to pay New York prices for eggs produced in Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania, a spokesman said.

Approval Expected

Senate Schedules Vote Monday On $38,000,000 Aid for Tito

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Aid to Marshal Tito's drought-hit Yugoslavia appeared on its way to quick Senate approval last night with an eleventh hour amendment authorizing use of Marshall Plan funds for the project.

The Senate agreed to vote at 4 p. m. Monday on the 38 million dollar aid authorization in the "Lame Duck" session's first major foreign policy showdown.

Only two Senators took the floor against the program, designed to maintain the independence of Yugoslavia and her 30-division Army against possible aggression by Russia.

The diversion of ECA funds to Yugoslavia was proposed from the floor in an amendment by Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.). The McCarran amendment was quickly accepted by Senate Foreign Relations Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.) after the State Department indicated its approval.

The ECA transfer, if finally approved by the Senate and accepted by the House will have the effect of making the additional aid quickly available since it authorizes the use of existing funds without going through the appropriations process.

The Administration's original proposal provided merely an authorization, requiring action by the appropriating bodies of both Houses before the new aid could be supplied.

McCarran's amendment authorized use of 50 million dollars in ECA funds but the Nevadan explained that the proposal covered 12 million dollars in Marshall Plan aid already extended.

Thus only $38 million in new money will be available, as under the Administration plan. Altogether $31,400,000 in emergency drought assistance already has been channeled into Yugoslavia. The new money would bring the total aid to $69,400,000.

Connally also "accepted" yesterday an amendment by Senator Brien McMahon (D., Conn.), which likewise has Administration approval. The McMahon-Connally amendment puts Tito on notice that the grant of aid does not mean the United States is indorsing Yugoslavian measures "to suppress or destroy religious, political and economic freedom."

Across the Capitol the House Rules Committee, meanwhile, cleared to the House floor for action Tuesday a companion aid authorization. The House Foreign Affairs Committee also stressed in its report that the 38 million

Britain Asks Chinese Reds To Stop Killing U. N. Troops

LAKE SUCCESS, Dec. 8 (NYHT). — Britain assured the Chinese Communist through the United Nations General Assembly Political Committee today that they still had a chance for "cooperation" if they would "stop the killing" in Korea, and comply with U. N. principles.

The statement, by Minister of State Kenneth Younger, reaffirmed Britain's support of the U. N.'s collective fight in Korea "through good times and bad," but at the same time appealed to other U. N. delegations not to make it more difficult for the Chinese Communists to choose the path of peace.

The Chinese Communist delegation, under Wu Hsiu-chuan, still withheld any reply to a three-day-old appeal by 13 Asiatic and Arab nations to stay behind the thirty-eighth parallel frontier between North and South Korea to enable peace negotiations.

Sir Benegal Rau, chief Indian U. N. delegate, revealed to reporters that the Chinese Communist representatives here had asked—when he submitted the appeal last Tuesday—"what guarantees" they would have against any attack by U. N. forces later from the south.

Indications were there would be no vote in the committee until next week on the six-power resolution—earlier vetoed in the Security Council by the Soviet Union—calling for Chinese Communist troop withdrawal, with U. N. pledges to respect their legitimate interests.

Arab delegations were reported working on possible amendments

U. S. Tanks Show Paces For Newsmen

FORT KNOX, Ky., Dec. 8 (AP).—American armor experts decline to be stampeded into production of monster tanks by rumors that Russia has them.

Instead, the Army's foremost tank designers at this armored center are concentrating on improving the family of medium tanks with harder hitting fire power. They are not so heavy and do not need special highways or bridges.

At the same time, the United States is pushing ahead with development of light tanks which experts believe have a specialized function in modern battle.

The Army explained its armor doctrine and exhibited some of the improved tanks to reporters on a visit here.

Among other things, the new T-41 light tank, just going into production at the Cadillac division of General Motors, was taken out of wraps. While there had been a brief announcement that a light tank was being produced, no details had been made public until today.

The T-41 light tank isn't intended to battle other tanks. It is to be used for fast reconnaissance and protecting the flanks of infantry units against small and medium weapons attacks.

The T-41, as it exists in the original, hand-built prototype at Fort Knox, weighs about 25 tons, mounts a new design 76 millimeter gun, is driven with a 500 horsepower engine and has a roadway speed of "better than 35 miles an hour." Because of some gadgets which can't be discussed, it can fire accurately at a target even while it is rolling at high speed.

Improved versions of the M-46 Patton medium tank, for which the Army placed a 100 million dollar order for 500 with the American Locomotive Co. earlier this week, were put through their paces.

This tank, weighing a little over 45 tons, mounts a 90 millimeter gun. In battles in Korea, the Patton's 90 millimeter guns have made "kills" of Rusian-designed T-34 mediums at ranges up to 1700 yards (approximately 1 mile).

The accuracy of the gun surprised reporters who found that even they (with some assists from the regular gunners) could hit tank-size targets at 1700 yards.

The U. S. tankers aren't overawed by the touted Soviet JS-111 tank. They say it isn't a heavy, but a medium of about 52 tons.

The tank designers said the Army intends to go ahead with production of the M-46s until they are satisfied they have ready an entirely new and superior design. And, it was indicated, this could be expected sometime next year.

Newsmen asked the Fort Knox specialists if any really new lessons in tank warfare had been learned in Korea. They replied: "We don't think Korea has proved or disproved anything that wasn't in our doctrine."

Evacuation in East Rumored

menaced the battered force pulling back from positions around the Changjin Reservoir in north-central Korea.

One danger was a fresh "large" enemy force moving south parallel to the escape trail, apparently trying to slide in between the breakout column and its objective—the escape port of Hungnam.

The other was a Red air attack on the Koto airstrip at the rear of the column, its only physical link with the outside.

The corps spokesman gave no details on the air attack.

He was silent on the new location of the column, for security reasons.

He said the hard-hit column of Marines and soldiers, and a small force of Royal British Marine commandos, was not yet out of the critical danger stage.

But he said Friday's action against heavy odds was "successful."

Latest previous reports said the column had driven 5 miles southeast from Koto, the jump-off point of the current breakout drive, and had about 40 miles to go to reach Hungnam.

These reports said the column had reached a point where the road drops down from the Changjin Reservoir plateau through a narrow canyon. Army spokesmen said the going would be toughest there.

(The United States Navy said in Washington that battle reports of Friday night, Korean time, indicated a relief column from the United States Third Infantry Division was within 6 miles of the trapped Allied forces. Correspondents with the Tenth Corps made no mention of a rescue column.)

Other American and South Korean troops farther north in northeast Korea were pulling back toward Hungnam, but their plight was not as serious as that of the column from Koto.

Meanwhile, a Chinese Communist semicircle of men and guns moved closer to the port of Hungnam and the nearby industrial city of Hamhung, the two big Allied bases on the menaced Tenth Corps front.

A corps spokesman said an entire Red division was reported in the Sinhung area, 24 miles northeast of Hamhung.

A band of 100 Reds attacked United States Third Division elements only 12 air miles west of Hamhung. American and Communist patrols clashed 16 miles northwest of the city.

Russian-built MIG-15 jet fighters and American F-80 jets met Friday in a dogfight at 18,000 feet over the breakout column south of Koto. Tenth Corps headquarters said it did not know the results nor the number of planes participating.

While the jets fought in the clear weather miles above the battleground, the weather at ground level was so bad it halted air action in close support of ground forces Friday.

A First Marine Air Wing spokesman said ground checks confirmed that between 400 and 500 Reds were killed Thursday in a Marine air attack on a tunnel 2 miles south of Koto.

He said an important Red command post was located in the tunnel. Three Leatherneck fliers drove 500-pound explosives, fire bombs and rockets into the tunnel.

The Tenth Corps spokesman said Friday that Wonsan, 50 air miles south of Hungnam, was officially still in U.N. hands. Previous reports had said the small American garrison evacuated the port Wednesday. Apparently South Korean marines and other U.N. troops were still there.

On the quiet western Korea front, the United States Eighth Army consolidated its new defense positions stretching east-west about 25 miles south of Pyongyang.

Allied patrols probed for forward elements of 18 Chinese Communist divisions reported moving toward the Eighth Army, but only a few skirmishes were reported.

Most of the Eighth Army's current trouble was coming from a Red guerilla force of up to 40,000 well-armed men, mostly North Korean Communists by-passed in the Allied march last September.

About half of these Reds are harassing Allied supply lines operating north from Seoul. The others are waging terror warfare deep in southwest Korea.

General MacArthur's war summary said Reds were trying to reinforce elements they sent south of the Taedong River at Chinnampo on the west end of the Allied front. He said also that large forces of Reds were reported moving down the center of Korea near the east end of the 70-mile Allied line.

Allied warplanes struck heavily at these enemy activities Friday.

(The Navy in Washington confirmed front reports that U. N. forces had abandoned Chinnampo, Yellow Sea port for Pyongyang. After ground troops cleared the port, the Navy said an Allied destroyer force blasted the port area, "rendering it useless to the enemy.")

Price of Newspapers Raised in Holland

AMSTERDAM, Dec. 8 (U.P.).—Publishers today ordered a general increase of subscription prices for all daily newspapers in Holland.

On January 1, all dailies will cost about 10 percent more for the highest priced up to 30 percent more for the lowest priced papers.

The publishers said the move was necessary because of "high newsprint prices and the other high production costs."

Korean Civilians Fleeing From Path of Reds

SEOUL, Korea, Dec. 8 (AP).—The invasion of Korea by Chinese Communist forces of close to one million men has thrown Korea's civil population into turmoil.

United Nations authorities estimated 80 to 90 percent of the civilian population in North Korea—5,600,000 to 6,300,000—were fleeing southward in advance of the Chinese Reds.

The economic subcommittee of the United Nations Commission for Unification and Rehabilitation of Korea (UNCURK), in making this estimate, pointed out that only 20 percent of the population moved out when U. N. forces were advancing north.

South of the thirty-eighth parallel, another great exodus is under way. The people of Seoul recall their bitter experience during three months of Red occupation last summer.

Walk South by Thousands

Carrying babies on their backs and bundles on their heads, women, old men, and many children are seeking refuge from the new Communist invasion.

They are walking south by the thousands. Others, more fortunate, are using every means available for flight—ox-carts, push-carts, even a few trucks.

They are taking only necessities. Many personal possessions are left behind.

In the north, an Eighth Army spokesman said, civilians are being driven out of areas already occupied by the Chinese armies. But the bulk of the displaced are streaming southward over frozen trails and roads from areas not yet reached by the Red tide.

The care of these refugees has confronted the Republic of Korea with a huge new problem in human suffering, according to Col. Walter B. Creichton, UNCURK's director of health in the civil assistance command at Seoul.

Cost of Living Drops

The evacuation of Seoul has had an immediate effect on the cost of living. Yesterday the price of rice dropped from 5000 won to 3500 won per small mal of rice. In American terms this means the price of rice dropped from $2 to $1.40 for one-half bushel.

When the price of rice falls living becomes easier because other prices drop proportionately.

In the past two days the prices of clothing and other merchandise in Seoul also have dropped 20 to 30 percent. Men's overcoats, for example that cost 100,000 won ($40) now cost 70,000 won ($28).

American black market cigarettes per carton can be bought for 7000 won ($2.80) per carton, where they used to bring 10,000 won ($4) a few days ago. Chewing gum is down to 10 cents a pack from 16 cents. Chocolate bars are 16 cents now instead of 28 cents.

The National Bank of Korea also shows the anxiety of everyone to withdraw their money. American depositors who had $13,000 in savings accounts have withdrawn almost all of their funds, the head of the foreign exchange department said.

Handling of refugees from the north is being supervised by UNCURK and military police.

Secondary routes are being marked and policed to guide the displaced persons around main military lines. Bridges and ferry points are being established for them.

The refugees are being sent toward areas where good fuel and possibly shelter from the bitter cold might be available.

Reds Asked To Halt Killing to make the appeal "more palatable" to the Chinese Reds. These may propose, among other things, avoiding the pinning of actual responsibility for the Chinese troops' military action on the Chinese government, which has insisted the troops are simply "volunteers."

The commitee, however, heard Turkish Ambassador Selim Sarper read a cablegram today from the seven-nation U. N. Commission for the Unification and Rehabilitation of Korea, sent in yesterday, which submitted detailed evidence for the conclusion that the Chinese troops "form part of the armed forces of the Peoples Republic of China."

Based on interrogation of Chinese prisoners of war and visits to the field, the commission said 26 Chinese Communist divisions had been "definitely identified," with 231,000 men. It cited a "responsible estimate" that there may be as many as 400,000 Chinese Communist troops in Korea, and said "very few North Korean troops are in action."

Younger assured the Chinese Communists—who did not attend today's session even as spectators—that the six-power resolution, which Britain cosponsors, sought to save them from the "tragic error" of voluntarily ranging themselves among "the enemies of the U. N."

"If they will stop the killing and put themselves within the pale of the Charter's responsibilities," he said, "there is no reason why the way should not be opened to a period of free cooperation between China and the Nations both of East and West who are represented around this table.

"The choice they now make will determine whether future generations will curse or bless their name. The time for the choice is now. They must be under no illusion about the grim prospect which opens out for them and all of us if they choose wrongly.

"Equally, they should know that we here in the U. N. will neither do nor say anything which will make it more difficult for them to choose aright."

GOP Mapping Serious Drive In Solid South

By The Associated Press

The Republican Party took its first serious step in years last night to organize "a forceful and effective" opposition party in the Democratic South.

The executive committee of the GOP National Committee adopted a resolution creating a committee of seven to assist existing Southern State Republican organizations in strengthening their setups so the people there may enjoy the "advantage and benefit of a two-party system of government."

John E. Jackson of New Orleans, national committeeman of Louisiana, was named chairman of the new committee. Appointed by National Chairman Guy Garbielson to assist him in the Southern drive were:

GOP President Urged

Carroll Reece of Tennessee; Mrs. Gilford Mayes, Idaho; J. E. Broyhill, North Carolina; Mrs. Carl G. Stearns, Texas; Wallace Townsend, Arkansas, and Mrs. Estelle D. Tanner, Missouri.

The resolution was adopted in closed session after the committee heard Senator Taft of Ohio assert that Republican ideas of liberty and freedom can not make headway until there is a Republican President.

He urged a stepped-up organization to start planning immediately for the 1952 campaign, with emphasis on greater publicity and formation of colored and foreign nationalities committees to work with voters in those categories.

Taft said labor union voters can be "weaned away from the class appeal" made to them members of a union.

Taft, a potential persidential candidate himself, spoke before the Republican Party's national executive committee, meeting here to start work on a campaign to win the White House and Congress in the 1952 election.

Senate Lead Difficult

Representative Leonard W. Hall (R., N. Y.), chairman of the congressional campaign committee, spoke optimistically of picking up enough "margin" districts to win control of the House in 1952.

Chairman Owen Brewster (R., Me.), warned that it will be a tough job to win the Senate, where 20 Republican-held seats will be at stake and only 12 Democratic seats, most of them in the "solid" South.

Taft predicted the Republicans can win the White House if they keep the organization going at high gear without an off-year letdown. He cited his own reelection in Ohio last month, in which he was the No. 1 target of an Administration-union coalition, as evidence that "the laboring man can be weaned away from class appeal."

He estimated that only about 50 percent of the people are interested enough in politics to follow political news in the press and radio. He said the other 50 percent must be reached through personal contact by enthused party workers and it is up to the national committee to establish the organization which can do that job.

U. S. Prohibits 'War' Cargoes

American ships and planes were forbidden yesterday to carry war potential goods destined for Russia or her puppets.

The Commerce Department imposed the ban, effective immediately. It applies to traffic between ports everywhere in the world.

It rounded out a series of steps barring shipments to Red areas from America, via America, or on American carriers, of materials useful for the Communist war machine.

Specifically named in the new directive are weapons, fissionable (atom bomb) materials or strategic industrial goods.

Shipments can't even be dropped off by American vessels at non-Communist ports if the contraband is to go to the forbidden areas. British Hongkong and Portuguese Macao, important ports at Communist China's door, come within the ban to make sure the goods don't find their way to America's enemies.

Dewey Decries Criticism Now Of Leadership

NEW YORK, Dec. 8 (NYHT).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey today rebuked the Republican congressional bloc for seeking the removal of Secretary of State Dean Acheson and recommended instead "a united front at home" in these crucial days.

He said he has been the "severest critic in the country of the National Administration's policies in the Far East, but this moment is not the time for further criticism."

"Obviously the prestige of our country is at a very low point," he said. "Other free nations for the first time in recent years are showing an unwillingness to follow our leadership."

"We are in a state of national emergency as are the other free nations," the Governor stressed.

McCarran Joins Fight Against Dean Acheson

Senator McCarran (D., Nev.) joined Republicans yesterday in demands for the replacement of Secretary Acheson.

McCarran said he believes the Secretary of State ought to step out. He is one of the few Democrats who have expressed such a view publicly.

"I am afraid that Secretary Acheson has lost the confidence of the country." McCarran said. "Whether what has been said about him is either proper or correct doesn't matter now. He doesn't have the country's confidence and no Secretary can be effective under such conditions."

2 National Business Groups Brand Profits Bill 'Unsound'

The United States Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers asked the Senate yesterday to junk the House-approved $3,400,000,000 excess profits tax bill as "inflationary," "confiscatory" and "unsound."

In its place, the NAM suggested a corporation "defense tax" of unspecified size. The Chamber said the whole question should be put over to next year—when a more conservative Congress takes over.

NAM spokesman Charles R. Slight, jr., told the Senate Finance Committee the 38 percent corporate income tax rate in force before the Korean war was too high for the "long-range good of the economy." Congress later hiked the maximum rate, payable on corporation incomes of more than $25,000 yearly, to 45 percent to help pay rearmament costs.

He said his "defense tax" would be levied as a flat percentage increase of the pre-Korean tax. This, he added, would result in "the minimum disturbance to production, and hence in the long run, the maximum tax base."

Congress should decide how much the special tax should be, Sligh said.

The Chamber of Commerce representative, Elsworth C. Alvord, testified that the House bill would levy a 'confiscatory tax" on normal profits.

He said tax decisions could be safely deferred because profits growing out of the arms program will not show until late next year.

Both business spokesmen said they realized American industry must pay what Sligh called "its fair share" of the emergency program. But he added that "business cannot pay it all."

The NAM representative said the present bill would lead future tax-writers to regard it as a "normal tax" for "normal revenue" purposes instead of an abnormal tax adopted in an emergency.

Gino J. Simi, director of apprenticeship for the District, said 613 apprentices have graduated to journeyman status in the four years the council has existed. In the same period 523 apprentices stopped their training for one reason or another.

Simi said 1700 employers and 45 unions in the District are cooperating to train workers for a trade.

Electrocution Of Watchman Termed Accident

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald yesterday termed the death of Charles H. Queen, 45, a Capital Transit watchman, accidental due to electrocution.

Queen, who lived at 4115 Minnesota ave. ne., was found lying over a 220-volt line near Canal rd. and Clark pl. nw. on the Cabin John streetcar tracks Thursday night. Police tried to revive him with artificial respiration for 45 minutes but he was pronounced dead at 6:27 p. m.

Electricians said the line was insulated and could not have electrocuted him. Dr. MacDonald said he was informed, however, that the line, which was grounded to the rail, was charged as was an extra coil there. A contact was established between the two, probably because of the dampness, he said.

10-to-1 China Losses Cited by Pentagon factors that the Red High Command must consider. At least, China has problems and risks to calculate herself. In any peace negotiations, we are not entirely without beginning power.

Therefore, military men argue, hysterical popular demands that we "get out of Korea"—evidenced in Congressional mail and by some radio commentators and newspapers—can only weaken America's position.

It is noteworthy, they said, that the Truman-Attlee communique made no mention of what might be done if U. N. forces are driven out of Korea. There was considerable discussion, it is reported, of one alternative we might take in that event—waging a "limited war" against China.

There are some advocates, both at the Pentagon and State Department, of retaliating against Red China by a naval blockade and aerial bombing of military targets. This "limited war" concept particularly was urged as a necessary step if we have to pull out of Korea.

Informed sources said that this proposal and all others relating to what we may do if forced to leave was left for later decision. This, they declared, would indicate that an immediate evacuation is not expected.

Those who advocate a naval blockade and aerial bombardment, but not all-out war, declare that it could hurt Red China badly and prevent the Communists from proceeding with the conquest of the rest of Asia.

Most military men agree with this, but raise serous questions about it.

The present American Pacific Fleet could throw a fairly tight blockade around China's ports and prevent the steel, iron ore, copper and other things essential to Mao's war machine from reaching it in adequate quantities. It would be far less effective than it was against Japan, but it would hurt.

Bombing also would hurt China, and some Air Force leaders are said to be among the advocates of the "limited war" proposal. But opponents challenge the term itself as an anachronsm. The present combat can be treated as "limited war," if its proponents so desire, because it is localized. But declaration of a naval blockade, even without air bombardment of China, would be an offensive action, and the chances of keeping such war "limited" to that would be nil, in the opinion of some.

Either type of qualified war should be launched against China, they argue, only if we go into total mobilization and stand ready to have it accepted as all-out war. The Communists could be expected to reply to a naval blockade by submarine and air attacks on our ships, and to aerial bombing by return assaults on our Japan bases. Russia has furnished tanks and fighter planes to the Chinese and North Koreans which have been in action. Why not submarines and bombers?

Army Cancels General Christmas Furlough

The Army yesterday cancelled a general 10-day Christmas furlough for soldiers in training camps.

The announcement said training will continue through the holiday season at all camps in the United States except on Christmas Day and New Year's Day.

The Army explained that commanders at camps and posts may grant leave to men who can be spared in order to give them time to go home for the holidays.

The Army on November 11 had announced that a general training holiday would be granted from December 23 through January 1.

No Wage-Price Freeze Seen

be shown, by $60 to $80, depending on the model.

In a telegram to Valentine, the Ford Co. declared it had attempted to hold its price line as long as possible, but that its labor and material costs had soared "out of sight."

The telegram declared that the company had reduced prices four years ago and kept them reduced while costs rose. In the past two years, it added, Ford not only held the price line but made price reductions.

Since the start of the Korean war, the telegram declared, the concern's annual costs had risen more than 100 million dollars and are still going up. The announced price increases "will by no means recapture" those cost increases, it said, adding that a large part of them will be absorbed by the company.

General Motors' president, Charles E. Wilson, made a similar argument in a telegram to Valentine. He added that no stabilizing action had been taken on the prices of the vital defense metals that the Government is stockpiling—and that go into autos.

The G. M. president said "we are disturbed that you have suddenly selected for a price stabilization request a corporation that has done one of the very best jobs in holding prices and at the same time treating its employes fairly."

"Greater increases in prices were justified and would have been made except for the consideration given us to the problems of stabilization and protecting the economy at this time," he said.

But both Ford and G.M., and the eight other auto companies whom Valentine called to the meeting, indicated they would send representatives.

Valentine said yesterday that if, after studying the figures with the auto industry, his agency felt the price increases were not justified, and if the industry did not agree to withdraw them, he would have no hesitation in taking mandatory action—that is, a price roll-back order.

Valentine, DiSalle and Cyrus Ching, chairman of the Wage Stabilization Board, made their views known at a joint press conference.

Their problem in making public statements about future control action was difficult to the point of impossibility.

They obviously could not say that they would not impose overall ceilings, for if that prospect were removed, prices and wages would soar upward without restraint.

On the other hand, they could not say they would impose ceilings at some future date, for in the interim labor, business and the farmers would all try to beat the gun by raising their prices beforehand.

Even so, despite parrying of direct questions, the three officials' comments yesterday permitted these clear inferences:

1. Price and wage controls cannot be escaped, and are being planned for, despite DiSalle's "hope"—formal, and for the record—they would not be necessary.

2. A general price-wage freeze is unthinkable without an adequate staff to administer the enormous Project. DiSalle's estimate of two to three months to assemble such an organization appears highly optimistic, especially if freezes are attempted on "market-basket" items, i. e., food, clothing and other light consumer goods.

3. If selective controls are attempted—as they well may be in "managed price" industries where a relatively few concerns control the market—they cannot last long. They must give way to economy-wide controls.

Long Tension Viewed Ahead

he said, "that this is the time for a calm determination, a strong resolution to do what seems wise to protect the future security of the free world. It is no time for violent emotions."

Marshall said this Nation must build up its manpower and material strength as rapidly as possible, on an enduring rather than a "one-shot" basis.

"The immediate and first step in the program we have decided upon calls for a build-up in manpower from the low state of last June at the time the North Koreans started on their course of aggression to a position from which we can at least see the peaks we may have to climb in case of all-out war."

Gen. Marshall spoke on the same sober theme earlier today at a luncheon given in honor of E. Roland Harriman, who succeeded Marshall as president of the American Red Cross.

"Of course, nobody can tell about what will happen," he said. "The situation has become more serious. The possibilities are greater for larger troubles."

'O'Malley-Malone' Is Fine Slapstick

By Richard L. Coe

THERE ARE LOTS of giggles, chuckles, titters, belly-laughs and a Pullman sink in "Mrs. O'Malley and Mr. Malone," an outrageous little item that has slipped into the Capitol.

I'll probably lose cast by admitting I enjoyed this, for those who go in for polite, witty humor would be likely to have this yarn on their list of untouchables. It moves like the wind in a flurry of slapsticks, corpses and blotto, but the lines are unexpected and developments unpredictable.

Marjorie Main and James Whitmore have the title roles, and while they have darn little resemblance to the characters played so often years ago by Marie Dressler and Wallace Beery, to whom they're being compared, they're a good team. I hope more vehicles can be churned up for them.

The beginning has an angle that's becoming increasingly familiar now that the movies have admitted that giveaway radio shows have been heard of by the public. Marjorie wins $50,000 and transportation from her Montana home to Gotham.

On the Chicago stopover she meets a lawyer-detective with whose writings as a detective magazine reader, she's familiar. Whitmore is supposed to be both a wiseacre and a card with the ladies. He's waiting for an old client of his to get out of stir so he can get at the $10,000 fee owed him. Since the grands are to come out of a hot $100,000, a detective also is on the trail.

All interested parties wind up on the New York-bound express, which produces a missing partner, two movable bodies, hundreds of loose greenbacks and assorted babes. Marjorie and Whitmore scurry about the train, insulting passengers, starting a fire and consuming quantities of liquor.

Ann Dvorak tosses off some breezy lines in fine fury and you'll like the title of the song Marjorie identifies: "Possum Up a Gum Stump." Norman Taurog directed with whiz-bang speed. William Bowers' screen play is from a story by Craig Rice and Stuart Palmer, a once-Pentagoned Army major with many friends about town.

I'm not saying you'll have as good a time with this one as I did, but if you're in the mood, you very well might.

DON CORNELL, a recording favorite and Sammy Kaye graduate, headlines the Capitol stage bill with his own versions of "There's No Tomorrow" and "It Isn't Fair" as well as some extremely good vocal impressions of his competitors . . . His mimicry deserves further applause, for he doesn't take the edge off by telling you the names of his victims; you can guess 'em and it's fun that way . . . Cornell's own version of popular songs are full-throated, full-miked and lavish, conveying the impression that had he written them he'd have had some "improvements" . . . Mary Raye and Naldi do their extremely graceful dances with high polish . . . The Pitchmen are back with their songs and jokes; it's interesting to note how they've improved their act—successors to Clayton, Jackson and Durante? . . . Bobby Whaling and Yvette open the bill with his strangely collapsible cycles.

KAY DE WITT and Roy Roberts, having brought down the rafters last spring with their excerpts from "Annie Get Your Gun," do it all over again this week . . . Now why don't they tackle "Call Me Madam"?

READER John W. Willis observes that the tickets for "The Consul" next week at the Gayety are labeled, "The Counsel." . . . Don't ticket companies employ proofreaders?

MATINEES TODAY: "Pygmalion" at Arena Stage and "Born Yesterday" at the Gayety, where Judy Holliday will be making at least a temporary goodby to the dizzy dame who made her famous.

MYRA HESS is heard on the Plaza screen in the first movement from the Beethoven Appassionata Sonata, the short subject with the Berlin State Opera version of Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro" . . . This is one of those frankly long-hair shorts, no glimpses of beaming faces in the audience, just Dame Myra at work, a lesson in musical magic.

LUCILLE BALL stars with Eddie Albert at the Metropolitan in "The Fuller Brush Girl" . . . This one I found disappointing and I was fully forewarned to expect slapstick, so arrived in appropriate humor . . . But the incidents are strung out and telegraphed, a critique you cannot apply to the equally slapstick "Mrs. O'Malley and Mr. Malone" . . . Lucy is one of the movies' brightest gals, a grand performer, but somehow no one ever supplies her with anything other than a threadbare script . . . The short subject (a Warner release) on the change in women's status since 1900 is interesting; Lucy's career is a result of the change, and I'm sorry she's not given brighter treatment as the cosmetics salesgirl . . . Still, by Havana reader ate this one up, so you may, too.

"MRS. O'MALLEY AND MR. MALONE," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer release, produced by William H. Wright, directed by Norman Taurog, screen play by William Bowers from a story by Craig Rice and Stuart Palmer. Photographed by Ray June. At the Capitol.

Tito Aid Vote Set by Senate

dollars food grant did not mean support of Tito's Communist policies.

"Yugoslavia may not be a recruit for democracy, but it is a recruit for the principle of independence," said the Senate committee report.

"The strength of the Yugoslav army is such that it might well be a crucial factor in the defense of Western Europe in the event of Soviet aggression."

In the Senate's two opposition speeches, Senator John L. McClellan (D., Ark.) and Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.) questioned whether Tito's break with Stalin was final.

McClellan said he would vote against aiding Yugoslavia until he had tangible evidence that the Stalin-Tito split was more than "a minor scrap between Communists."

Brewster said he found it difficult to believe that the "break with Moscow has magically turned the Yogoslav government into a bulwark against Communism."

Leading off for the bill, Connally said loss of Yugoslav independence would be a blow to the free world.

"Tito knew when he had enough from the Kremlin," said Connally. "He had enough when he realized that communism was a shield for imperialism."

U. S. Appointee Angry After Facing Accuser

By the United Press

Mrs. Anna M. Rosenberg yesterday confronted the man who accused her of Communist front affiliations, but the dramatic meeting at a tense congressional committee hearing failed to decide whether she will be confirmed as Assistant Defense Secretary.

Mrs. Rosenberg, New York personnel expert, faced her accuser, Ralph de Sola, also of New York, an admitted former Communist, at a closed-door session of the Senate Armed Services Committee. One member said the room was full of "tension."

De Sola testified that he had seen Mrs. Rosenberg at Communist front meetings in the middle 1930s. Mrs. Rosenberg vehemently denied that she ever had seen De Sola. She has said the case is one of mistaken identity.

Mrs. Rosenberg was trembling and choking with rage when she emerged from the room.

"It is the hardest ordeal I have ever gone through in my life," she said. "I didn't believe that anyone who has lived the way I have, who has worked the way I have, could be accused in such a way by a man who admits he was a Communist."

The confrontation scene came after it was disclosed that two committee members—Sens. Lester C. Hunt (D., Wyo.) and Harry P. Cain, (R., Wash.)—had examined a "complete" FBI file on Mrs. Rosenberg.

They refused to reveal its contents but a Republican committee source said they apparently found nothing "damaging."

The committee also released sworn testimony by Mrs. Rosenberg on November 29 in which she said she never has been sympathetic to communism or joined its front groups.

Acting Committee Chairman Richard B. Russell (D., Ga.) said there was a "direct conflict" in the question of Mrs. Rosenberg's confirmation will have to be settled by further testimony and scheduled another meeting Monday.

Russell said the "question of mistaken identity is not completely eliminated."

The other witnesses included De Sola's former wife, Helen Winner. Of her, Russell said: "I would think that Mrs. Winner's testimony was not detrimental to Mrs. Rosenberg."

Russell did not reveal the names of other witnesses to be called, but other committee sources said J. B. Matthews had been summoned. He is a former staff research director for the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

Dutch Rejects Proposal to Yield West New Guinea

THE HAGUE, Dec. 8 (AP).—The Netherlands government has rejected an Indonesian proposal that sovereignty over Dutch (western) New Guinea be transferred to the Indonesia next May, Dutch and Indonesian sources disclosed tonight.

Under the proposal, delivered yesterday, the Indonesian government offered to protect Dutch interest in New Guinea, while both Indonesia and The Netherlands work together for the social, economic and cultural development of the territory.

The Dutch government said it was not prepared to transfer sovereignty in view of the "present international situation," but would discuss cooperation in the development of New Guinea.

S. E. Church Sets Pace in Baptist Gains

Congress Heights Baptist Church, Esther and Brothers pl. se., led the way in membership gains among the 35 churches of the D. C. Baptist Convention this year.

Mr. Smith

The church, now the seventh largest of its denomination in the area, gained 114 members from November 1, 1949, to October 31, 1950, according to annual convention records. Membership now totals 1022.

The growth was attributed to a number of factors by its pastor, the Rev. Alva Lincoln Smith, who for seven years was assistant minister of National Memorial Baptist.

"Foremost," the minister said, "we don't try to please everyone."

He added that the church was located in a growing section, and emphasized strong Sunday evening services as well as forceful personal evangelism.

"The church follows the Southern Baptist program," Mr. Smith said. "This keeps it out of the political realm and our program centers on Christ alone."

The second church in net gain was First Baptist Church of Silver Spring with 100 new members. Its total is now 775.

Other convention membership statistics place the following churches as the first 10 in membership: Calvary (3570, down 19); National Memorial (2090, down 32); First (1979, down 24); Second (1312, up 25); Brookland (1230, up 90);

Grace (1066, up 2); Congress Heights; Centennial (998, down 11); Petworth (942, up 25) and Fountain Memorial (888, up 14).

Largest loss was 126 members by Bethany Baptist. The convention showed a net gain of 608 members for the 12 months.

Alcoholics 'Scared' By Many Physicians

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

CLEVELAND, Dec. 8.—Family doctors were told here today that they too often discourage, rather than help the chronic drinker.

Dr. Edward O. Harper, assistant professor of psychiatry of Western Reserve University here, blamed "many" physicians with "scaring off" alcoholics who come to them for help.

"Too many doctors go to great lengths to show drinking's effects on the body, and don't do anything to cure the disease of alcoholism," said Harper. "The alcoholic doesn't need to be told that alcohol is harmful."

He spoke at a closing-day session of neurologists and psychiatrists attending the fourth clinical session of the American Medical Association. The four-day convention for family doctors ended this afternoon.

Deep-Rooted Disease

The family doctor, said Harper, is understandably discouraged in treating alcoholics because their disease "is deep-rooted, even to their childhood, and doesn't yield to any specific drug."

"The alcoholic is a sick individual, just as much as the man with diabetes or pneumonia," he declared. "Formerly we considered him just a weak individual whom society would punish by its attitude."

Doctors now, he advised, must first recognize themselves that alcoholism is a disease; then they must convince the patient of the fact, and finally they must convince the patient that because of his disease he can never touch alcohol for the rest of his life.

Earlier, doctors attending the same section on neurology and psychiatry were told of recent work with brain-wave recorders, and the finding of specific wave patterns in two hidden types of epilepsy.

Machine's Value Reviewed

Dr. Frederic A. Gibbs, associate professor of psychiatry at the University of Illinois, reviewed the delicate diagnostic value of the electroencephalograph, the machine which records energy waves which emanate from the brain.

One of the newly recognized wave patterns, he said, can be described as a "rage wave." Its victims may be seized by fits of destructive rage, yet still retain consciousness and a murderous ability to plot and control physical activity.

The "rage wave" pattern, he said, showed up in 28 persons, four of whom had committed murders. The mental disorder, Gibbs told the physicians, may account for such mass slaying incidents as that of the Camden, N. J., man who killed 13 persons in September 1949.

The second new wave pattern uncovered was identified as a distinct finding among "conscious convulsives."

Patents showing such a brain wave pattern suffer seizures of trancelike, confusional behavior, recognized by the brief episodes of groping, fumbling and smacking of the lips, Gibbs reported.

Congress Irked

Free Hospital Program Due For Restudy

The District yesterday decided to survey the city's program for providing medical care to indigents, as suggested by a congressional subcommittee last summer.

Dr. Daniel L. Seckinger, Director of Public Health, said the United States Public Health Service will be asked to help make the three or four-month study.

The decision to conduct the survey was made by a committee representing the Health Department, PHS, medical and public health groups.

The committee decided on a short-term study of what improvement can be made with existing facilities, rather than a comprehensive survey, because it felt the defense program would sidetrack a lengthy, large-scale effort now.

The action was prompted by the House Appropriations District Subcommittee which, after reviewing the District's budget request last spring, said it was "not at all pleased" with the Health Department's present program of giving medical aid to indigents. Indigents in this sense are persons unable to pay medical expenses—but not necessarily Welfare Department cases.

It said the department should exercise more control over selection of persons whose medical bills it pays and should restudy its program.

Ten Thousand To Leave D. C.

about 10,000 would be decentralized in other cities.

This would leave a space deficit for about 87,000 employes who would be housed in the eight dispersal sites in an equal number of permanent and temporary quarters.

Larson said the "essential" segments of the following agencies undoubtedly would be among those relocated in one of the dispersal areas: FBI, Central Intelligence Agency, Defense Department planners and some of the emergency civilian mobilization agencies.

The sites have not been selected but will be very soon, Larson said. He indicated GSA was awaiting Congressional approval of the program before making them public.

Larson termed the Capitol building as a "very attractive target" for the enemy as he recalled that he had offered one or two of the dispersal sites to Congressional leaders as an alternate, or standby meeting place.

The proposal is still under consideration by the Capitol Architect's Office and Capitol leaders.

One committee member, Rep. Paul Cunningham (R., Iowa) suggested "there ought to be alternate members of Congress, too."

The Executive branch must assume that at least one bomb would get through to the District in event of an A-bomb attack, said Larson. With dispersal to eight locations, he explained, the chances of disastrous effects would be much reduced.

Presently, the majority of headquarters' functions of the Government are being conducted, Larson and others stressed, within the destructive range of a single atom bomb.

Larson and W. E. Reynolds, commissioner of Public Buildings, said the President's dispersal program also would serve to carry out the long-range plan for relieving congestion in downtown Washington—"sometime this or some other Congress must face up to it," Larson said.

The dispersal plan is in harmony with the recently published master plan for Washington, written by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

As another argument, officials said the realization of the dispersal program would permit elimination of World War I and II tempoarry buildings on the Mall and elsewhere.

At the conclusion of yesterday's hearing some members privately expressed the view that partial dispersal could be accomplished by greater use of Government barracks, airfields and other structures on the periphery of the Metropolitan area.

Religious Roundup

Adventists Spending $350,000 On Pioneering TV Program

The first organized religious body to go in for television on an extensive scale appears to be the Seventh-Day Adventists.

A central committee working out of the Takoma Park headquarters was voted $350,000 by the denomination for TV work during the next year.

The first Adventist network presentation, "Faith for Today," went over a six-station ABC-TV network last Sunday. This week, three additional stations will be added, and plans now call for the program's extension to the West Coast in the near future. Locally, it can be heard on WMAL-TV, channel 7.

Adventist headquarters report enthusiastic initial response. Paul Wickman, secretary of the denomination's radio commissmission, said it was still too early to add up the number of requests for literature or contributions, but indications already pointed to "phenomenal results."

William B. Ochs, vice president of the general council of the church, estimated present costs for the half-hour program at about $5000, with a potential audience of 15 million.

Both lay and clerical leaders generally believe that TV could revolutionize religion. Some need point only to evangelist Billy Graham's efforts over a Chicago station. Offerings more than covered the heavy initial expense, according to reports.

The Episcopal Bishop of Washington interpreted the Scriptures with telling effect for an unidentified woman traveler on the B. & O. last week.

The Right Rev. Angus Dun and the Rev. Edward H. Pruden, pastor of First Baptist Church, were headed for the closing session of the Federal Council of Churches in Cleveland.

As members of a slow-moving breakfast line, they were more than intrigued when a rather stout, middle-aged woman breezed past them and slid nimbly into a just-vacated chair.

Bishop Dun, in all his clerical dignity, went over and tapped the woman on the shoulder. He explained about the line, how long the group had been waiting and, when she appeared reluctant to move, quoted, to the applause of those waiting, "This time there shall be justice without mercy."

She retired to the end of the file forthwith.

Fulton Lewis, jr., the Mutual Broadcasting System news interpreter, will appear in an unfamiliar guise Sunday night in Constitution Hall. He will conduct a children's choir in the singing of Christmas carols. It's not a publicity gag, according to reports. Lewis is quite famous in the Hollywood, Md., area, where he lives, for the forming and training of a youngsters' choir at the local Methodist Church . . . The young people's fellowships of eight other parishes will be guests at Christ Episcopal Church, 3100 O st. nw., Sunday at 8 p. m. The Rev. Ernest Bruder, chaplain at St. Elizabeths Hospital, will discuss "Religion and psychiatry."

Lloyd Bailey, associate secretary of the Friend's committee on national legislation, will address the United Nations group of Calvary Baptist Church's School of Christian Living Sunday at 6 p. m. on "The Friends' Viewpoint on the U. N." . . . It's now officially Dr. Casper Nannes, covering religious news for the Evening Star. His doctoral thesis, "Politics in American Drama, 1890-1945," has been published by the University of Pennsylvania.

Threat Note Sent to Critic

United States must accept in lieu of leadership the nasty malice of a President whom Bernard Baruch, in a similar incident, called a rude, uncouth, ignorant man. Let us pray."

Mr. Pegler said Mr. Baruch spoke of Mr. Truman in such a way to him, Mr. Pegler, after Mr. Truman wrote the financier an angry letter about the time of the 1948 Presidential election.

Life With Father

Miss Truman was singing in Nashville, Tenn., last night, and a United Press report from there said she refused to believe that her father would "use language like that."

Miss Truman was told when she arrived there for a concert that a Washington newspaper reported the President threatened to punch the critic in the nose.

At the time she was questioned, however, the White House had not confirmed that Mr. Truman had written a letter. Miss Truman could not be reached for later comment as she rested for her singing engagement.

Miss Truman called the first report "ridiculous."

"I am absolutely positive my father wouldn't use language like that," she said. "In the first place, he wouldn't write a letter to Mr. Hume. My father wouldn't have time to write a letter. I don't know why anyone would do anything like that and sign my father's name. That is ghastly. It is very easy to get a hold of White House stationery.

"Mr. Hume is a very fine critic. He has a right to write as he pleases," Miss Truman said.

Advised later the White House had confirmed authorship of a letter, Miss Reathel Odum, secretary to Mrs. Truman, who accompanied Miss Truman to Nashville, said Miss Truman would make no comment.

Mr. Hume said in his review of the concert that Miss Truman "can not sing very well" and "is flat a good deal of the time."

"There are few moments during her recital," the review continued, "when one can relax and feel confident that she will make her goal, which is the end of the song . . .

"It is an extremely unpleasant duty to record such unhappy facts about so honestly appealing a personality. But as long as Miss Truman sings as she has for three years, and does today, we seem to have no recourse unless it is to omit comment on her programs altogether."

The note to Mr. Hume recalled anothe in which Mr. Truman said he wouldn't appoint John L. Lewis dog-catcher.

Mr. Lewis replied that Mr. Truman couldn't afford to name him dog-catcher or "he would have more brains in the dog department than in the Department of State."

The letter also follows a Truman letter of last August 29, which called the Marine Corps "The Navy's Police Force" and accused the Corps of "having a propaganda machine that is almost equal to Stalin's. Mr. Truman later apoligized for that one.

Although the note to Mr. Hume was "played down" in The News, appearing below the fold on page three, it created a furore among the Nation's newsgathering organizations. By 6 p. m. it was big news.

The Washington Post was swamped with calls. Newspapers all over the country wanted pictures of Mr. Hume and of the note. Early editions of the Nation's biggest morning papers "played up" the stories of the wire services and their Washington correspondents,

Time For Unity

The Republican Policy Committee's refusal on Thursday to adopt as an official objective of the party Senator Irving Ives' resolution demanding the resignation of Secretary of State Acheson has the virtue of giving time for some badly needed sober second thought. The resolution is to be submitted to the whole Republican Senate conference on Tuesday. It would be impossible to select a more inopportune moment for pressing this sort of partisan issue, and we are especially surprised to note Senator Ives' part in it. The imperative need in the present crisis is not for recriminations but for unity.

The strength of free men lies in their ability to draw together in emergencies. A splendid example of this ability has just been furnished to us by the British. Prime Minister Attlee's mission to this country won the instant and unqualified support of the opposition leader, Winston Churchill. There was no thought in Britain of using the tragic turn of events in Korea for narrow partisan advantage. There should be no thought of it here—either in respect of General MacArthur or in respect of Secretary Acheson. These men are on the firing line. There will be time enough later on to assess the responsibility for errors of policy which have brought us to the brink of disaster in the Far East. And when the assessment is made, there is not the slightest doubt that a heavy measure of guilt will be ascribed to many of those now crying for Mr. Acheson's scalp.

If the Republican Party as a whole should insist upon the ouster of Secretary Acheson, it would place itself under a plain obligation to define the foreign policy, especially in relation to China, which it thinks the country ought to pursue. Is it in favor of an all-out war to be waged on the Chinese mainland? Does it desire the abandonment of western Europe? What is its conception of bipartisanship? The Secretary's assailants, themselves divided, have hitherto found it much easier to carp than to offer constructive proposals. The replacement of Mr. Acheson by some fresh and less controversial personality may in due course prove desirable in the interest of national unity. But unity will certainly not be achieved by making him a scapegoat for misfortunes to which his critics were major contributors.

Hiss Verdict Upheld

The Circuit Court of Appeals in New York has done nothing to solve the mystery of Alger Hiss, but it appears to have removed any lingering doubts as to the fairness and legality of his conviction. Attorneys for Mr. Hiss pressed every conceivable challenge to the jury's verdict and Judge Goddard's conduct of the trial. At no point does it appear that they came close to convincing the circuit judges that there was any material weakness in the verdict. As Judge Harrie B. Chase, who wrote the opinion, and Judges Augustus N. Hand and Thomas W. Swan, who concurred, are eminent men of the law, their unanimous conclusion seems to establish the guilt of Mr. Hiss with about as much certainty as can be attained by the judicial process.

It is not the function of an appellate court, of course, to try a case over again. But the court did thoroughly comb through the record and found that "there was independent evidence sufficient as a matter of law, if believed and so considered by the jury, to substantiate the testimony of Mr. Chambers in compliance with the rule in perjury cases as to both counts." The opinion also analyzes enough of the testimony to indicate that it would have been very difficult for the jury to have arrived at any other verdict. No doubt Mr. Hiss will ask the Supreme Court to review the case, but as that court hears cases only in the interests of clarifying the law it may see nothing in a petition from Mr. Hiss that demands its attention.

There is every indication also that Mr. Hiss prefers to go to prison as a man of mystery, stoutly protesting that he never betrayed his trust as a State Department official. That, of course, is his privilege. At no point in our judicial process is a man required to confess or to testify against himself. Yet this cool and cynical perjurer ought to realize that his one chance of softening the attitude of the American people toward himself is to come clean and tell all he knows about the Communist spy ring that was apparently operating with his connivance. That service to his country would not in any degree wipe out his guilt or minimize the despicable nature of his offense, but it would doubtless make it easier for him to live with his fellow citizens when his term is over and with his own conscience in the meantime.

Universal Service

The resolution on military training announced Thursday by the Association of American Universities deals realistically with a disagreeable yet inescapable requirement of the current crisis. It recommends universal military training and service for all male youths on reaching the age of 18 or on completion of high school. A plea to the same effect by President James B. Conant of Harvard University makes a singularly opportune appearance in the current issue of Look magazine. Mr. Conant's article was written before the current crisis in American-Chinese relations developed and is supported by arguments without reference to that crisis. It is not often that the course of events coincides so nicely, from a writer's point of view, with the publication date of a periodical. In the light of what is going forward in the world today, Mr. Conant's case seems almost unanswerable.

To meet the Soviet challenge, Mr. Conant believes, as do the members of the Association of American Universities, that the United States will need to keep three to 3½ million men under arms in Europe and at home for years to come. This is an estimate in line with what President Truman has indicated as a necessary expansion of our armed forces. And in the light of what has happened lately in Korea, no realistic observer is likely to dispute it. The figure may have to be revised upward; there seems no imminent prospect that it can safely be diminished

The present system of Selective Service, with its provisions for deferment and exemption, seems unlikely to produce a force of this size. The proposed system of universal military training can provide only reserves. What is needed now—Mr. Conant says "the time of maximum danger is 1952-54"—is a trained force available for active duty wherever it may be needed. The Harvard president urges, therefore, that "every young man on reaching the age of 18 or on graduation from high school be enrolled in the service of Uncle Sam for two years, with a firm moral commitment on the part of the Government that, barring a global war, the service would be for only two years—the able-bodied to serve in the armed forces, those physically unfit to serve in other capacities at the same pay, which should not be high." The A. A. U. proposal is virtually the same.

As the head of a great educational institution, Mr. Conant can certainly not be considered unmindful of the drastic effects of such a program both on the country's colleges and on the education of the country's young men. Some colleges would probably be destroyed by it, and all of them, no doubt, would be hard hit. Many young men of promise might never resume schooling interrupted by military service. Nevertheless there seems much merit to his contention that "it would be better for most individuals to get their tour of duty in uniform over and done with before they enter college."

Perhaps, with an abatement of the current crisis, it would be possible for the armed services to send some of their young men to college while in uniform. The training of youth for the responsibilities of future leadership is an aspect of national security much too important to be ignored. But the imperative need at the present time to create a formidable force in being would seem to preclude proposals such as that advanced by the Trytten Report for deferring all men in the upper half of college classes or such as that recently put forward by the president of the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges that all draft eligibles select the period of their military service sometime between their eighteenth and twenty-sixth birthdays. Perhaps it even precludes the deferment of students already in college urged by the A. A. U.

Every deferment of a college-age youth will mean the drafting of an otherwise deferable reservist or veteran or industrial worker or husband or father. Even under Mr. Conant's plan, no more than about two million men can be tapped in the 18-20 age group. Selective Service will have to continue to provide the balance of the necessary total by calling older men. The program is a harsh one. But effective mobilization now seems the best possible way of achieving peace through what Mr. Conant calls "a real global stalemate."

No Room For Panic

Some of the panic that first afflicted official Washington over the Korean retreats has now been dissipated, although the grimness of the situation remains. In part the despair and indecision arose from surprise over the miscalculations of the Chinese intentions and capabilities and shock over having hopes of victory abruptly dashed. The evolution of a more reasoned view is fortunate, for panic induces a sort of paralysis of thinking.

What has caused the change is the conviction that an orderly plan is in operation. For example, the retreat of the Eighth Army, though forced, has by no means been a rout. Retreat calls for generalship no less than an offensive, and from all appearances the leadership has been masterly. No longer is there fear that the bulk of our men or even their equipment will be lost; there is now the knowledge that they can be evacuated if necessary. This applies particularly to divisions of the Tenth Corps, which has been trapped in northeast Korea. It is likely that these units can now be transported by sea to help bolster defenses farther down the peninsula. It is important to recognize the contributions of the South Koreans, some of whom have already been rescued, and of the delaying actions fought by the British and Turks.

Meanwhile the stout fight of the First Marines to reach the sea has brought heroism seldom paralleled in American history. The dropping of an entire bridge by the Air Force to aid their march is an unprecedented feat which exemplifies the teamwork that prevails. In all this the people of the United Nations can at least find the satisfaction that, although the situation is tough, their fighting men have not let them down.

Pooling Resources

President Truman and Prime Minister Attlee agree that prompt action is required to insure a fair distribution among our allies of strategic raw materials. American buying for stockpiling and rearmament, coinciding with a business boom that has increased civilian demands for such goods, has not only resulted in critical shortages but has also forced up prices, making it extremely difficult for European countries to finance, even if they could obtain, the materials needed to carry out their own rearmament plans. For instance, Mr. Attlee warns that defense production efforts will be seriously impaired unless Great Britain can secure more adequate supplies of such materials as cotton, sulphur, copper, zinc and aluminum. Wool, rubber and tin, the prices of which have risen to dizzy heights since the start of the Korean war, are also on the list of important and urgently needed materials. A combined allocations program is obviously essential.

An agreement has been reached to set up an organization similar to the Combined Raw Materials Resources Board of World War II but with broader representation, to supervise a working arrangement for the international apportionment of goods in short supply, and put a stop to competition in world markets for essential materials. The United States now has a much better understanding of the problems that such a board will have to solve. Government control agencies are rapidly accumulating information about the extent of our own resources, and the ECA has first-hand knowledge of the productive capacity of western European countries. With this data as a starting point, an international allocations agency will be in a position to formulate its plans with a minimum amount of delay.

The most difficult problem that will confront such an agency is that of working out plans country by country for the utilization of allocated materials after the allocations have been made. For unless restrictions are imposed on nonessential consumption of scarce materials, the purpose of the international program—to further rearmament—doubtless will be defeated. Here again the ECA, which has had a hard apprenticeship in trying to persuade European countries to make the most effective use of their limited resources, and the Organization for European Economic Recovery, which represents ECA participating countries, can provide invaluable advice and guidance.

The first step, however, is to create the machinery for obtaining an equitable international division of commodities. The next step should be a speed-up of our own control program to curtail nonessential civilian demands for strategic materials. To borrow words from the Gordon Gray report, we should stop the "senseless scramble for supplies for military and nonmilitary production both here and abroad and for the stockpile." This "senseless scramble" is more than a potential danger; it is an actuality and has already resulted in a good deal of irreparable damage to the price structure. International collaboration is imperative to prevent a progressive deterioration of conditions that would be extremely harmful to the defense efforts of all Atlantic Pact countries.

Voice From Moscow

The purpose of the Kremlin's policy in the Far East is to lock us up in Asia in conflict with the Chinese so as to leave Europe to the Russians. This is obvious to anybody with the normal quantum of brains, but for the benefit of those not so possessed, the Literary Gazette in Moscow drives the point home. "The Chinese Communist offensive in Korea," notes its political commentator, gleefully, "has shaken the foundations of the Atlantic Pact." If it has, the policy-makers should repair them quickly, and build an enduring edifice upon them without delay. Only in unity on the basis of a common effort and equality of sacrifice is there any strength nowadays.

THE NIGHT HAS SOUND

Along with the clock's tick
there is a new sound—
the sound of an old man's muffled weeping, and his feet walking up and down.
Late in the startled night,
I hear him in a distant room flung as with a dark cover scraping the minutes over and over, hard, hard in the night.

I know he has a letter in his hand, his son, the comfort of his age, gone to a new land,
the careful way,
the training and the work for a new and bloodier day.

Up and down, up and down, the old feet walk—
and they are walking in time with the ticking of the clock, and also they might in measure move with the distant and thoughtful who walks his post and thinks.
Time marches at its leisure with what I hear tonight.
An old man weeps alone.

Using The Bomb

It is certainly apparent and self-evident to any student or even observer of current world events, that the long predicted world battle between the white and yellow races is now a fact, and that such serious situation must be faced as a fight to the end for survival, and plans must be made on that basis.

With the Chinese lined up with the Russians—both are brothers under the skin in the yellow race—and ready to exterminate the white race, or subjugate all nations of that race, it is about time that the real seriousness of the situation be faced and actions geared thereto.

It is about time that our national leaders woke up from their appeasement dreams. When the early American settlers were faced with extermination by the Indians, did anyone hold back from the use of firearms against the Indians, who had only bows and arrows? What good is the atomic bomb in storage in the face of the fact that our American boys are being killed, burned and tortured to death in Korea while we hold back because of some ill-founded altruistic theory contrary to all evidence known to the world? Advice To McCarthy

The cause of exposing Communists in our midst which Senator McCarthy has been fighting has always had my wholehearted support.

But I fail to see his purpose in advocating impeachment of President Truman because he refused to accept the offer of the Chinese Nationalist troops for the Korean war. The fact is that the basic pattern of the Nationalist Government in Formosa has not changed in the least from what it was on the mainland of China. Military power is in the hands of the same utterly hypocritical and notoriously corrupt people—who think of personal gain first, last and all the time. This is shown by their dealings for arms and supplies in this country. One illustration that I myself know will suffice: Urgently needed ammunition was recently offered to the Chinese Nationalists by the United States Government, but the Taipeh authorities refused to provide any transport which they had available for carrying the ammunition to Formosa. Why? They are only interested in transactions from which they can make a personal gain.

It is well known that one of the main factors contributing to Chiang's failure was poor generalship and leadership. What miracle does McCarthy expect from the same group of soldiers under the same poor leadership, who kept running away from the Chinese Communists on the mainland of China, leaving all their valuable American military equipment behind for the Communists?

I am willing to wager if the Chinese Nationalist forces were used as a means of saving American fate in Korea, they would only dump a heap more trouble on Uncle Sam's lap, and the trouble would be even worse than the present crisis in Korea.

War On Communism

Have our leaders no sense of self-respect whatever? They send men to fight a war on one hand, and on the other stupidly employ themselves in the Security Council day after day sucking in the blasphemous pap which they allow the Communists to issue in never-ending routine, pretending bootlessly that the war for survival has not long since actually begun.

They naively proclaim that the Chinese people and the Russian peoples have been our friends for generations. For all that matters they might as well add that the Eskimos and the Cheyenne Indians are our friends, too. They surely know that they are not dealing with the Chinese people or the Russian people—they are dealing with international Communists who detest us thoroughly and who aim to destroy us and our way of life completely.

It is time for the United Nations to throw out bodily the Communist delegations and all that they stand for. It is time to admit that there will be no peace, no rest, no living until aggressive communism is totally destroyed.

I demand that my Government stop its disgraceful pretense in the United Nations and prepare for total war to back up the men who are dying for it in Korea.

Drafting Veterans

So Senator Tydings and Selective Service Director Hershey contemplate calling World War II veterans back into the Army!

If my husband is called back, after spending 33 months overseas with General Patton, Congress will hear no end to such an unjust dealing—while they allow thousands of conscientious objectors to be free of combat duty. How many of our Joes who went out to give their lives, believed in "killing their fellowman?" Yet they made their country a safe place in which the C. O. is so readily willing to live, and enjoy the blessings herein.

We are all citizens of the United States. What is necessary for one creed is necessary for all creeds in time of national crisis. Therefore, how can the military or Congress exclude certain creeds from their duty?

Costly Prejudice

The American people are spending millions of dollars in propaganda; men are being killed and wounded; lands are being torn up—all in the name of democracy and freedom. And in Washington, the nerve center of this activity, the people still wrap themselves up in their petty prejudices. The abolition of segregation and discrimination in this city would be in accord with the declared principles of the United States in its fight for democracy.

How then can we explain the recent ruling by the Board of Education which said there should be no mingling of whites and Negroes in the schools during school hours? Here is an example of barriers being erected where none existed before. As a result the National Symphony Orchestra now will be barred from performing for Negro children. Now, also, the Fisher Body Contest will be closed to them.

These are only two of the activities which have heretofore taken place with much profit to all participants, and which now must be considered "out of bounds." It is inconceivable that this ruling will be allowed to remain, and yet, unless it is actively contested, this and others which will surely follow will provide ammunition for the forces trying to end our civilization.

Reaction From Toledo

When the Toledo Blade comes out in your paper and tells some Senators why the people of Ohio voted for Taft, that's just a bum guess. They should interview some of the voters. I work in a large factory in Toledo, and by interviewing some workers I found that 7 out of 10 are getting tired and sick of this Administration's foreign policy and its do-nothingness about the Reds in the Government service. We have only this one newspaper in Toledo, but we hope some day Toledo will have another newspaper so men won't have to swallow all this bunk from the Toledo Blade.

Husbanding Our Resources

I read with great interest your November 30 editorial, "Reasons for Retreat," concluding with this wise and sensible statement:

"These (U. N. forces) probably would be ineffective, of course, if the Chinese were to commit their available forces in Manchuria for an all-out drive, causing consideration of withdrawal from Korea altogether."

The contingency to which you referred promptly happened, with overwhelming numbers of Chinese pouring in from Manchuria. Secretary Acheson, in his recent radio address, gave expression to the exact and unfortunate situation in which we find ourselves when he referred to it as an "unparalleled danger" and with the exclamation "Let us hope for the best but prepare for the worst!" Criticism of his address for lack of more terrifying or descriptive adjectives, would seem to be without justification.

We should prepare for the "worst," but exhausting our resources and permitting the slaughter of our men in Korea is certainly not preparing for the "worst," even if we win in the end; that would simply be playing into the hands of the enemy and aiding and assisting in the manifest plan of the Soviet for our exhaustion, prior to the final struggle on the battlefields of Europe. Even if we should later have a temporary success, we should not be misled by that, for the Chinese could easily prolong the war for 100 years, if the Soviet would provide the material.

We should prepare for the "worst" by husbanding, and not wasting, our resources. Senator Byrd has explained how we could reduce Government spending by approximately 10 billion dollars per annum. This estimate was confirmed by the Hoover Commission. Why is it that we cannot get action?

Taxing corporations excessively simply means taxing the working man and the individual stockholder, as that much money has to be withheld from them. We have to raise revenue by taxation but those in authority should see that a little sensible economy is practiced. On this subject of economy and debt, I beg to quote the following from Thomas Jefferson:

"I place economy among the first and most important virtues, and public debt as the greatest of dangers to be feared.

"To preserve our independence, we must not let our rulers load us with perpetual debt. We must make our election between economy and liberty or profusion and servitude. If we run into such debts, we must be taxed in our meat and drink, in our necessities and our comforts, in our labors and our amusements. If we can prevent the Government from wasting the labors of the people, under the pretense of caring for them, they must become happy."

These words of wisdom from our immortal Thomas Jefferson were prophetic of our present situation. No man is entitled to public confidence who is unwilling to prepare for the "worst" by practicing economy in our public expenditures, as well as in his personal affairs. WADE H. COOPER.

Garrison State Way Of Life

By Malvina Lindsay

Tests of Freedom

"IT SURE is an irony," began Mr. Hardpann, the self-appointed realist, "that tomorrow's going to be——"

"Human Rights day throughout the world" exclaimed Mr. Stellar, the widely labeled visionary.

"I was going to say," stuffily continued Mr. Hardpann, "that we'll hear a lot of fine talk and propaganda about the World Declaration of Human Rights. Yet people everywhere are slipping back into slavery. Look at even this country!"

"You mean the hysteria that's breaking down our basic concept of justice—that the accused is innocent until proved guilty?"

"I mean the right of a man to make an honest dollar without the Government sticking its nose in his business."

"All right. I'll share your worry if you'll share mine. I say it's high time we were taking inventory of our basic human rights now that we may have to live in a garrison state for years."

Mr. Hardpann's mouth sagged grimly. "We'll come out of this with Washington another Moscow."

"If we do, whose fault will it be? I don't say we won't have to give up some personal privileges to defend our fundamental rights. But this is the time to think about and guard at home the big basic principles we're advertising to the world."

Mr. Hardpann shook his head. "You might as well be realistic. In a military economy no individual counts for anything."

"HE DOESN'T! Look at the fog some loud and loose-mouthed individuals are raising right now! They're likely to raise more if danger and fear increase. Get the authoritarian man on the rampage and he'll get plenty done—at the expense of us who sit back silent."

"What I'm worried about are all these controls I see coming."

"You mean on speech, press, assembly, movement, religion——"

"No, on prices, production, profits, the way I run my business. I don't worry about that other stuff."

"Say, Rip Van Winkle, you'd better start worrying. That 'other stuff' is basic to your freedom in business. Where'd you be if you couldn't blow off about your business problems, write letters, sign petitions, join other businessmen in protesting injustices? You'd better get on to the fact that anytime even a crackpot's basic American liberties are curtailed, yours suffer just that much."

"Don't get me wrong, I'm 100 percent American. In fact I belong to the Sons of Leif—you know, Leif Erikson who beat Columbus to this continent by about 400 years. But I ask what good is a lot of talk about liberty going to do? Take this World Declaration of Human Rights. There are 30 rights there. Yet they say not even this country has all of them. Millions of people scarcely have any of them."

"But the more people talk about 'em, hear about 'em, think about 'em, the more likely they are to try to get 'em. All these observances around the world, tomorrow and next week, are the best propaganda this country could have for the things it stands for against the totalitarians."

"MAYBE SO. But I still don't see any practical action the average man can take."

"I do! He can start movements, campaigns, conversations, if nothing else, to get every American acquainted with his basic liberties under the Bill of Rights. How many people you'd stop in the street would know what these are? He can get them talked about more in the schools, the churches, in his clubs, among the neighbors. He can appoint himself a watchdog to see that these aren't violated for him or anyone else.

"But that's not enough," went on Mr. Stellar. "He can keep his liberties from getting rusty by using them more. Didn't General Eisenhower warn the other day of the decay of our freedom through neglect of people to use the ballot and also to use their right of free assembly to discuss public questions, scrutinize public legislation? What's more, the average man can alert himself to the new dangers besetting our basic personal liberties—such as character assassination by reckless charges, faked photographs, repeated lies, garbled half-truths. He can stand up to self-appointed vigilantes trying to intimidate him. And in his own lookout for traitors and spies he can guard himself against becoming a pint-size Stalin or Hitler—against using the very technique he's fighting against."

"That sounds fine enough. But getting it done——"

"Say, I have a hunch that with personal liberty being crowded to the wall by foreign enemies, we'll recapture some of the fire of enthusiasm they had for it in Revolutionary days. It'll soon seem more valuable, less shopworn, more to be treasured as well as fought for."

Turning To God

The voices of criticism, confusion and divided counsel are ringing today. Yet there is quiet agreement that what our Nation needs above all other needs is to draw ever nearer to our God for the cleansing of our hearts and the strengthening of our spirits. No mistakes any of our leaders can possibly make can be as great as the mistake of this Nation's failing, in this time of greatest peril ever known, to turn toward God as never before since the day it came into being.

Course In Asia

By Marquis Childs

Limited War With China

IT CAN hardly be described as light at the end of the tunnel of gloom in which Washington has been living for the past two weeks. But there is the outline of a reasonable approach to Korea shaping up out of the news that comes from the battle zone.

Childs

Still in the formative stage with by no means a complete agreement behind it, the plan rests on three over-all decisions. They are as follows:

1. To liquidate the commitment in Korea as quickly as possible but in an orderly and responsible manner. This would be done behind two or three perimeters protecting port cities. And planners are now confident these perimeters can be held.

Such a period of liquidation might take anywhere from two to three months. Not only the troops that have escaped from the Communist offensive but as much of their equipment as has been salvaged would be taken out of Korea. The bulk of the men, both Army and Marines, would be taken to Japan along with the equipment. This would make Japan stronger by a considerable margin than on June 25 when only four half-strength American divisions were stationed there.

With this should go an end of the reckless talk about a Dunkirk. Military men feel that some of the reporting out of Korea, which has made the retreat sound like a rout, has done great harm. The time has come to realize that this country is strong enough to suffer a defeat even though it is a serious one with far-reaching political implications.

2. CARRYING on a limited campaign against Communist China, calculated to prevent the Reds from launching a further campaign of aggression in Asia. Here, of course, is a question of degree on which there would conceivably be a lot of dissent.

In one phase there would be a coastal blockade of the Chinese mainland maintained by sea and air. In a more advanced phase Chinese Nationalist troops would be assisted in returning to the mainland to work with anti-Communist guerillas estimated at from 300,000 to 800,000, most of them in South China. The bombing of Chinese cities would be a third phase, which would risk total war with China and possibly Soviet Russia.

One point stressed in this connection is that our intentions should not be proclaimed to the world. In other words, we should not telegraph our punches so that the enemy knows in advance how to counter those punches.

Here, of course, not a little persuading of the British will be necessary. They are fearful of the loss of Hongkong with all that it would mean economically. Americans are resentful of the raw materials that leak into Red China by way of Hongkong. This has been one of the few differences of opinion of any importance during the Truman-Attlee talks.

3. NO commitment to send a single soldier or marine to fight on land anywhere in Asia. This is the present policy. And it is the hope of many that the Government will stand firm on this decision. The British would support it wholeheartedly, it is believed.

Those who think along the above lines are trying to put the Island of Formosa in realistic perspective. They know that in and of itself Formosa is not strategically vital to the security of the United States. If somehow—and no one knows quite how—Chiang Kai-shek and his army could be removed from the picture, Formosa might then be taken over peaceably by the government of Peiping.

But there appears no likelihood that this would satisfy Red China or that it would restore peace to Asia. With this demand met, Mao Tse-tung would immediately press other demands as Communist Chinese propaganda has already begun to do. There would be no stopping point just as there was no stopping point in Europe for Hitler.

Partly this grows out of a real fear for the Nation's security. But there also enters in the psychopathology of the conquering and fanatical dictator who cannot stop. A complication in China is the growing anti-Western, anti-American feeling that is being encouraged and exploited by the Peiping regime.

To many Americans, who are still apparently thinking in terms of a miracle to be worked through using the atomic bomb, this may seem bleaker even than the headlines. But at least it is a charted course which is in process of being worked out by those who know there are no miracles that will automatically wipe out the reverse suffered in Korea.

cy, who served under Gen. Robert E. Lee.

Short, as a boy, decided to emulate Grandfather Jones and become a soldier. He attended Virginia Military Institute at Lexington, Va., but something happened there to divert him. He fell under the spell of a political science professor, Col. William M. Hundley, who claimed he had once been a reporter. Hundley fascinated young Short with his description of the newspaper business, picturing it as a romantic life in which a reporter did everything but work.

Short became editor of The Cadet, VMI campus newspaper. His interest in soldiering fell off so that in 1925 he was graduated eighty-third in a class of 101. Leaving VMI, he went to Jackson, Miss., where he went to work for the Daily News at $20 a week.

Stoned In Traction Strike

Later, working on the New Orleans Times-Picayune, Short was stoned while covering a traction strike. He next turned up in Richmond, Va., where he worked for the Associated Press. In 1931 he came to the A.P. bureau in Washington. He covered the trial of Bishop James Cannon, scored a beat on the death of Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, and traveled with President Roosevelt.

Another Associated Press reporter at the time was Beth Campbell, who was covering Mrs. Roosevelt while "Joe" reported on the doings of F. D. R. They were married in 1937, and now live 3407 Gilden dr., Alexandria, Va., with their three children: Alexander, Stephen, and Victoria.

Short left the Associated Press in 1941 to join the Washington bureau of the Chicago Sun (now Sun-Times). In 1943 he transferred to the Washington staff of the Baltimore Sun.

Short was president of the National Press Club in 1948.

Acting Press Secretary Early, in making the announcement yesterday, said that Short would take a brief rest and assume office December 18. E. T. F.

Cairo Pledge May Be Useful

has the United States reminded them of it until now. The agreement, signed on Dec. 1, 1943, by President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, said it was the purpose of the three allies:

". . . That all the territories Japan has stolen from the Chinese, such as Manchuria, Formosa and the Pescadores, shall be restored to the Republic of China."

But in the next paragraph the declaration said:

"That aforesaid three great powers, mindful of the enslavement of the people of Korea, are determined that in due course Korea shall become free and independent."

Upheld by Stalin

Premier Stalin of Russia was not at the Cairo meeting, but at Potsdam in 1945, when Stalin was present, the United States, Britain and China declared that "the terms of the Cairo Declaration shall be carried out." And on August 8 of the same year, when Russia declared war on Japan, Premier Stalin announced adherence to the Potsdam pledge.

Whether or not the Cairo pledge becomes the basis of some future trade, the Americans and British have agreed that there shall be no negotiations involving Formosa now. Field Marshal Sir William Slim, chief of the Imperial General Staff, sided with the American Joint Chiefs of Staff during the recent meetings, and thought it would be dangerous to let Formosa fall into Communist control while Communist aggression continued in Asia.

Official and diplomatic circles here reported no evidence that the Chinese Communists were prepared to stop their aggression at the thirty-eight parallel in Korea. Until they stop, negotiations with them, even on Korea alone, is an academic question.

Gen. Eddy Nominated To Head New 7th Army

President Truman took another step toward building up United States forces in Europe yesterday by appointing Lieut. Gen. Manton S. Eddy as commander of the new Seventh Army in Germany.

The Seventh Army, with headquarters in Stuttgart, was created two weeks ago. It now consists of the First Infantry Division, the Fourth Infantry Regiment and constabulary forces of about one division. It is expected to be strongly reinforced later.

Eddy was commander of the Ninth Infantry Division and later the Twelfth Army Corps during World War II.

with arms expansion, brought to mind Winston Churchill's speech at Fulton, Mo., in 1946, when he said of the Russians: "I am convinced that there is nothing they admire so much as strength, and there is nothing for which they have less respect than for military weakness.

Peace Requires Strength

Said the Press and the Prime Minister yesterday:

Acheson to Give Fill-in On Talks to Congress

Secretary Acheson, under bitter attack from Capitol Hill, lost no time yesterday in seeking to give Congress a fill-in on the Truman-Attlee meetings.

As soon as the White House conference ended, the Secretary suggested to the chairmen of the Senate and House foreign policy committees that they hear the story from him as soon as possible.

Accordingly a joint meeting of the two committees was fixed for 10:30 this morning, and the Secretary will testify in executive session.

"We recognize that adequate defense forces are essential if war is to be prevented.

"Accordingly, we have reached the following conclusions:

"1. The military capabilities of the United States and the United Kingdom should be increased as rapidly as possible.

"2. The two countries should expand the production of arms which can be used by the forces of all the free nations that are joined together in common defense. Together with those other nations the United States and the United Kingdom should continue to work out mutual arrangements by wheih all will contribute appropriately to the common defense."

No Other Choice

The two leaders said that, in the state of the world as it is today, "our nations have no other choice but to devote themselves with all vigor to the building up of our defense forces."

They said they would do this purely as a defensive measure, and then went on to say in effect that the door was still open to Russia and China if they really wanted to translate their "peace" propaganda into the real thing.

"We believe," Mr. Truman and Mr. Attlee said, "that the Communist leaders of the Soviet Union and China could, if they chose, modify their conduct in such a way as to make these defense preparations unnecessary.

"We shall do everything that we can, through whatever channels are open to us, to impress this view upon them and to seek a peaceful solution of existing issues."

Both British and American officials who took part in the 5-day conference emphasized the importance, from a military standpoint, of the decisions reached on economic subjects. The concrete action that is contemplated is the organization of an international bodty to apportion for essential civilian needs, and for maximum defense production, a whole series of increasingly scarce raw materials.

The British contended, and the Americans agreed, that rearmament in Europe is dependent on keeping the economies of the North Atlantic nations on an even keel. That will be the purpose of the allocations mechanism.

President Truman and Prime Minister Attlee, it was learned, discussed various courses of action that might be taken in the event that Red China refuses to agree to a peaceful settlement in Korea. No firm decisions were taken because of the uncertainty of the battle situation.

Most military men assume that the Chinese are determined to drive the Yanks and their allies off the peninsula.

Prime Minister Attlee decided to ask for a conference here the day that President Truman said at a news conference that use of the atomic bomb in Korea was under consideration. One of his chief objectives in coming here was to obtain from Mr. Truman a promise that Britain would be consulted before any decision was made to use the bomb.

It was noted yesterday that, although Mr. Truman said he would keep Mr. Attlee "informed," he reserved for himself the right to make a final decision about the use of the bomb.

Mr. Attlee left the British Embassy for the National Airport yesterday before he had seen the printed copies of the joint communique. Acting White House Press Secretary Stephen T. Early rushed copies to him at the airport and they reached him just before he took off.

Stopping off at the Idlewild Airport in New York, en route to Ottawa, Canada. Mr. Atlee had this to say about his conference with the President:

"They were good talks and very well worthwhile."

Communique Issued By Truman and Attlee

Following is the text of the White House communique on the results of the five-day conferences between President Truman and Prime Minister Attlee of Great Britain:

Since Prime Minister Attlee arrived in Washington on December 4, six meetings between the President and Mr. Attlee have been held. Among those who participated as advisors to the President were the Secretary of State Dean Acheson, the Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder, the Secretary of Defense General George C. Marshall, the Secretary of Interior Oscar L. Chapman, the Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff General of the Army Omar N. Bradley, Mr. W. Averell Harriman, the Chairman of the National Security Resources Board W. Stuart Symington, and Ambassador-Designate Walter S. Gifford. Mr. Atlee's advisors included the British Ambassador, Sir Olver S. Franks, Field Marshal Sir William Slim, chief of the imperial general staff, Marshal of the Royal Air Force Lord Tedder, Sir Roger Makins and Mr. R. H. Scott of the foreign office and Sir Edwin Plowden, chief of the economic planning staff.

At the conclusion of their conferences, the President and the Prime Minister issued the following joint statement.

We have reviewed together the outstanding problems facing our two countries in international affairs. The objectives of our two nations in foreign policy are the same: to maintain world peace and respect for the rights and interests of all peoples, to promote strength and confidence among the freedom-loving countries of the world, to eliminate the causes of fear, want and discontent, and to advance the democratic way of life.

We first reviewed the changed aspect of world affairs arising from the massive intervention of Chinese Communists in Korea. We have discussed the problems of the Far East and the situation as it now presents itself in Europe. We have surveyed the economic problems and the defense programs of our respective countries, and particularly the existing and threatened shortages of raw materials. We have considered the arrangements for the defense of the Atlantic community, and our future course in the United Nations.

The unity of objectives of our two countries underlay all the discussions. There is no difference between us as to the nature of the threat which our countries face or the basic policies which must be pursued to overcome it. We recognize, that many of the problems which we have discussed can only be decided through the procedures of the Unied Nations or the North Atlantic treay organization.

The peoples of the United States and the United Kingdom will act together with resolution and unity to meet the challenge to peace which recent weeks have made clear to all.

The situation in Korea is one of great gravity and far-reaching consequences. By the end of October, the forces of the United Nations had all but completed the mission set for them by the United Nations "to repel the armed attack and to restore international peace and security in the area." A free and unified Korea—the objective which the United Nations has long sought—was well on the way to being realized. At that point Chinese Communist forces entered Korea in large numbers, and on November 27 launched a large-scale attack on the United Nations troops. The United Nations forces have the advantage of superior air power and naval support, but on the ground they are confronted by a heavy numerical superiority.

The United Nations forces were sent into Korea on the authority and at the recommendation of the United Nations. The United Nations has not changed the mission which it has entrusted to them and the forces of our two countries will continue to discharge their responsibilities.

We were in complete agreement that there can be no thought of appeasement or of rewarding aggression, whether in the Far East or elsewhere. Lasting peace and the future of the United Nations as an instrument for world peace depend upon strong support for resistance against aggression.

For our part we are ready, as we have always been, to seek an end to the hostilities by means of negotiation. The same principles of international conduct should be applied to this situation as are applied, in accordance with our obligations under the Charter of the United Nations, to any threat to world peace. Every effort must be made to achieve the purposes of the United Nations in Korea by peaceful means and to find a solution of the Korean problem on the basis of a free and independent Korea. We are confident that the great majority of the United Nations takes the same view. If the Chinese on their side display any evidence of a similar attitude, we are hopeful that the cause of peace can be upheld. If they do not, then it will be for the peoples of the world, acting through the United Nations, to decide how the principles of the Charter can best be maintained. For our part, we declare in advance our firm resolve to uphold them.

We consider two questions regarding China which are already before the United Nations . . . on the question of the Chinese seat in the United Nations, the two governments differ. The United Kingdom has recognized the Central People's government and considers that its representatives should occupy China's seat in the United Nations. The United States has opposed and continues to oppose the seating of the Chinese Communist representatives in the United Nations. We have discussed our difference of view on this point and are determined to prevent it from interfering with our united effort in support of our common objectives.

On the question of Formosa, we have noted that both Chinese claimants have insisted upon the validity of the Cairo declaration and have expressed reluctance to have the matter considered by the United Nations. We agreed that the issues should be settled by peaceful means and in such a way as to safeguard the interests of the people of Formosa and the maintenance of peace and security in the Pacific, and that consideration of this question by the United Nations will contribute to these ends.

The free nations of Asia have given strong support to the United Nations and have worked for world peace. Communist aggression in Korea increases the danger to the security and independence of these nations. We reaffirm our intention to continue to help them.

The pressure of Communist expansion existed in Europe and elsewhere long before the aggression against Korea, and measures were taken to meet it. The need to strengthen the forces of collective security had already been recognized and action for this purpose is under way. Clearly, decisions regarding the Far East have their repercussions and effects elsewhere. In considering the necessities of the Far Eastern situation, we have kept in mind the urgency of building up the strength of the whole free world. We are in complete agreement on the need for immediate action by all the North Atlantic Treaty countries to intensify their efforts to build up their defenses and to strengthen the Atlantic community.

We recognize that adequate defense forces are essential if war is to be prevented.

Accordingly, we have reached the following conclusions:

1. The military capabilities of the United States and the United Kingdom should be increased as rapidly as possible.

2. The two countries should expand the production of arms which can be used by the forces of all the free nations that are joined together in common defense. Together with those other nations the United States and the United Kingdom should continue to work out mutual arrangements by which all will contribute appropriately to the common defense.

We agreed that as soon as the plan now nearing completion in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization for an effective integrated force for the defense of Europe is approved, a supreme commander should be appointed. It is our joint desire that this appointment shall be made soon.

In addition to these decisions on increasing our military strength, we have agreed that the maintenance of healthy civilian economies is of vital importance to the success of our defense efforts. We agreed that, while defense production must be given the highest practicable priority in the case of raw materials whose supply is inadequate, the essential civilian requirements of the free countries must be met so far as practicable. In order to obtain the necessary materials and to devote them as rapidly as possible to these priority purposes, we have agreed to work closely together for the purpose of increasing supplies of raw materials. We have recognized the necessity of international action to assure that basic raw materials are distributed equitably in accordance with defense and essential civilian needs. We discussed certain immediate problems of raw materials shortages and consideration of these specific matters will continue. We are fully conscious of the increasing necessity of preventing materials and items of strategic importance from flowing into the hands of those who might use them against the free world.

In the circumstances which confront us throughout the world our nations have no other choice but to devote themselves with all vigor to the building up of our defense forces. We shall do this purely as a defensive measure. We believe that the Communist leaders of the Soviet Union and China could, if they chose, modify their conduct in such a way as to make these defense preparations unnecessary. We shall do everything that we can, through whatever channels are open to us, to impress this view upon them and to seek a peaceful solution of existing issues.

The President stated that it was his hope that world conditions would never call for the use of the atomic bomb. The President told the Prime Minister that it was also his desire to keep the Prime Minister at all times informed of developments which might bring about a change in the situation.

In this critical period, it is a source of satisfaction to us that the views of our governments on basic problems are so similar. We believe that this identity of aims will enable our governments to carry out their determination to work together to strengthen the unity which has already been achieved among the free nations and to defend those values which are of fundamental importance to the people we represent.

Rickey Decides to Keep Meyer as Pirates Manager

Good for Morale

War Shouldn't Stop Baseball—Rickey

By Jack Hand

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Dec. 8 (AP).—Branch Rickey said today he saw no reason why baseball, with quick and proper adjustment, should not continue in the event of full mobilization.

"I look for greater drafts and more of them on all clubs," said the Pittsburgh general manager. "I am not thinking in terms of two or three years from now. I already have in mind a war team. That is why I took Pete Reiser. I'd like to have three or four more of the same."

Branch Rickey

"We had a total mobilization last war," Rickey continued, "I know no reason why the same attitude by both baseball and the Government should't prevail again with quick and proper adjustments. If baseball served a purpose then it can now."

Rickey delved into the morale-building aspect of the situation.

"The Government, at great expense, undertook to divert servicemen from the monotony of their work," he said. "Baseball itself helped by touring war fronts as did entertainers.

"If that had a purpose, the same principle would seem to hold for the entire populace. Their morale would be at stake, too. I think we should hold on to anything that breaks up the monotony of distress."

RICKEY TOLD a press conference that baseball certainly does not want to do anything that could be considered even remotely as frustrating the war effort.

"If it can not be helpful it should be stopped," he said, "I think, properly related, it can help. I believe the government would want us to continue."

Rickey pointed out that Brooklyn Club in World War II once signed six players who never had played a professional game. He named them as Eru Palica, Gene Mauch, Cal McLish, Leroy Jarvis, Eddie Miksis and Tommy Brown. He pointed out that baseball, especially the minors, would have to dip into the 16-18 field again.

"I THINK baseball would adjust itself to the situation should and would," he observed.

Rickey, who flew in for the winter meetings, predicted few trades.

"Nobody is disposed to trade anyone," he said. "When I was with Brooklyn last summer I thought three or four deals might be made. But now standpatism is reigning."

Surveying the National League as it stands today, Rickey said Brooklyn is "the team to beat" with New York next. But he pointed to St. Louis as a team that would be in a favored position if mobilization comes.

As regards Pittsburgh he admitted "inadequate" pitching, and catching, a weak infield. He said his outfield was his strongest point. Once again he said "Kiner is as much a part of Pittsburgh club as I am."

Rickey arrived on the scene shortly before the minor leagues closed up shop at their forty-ninth annual convention.

BRUCE DUDLEY, president of the American Association, was elected to the executive committee to succeed Frank Shaughnessy, president of the International League. Herman White, president of the Northern League, was named chairman of the committee.

The minors loosed a blast at the majors' practice of running excursions from minor league cities. They condemned the practice in a resolution and asked the majors to try to avoid conflict between excursions and home dates of minor league clubs.

Columbus will be the site of the fiftieth, or "Jubilee" convention of the National Association of Minor Leagues next year.

D. C. Kids Flock to Uline Arena Today for Caps' Basketball Clinic

About 5000 Washington youngsters will get a free lesson in how to play basketball from professionals—the Washington Caps—at a clinic 1 p. m. today at Uline Arena.

The Caps will demonstrate their favorite shots and plays, and will explain how they execute them. Six high school teams will pair off in 10-minute scrimmages with the Caps interrupting to point out mistakes and suggest corrections.

The six teams are McKinley Tech, Eastern, St. Albans, Gonzaga, St. John's and Bethesda-Chevy Chase.

Each clinic pupil will also get a Junior Caps button, entitling him to attend future Cap games at a special 25 cents admission, a booklet on how to play basketball by Minnesota Coach Ozzie Cowles and autographed pictures of the Caps.

CINCINNATI, Dec. 8 (AP).—Ezzard Charles, world's heavyweight champion, received $17,591 for defending his title against Nick Barone here last Tuesday night, City Boxing Secretary George Murphy said today.. Barone, who was knocked out in the 11th round, received $7,243.

Duke's Wade Named Czar Of Southern Conference

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Dec. 8 (AP).—Wallace Wade, head football coach at Duke University since 1931, tonight was elected as first commissioner of the Southern Conference, effective next January 1.

He will remain with the university until that time when he will sever his connection with the school and proceed with plans for the establishment of a commissioner's office, the site of which he has not yet determined.

Duke, meanwhile must look around for a new head coach to replace Wade whose 7-3 record this year was his best since his 1941 team won 9 out of 10 games.

Eddie Cameron, Duke director of athletics and backfield coach, had no comment on Duke's plans.

The surprising swiftness with which Wade was swept into office after the conference had appeared to be on the verge of abandoning the commissionership idea, at least for the time being, left Duke suddenly without a coach.

Wade's successor appears to be either Cameron or more likely Ace Parker, Duke backfield coach.

Cameron served as head coach from 1942 through 1945 while Wade was in the Army. Parker, an All-America halfback at Duke in 1937, is Wade's favorite assistant coach and insiders believe he'll favor Parker to succeed him.

Frosh Rule Reconsidered

In a more positive mood, the group voted, without dissenting voice, to return the annual March basketball tournament to Raleigh after three years in Duke's indoor stadium at Durham.

The tourney was moved from Raleigh when host team N. C. State was no longer able to adequately house the games. But its new, 12,500-seat Reynolds Coliseum is not available and will be the scene of the March 1-3 event.

These were the major actions:

The conference voted that the freshman rule may be suspended by mail ballot if other conferences abolish it "or if a national emergency arises which reduces greatly college enrollments."

The scheduling of contests against professional teams in any sport where admissions are charged was prohibited.

Transfer students will not be eligible to play on freshman teams and will be eligible for varsity competition only after meeting the one-year residence requirements.

Beginning with the next academic year, eligibility of seniors for winter and spring sports after participating in all-star football games will terminate with such participation.

Refs Gets $10 Raise

Some basketball tournament changes were put into effect. A team will be allowed 12 players instead of 10 on its tournament squad and expenses for a 15-man party. Basketball officials will receive a $10 raise to $35 per game, plus 7 cents mileage, a 1-cent increase.

The tournament winner will automatically qualify as the section's representative in the National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament.

The following 1951 tournaments were awarded:

Cross country—Duke. Fall date to be selected.

Indoor track—North Carolina, February 24.

Outdoor track—North Carolina, May 18-19.

Wrestling—VMI, March 5-6.

Baseball—May 18-19, double elimination tournament involving two top teams of both divisions, site to be announced later.

Tennis—Davidson, May 10-12.

Golf—To be decided later by the golf committee.

In Coaches' Poll

Caldwell Is Coach of Year

NEW YORK, Dec. 8 (AP).—Charley Caldwell's cup really runneth over.

On the heels of receiving the Lambert Trophy for his Princeton football team, voted best in the East, the mild-mannered, bespectacled Tiger mentor today was named "coach of the year" in the Nation-wide poll of football coaches by Scripps-Howard newspapers.

Caldwell, whose single wing legions swept through the season without a setback to the Ivy League championship, was the first-place choice of 111 cocahes.

Lynn (Pappy) Waldorf, who sent his California Bears into the Rose Bowl for the third straight year, was second with 50 votes followed by Oklahoma's Bud Wilkinson, with 42.

Waldorf won the honor in 1935 while at Northwestern. Wilkinson was named "coach of the year" in 1949.

Others high in the voting were Gen. Robert Neyland of Tennessee, 34; Blair Cherry of Texas, 22; Ivan Williamson of Wisconsin and Clarence Munn of Michigan State, each with 13, and Frank Howard of Clemson, 11.

Bulldogs Down As 7½-Point Underdog

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

A football will be dropped by parachute on Byrd Stadium at 1:25 this afternoon and five minutes later Georgia and Texas A&M will begin kicking it and each other around in the Presidential Cup Game.

The clash between the high-scoring Southwestern Conference Aggies and the defensive-minded Southeastern Conference Bulldogs is under the sponsorship of the D. C. American Legion, which will use the game's profits for its rehabilitation work.

Although Legion officials are predicting a crowd of 25,000 for their ambitious venture, advance ticket sale last night indicated a crowd of only 11,000 for the postseason affair in the 43,000-capacity Maryland University Stadium.

Ten thousand unreserved seats at $2.40 apiece go on sale at 9 o'clock this morning at the stadium. The weather prediction calls for a cloudy (no rain) day with temperatures in the 30s.

Aggies 7½ Point Favorites

For Georgia, which will be playing its twelfth game of the season, it will be the seventh postseason appearance in 11 years under Coach Wally Butts.

Butts' colorful Bulldogs have been beaten in only one bowl game—in the 1949 Orange Bowl by another Southwest Conference team, the University of Texas.

Coach Harry Stiteler's Aggies are 7½-point favorites to deal the Bulldogs their second postseason setback today.

Both teams arrived yesterday. The Bulldogs, with a 53-man squad, came up by train, along with 200 well-wishers, in the morning and worked out at College Park in the afternoon.

The Aggies, delayed by engine trouble at Memphis, didn't arrive at National Airport until 5:30 and were immediately taken to College Park for a limbering up session under the lights at old Byrd Stadium.

Georgia's best performance in a season which saw the Bulldogs win six, lose two and tie three, were the 27-7 victory over Maryland and a 14-7 loss to Alabama, which finished with a rush.

The high-scoring Aggies top shows came against Oklahoma's Sugar Bowlers, whom they held to a 6-point last-minute victory, and S. M. U., whom they licked, 25-20.

Coach Stiteler's Aggies rolled up 304 points in 10 games, while the Bulldogs scored only 158 in 11 games. On the other hand, the

It Looks Like Don Gehrmann Won After All

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

It's practically official now. Don Gehrmann of Wisconsin, not Fred Wilt of New York, won the disputed Wannamaker Mile race at the Milrose Games in New York 10 months ago.

Three national AAU committees, meeting at the Shoreham Hotel here yesterday, backed up Gehrmann, and their decision will likely be rubber stamped as final by the AAU's assembly this afternoon.

Wilt and Gehrmann finished practically neck and neck in their race last January. The two first place judges declared Wilt the winner, but were overruled by the second and third place judges and Chief Judge Asa Bushnell, secretary of the Olympic Committee.

The question was: Could the two first place judges be legally overruled? The committees, which decided "yes" were a special seven-man investigating group, and the executive and the track and field committees.

An amendment will be offered today leaving all future similar decisions up to the first place judges alone. There seemed to be considerable sentiment in its favor.

Two American hurdles records, set here during the past year by Dick Attlesey of Los Angeles A. C. and Jim Gehrdes of Penn State, were also approved by the rules and procedures and the track and field committees. They're sure to be put into the record books by the assembly today.

Attlesey ran the 110-yard high hurdles in 13.6 seconds at College Park on June 24. It will go up for

Gussy Moran's Car Figures in 3-Way Crash in Ottawa

OTTAWA, Dec. 8 (AP).—Gorgeous Gussy Moran smacked her Cadillac into a telephone pole in a three-car pile-up on an Ottawa street last night.

The accident occurred while Gussy was heading for Montreal with the rest of Bobby Riggs' touring pros after matches here. Big Jack Kramer, the headliner of the troupe, ran his station wagon into the curb. Miss Moran, right behind him, swerved into the pole and her car got a smashed headlight. A third car hit the curb behind them.

No one was hurt.

Caps Release O'Keefe, Take Sawyer Back

With a sudden change of heart, Coach Bones McKinney yesterday reinstated Rookie Alan Sawyer on the Washington Caps' active player list and asked waivers on Dick O'Keefe.

Sawyer, placed on waivers by the Caps a week ago and unclaimed, will be back in uniform for tonight's National Basketball Association game against New York, 8:30 o'clock at Uline Arena.

In Baltimore, it was announced that the Bullets have sold 7-foot Don Otten to Fort Wayne, apparently settling the squabble over Washington's sale of Otten to Baltimore a week ago.

Baltimore claimed that Otten was out of condition, and demanded that Washington refund the money the Bullets paid for him. The Caps replied that Otten was sold in good faith, and they would not call off the deal. The matter was placed in the hands of League President Maurice Podoloff.

The Caps' third choice in last summer's college draft, Sawyer stands 6 feet, 5 inches, and hails from UCLA. O'Keefe, 6-2, and a Santa Clara alumnus, had been a Cap since 1947. He was noted for his defensive play, particularly against Philadelphia's heralded Joe Fulks.

The Caps have lost seven of their last eight games, and perhaps McKinney is hoping that Sawyer, grateful of a new chance to make the grade, may pull them out of their slump.

The only other time New York visited Uline this fall, it defeated Washington, 87-82, and on Thanksgiving night, at Madison Square Garden, the Knicks blasted them, 109-78.

Hoyas Romp, 80 to 59, Over St. Francis

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Mike Vitale put a lot of vitality in a sluggish Georgetown attack and the Hoyas pulled away to an 80-59 victory over St. Francis of Loretto, Pa., last night at Uline before 1491.

Vitale, a junior, got the sputtering sophs going in the middle of the first half and was a key man in the drive that gave them a 44-26 halftime lead.

After intermission, Vitale dropped two quick field goals and Buddy O'Grady's boys coasted the rest of the way for their second victory of the young season.

It didn't look like it was going to be that easy at the outset. After five minutes, the visitors held an 8-7 lead in a game that was slowed to a walk—to both foul lines.

The officials kept up a blistering pace all the way. One was Washingtonian Arnold Heft; the other, fittingly, went by the name of Sterling Fowle.

Vitale seemed to give the Hoyas the spark they needed but wound up fourth among the high scorers. Big Bill Dogler and Bob Makatura, who scored 13 of the winners' first 14 points, tallied 17 and 14 points, respectively.

Barry Sullivan, who apears to be the real Hoya hot shot, also had 14.

St. Francis came in touted as a high-scoring team but Georgetown's defense stopped it cold in the first half. The Hoyas effectively blocked the middle while pulling out to their big margin.

Center George Banchansky was the only Pennsylvanian hitting the hoop. His eight field goals and three foul goals gave him scoring honors for the evening.

Bill Wanish, who came here with an 833-point total for two seasons with St. Francis, made exactly one basket and two fouls. Wanish is the boy who played at Maryland three seasons ago. A freshman for one semester, he was on the Terp varsity for a spell.

Before the game, Wanish said he was at Maryland on a football scholarship but left school of his own accord when he banged up a knee.

In the preliminary, the Hoya Frosh defeated American U. Frosh, 90-74, with two boys doing practically all the scoring. John Vail had 34 points for the Hoyas; Lou Gigante, 28. Bob Snedden led the losers with 24.

TV Educational Benefit?

Antics of Rasslers, Roller Skaters Said to Teach Kids to 'Play Dirty'

DETROIT, Dec. 8 (AP).—Television wrestlers and roller skaters are teaching children to "play dirty," the head of the Detroit department of parks and recreation complained today.

Superintendent John J. Considine told his staff to rule out in supervised play periods the tactics used by "alleged wrestling and skating stars" on TV programs.

Considine told of a school girl who he said sent her playmate sprawling on a roller skate rink because she had seen such tactics on television.

"And one young wrestler rammed his knee into his opponent's chin, shouting 'this is the way they did it on TV last night,'" Considine said.

He said youngsters have started "to look upon these ridiculous second-rate ham actors as heroes" and added:

"The things these clowns pass off as sport do more to teach children dirty playing than we can do to teach them good clean sportsmanship."

Billy Has Year to Go On Contract At $40,000

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., December 8 (AP).—Branch Rickey announced today Billy Meyer will manage the Pittsburgh Pirates in 1951.

Meyer has been at Pittsburgh under a two-year contract with still a year to go under the pact. His salary is reported to be $40.000.

Selection of Meyer was the last major league managerial post to be nailed down. There was some doubt that Meyer might stay on with the Pirates after Rickey sold his Brooklyn stock and moved to Pittsburgh as general manager.

Manager of Year in 1948

Meyer, whose home is at Knoxville, Tenn., was not at the press conference where Rickey announced the appointment.

The Pirate general manager, sitting shirt-sleeved in the hotel room, said Meyer would not attend the major league meeting here.

Meyer was the last of the 16 major league managers to be definitely set for 1951.

Meyer, who is 57, started with the Pirates in the 1948 season after a long tour of service in the New York Yankee farm system.

Rickey told the conference he had talked with Meyer several times but only told him yesterday he would be retained as manager. He explained Meyer's holdover contract had nothing to do with Meyer's retention.

Meyer's first year at Pittsburgh was his best. His club finished fourth that year and he was named the manager of the year for pulling the Pirates up to that position.

Pirates Finished in Cellar

Pittsburgh slipped to sixth place in 1949 and flopped into the cellar last season after being picked at the start to finish high in the second division. Instead, the Pirates wound up 33½ games out of first place.

Meyer has been in baseball since 1910. In his playing days, which he ended in 1928, he was a catcher. Most of his backstopping was in the minors, but he had a brief fling in the majors.

He started his managerial career in 1926 and his clubs won nine pennants.

At his home near Knoxville Meyer said:

"Mr. Rickey and I are in complete agreement on plans for the building of the Pittsburgh Club."

"Our primary function this coming season will be to develop the club and get rid of the dead weight, or the type of players minus the winning attitude."

Fighting Gal Comes From Last to Win

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

CHARLES TOWN, Dec. 8.—E. M. Warner's Fighting Gal, a daughter of Fighting Fox, fought her way from last position into a smashing victory in the Frederick Purse featuring the Friday program.

Jockey Vernon Brush brought the 4-year-old home a length in front of J. J. O'Neill's Master Harold, the longest shot in the field of eight. Third money went to Joe Valilia's Tick Out.

Fighting Gal, installed the favorite, paid a $4.20 mutuel to her legion of backers and was clocked in 1:19 1/5 for the about six furlongs run over a muddy track but under spring-like skies.

Tink set most of the pace but faltered when Master Harold challenged. The longshot drew out after taking over the lead, but could not cope with the closing punch of Fighting Gal, engineered by the veteran Bush.

2 Foul Claims Disallowed

Two foul claims were disallowed during the afternoon. In the fourth race, T. I. Holt's Grab Bag was the winner over Justin Funkhouser's Yipiyadee. Dick Williams, who rode the latter made the objection against Apprentice Doyle Gardner. Grab Bag paid $6.

The protest in the fifth was registered by Johnny Regalbuto, who was third with A. T. Allen's Unaided, against Stanley Austin who finished second with Jimmy Stuart's Ranger Mosby. The winner was V. Galatto's May First, paying $20.60.

The daily double on the 9 and 7 combination paid $92.60. A. H. Livingstone's Hurinow, a $10.40 shot, won the first race under strong and fearless riding by Jockey Hubert McKinney. Mrs. Mary Robinson's Regalon galloped along in front to take the second event to the tune of a $14.20 mutuel.

Steady Flyer Breaks Bone

Steady Flyer, owned by Wayne Kendrick of Washington suffered a broken seismoid bone in the third race but efforts will be made to save the well-bred juvenile. Bull Hyde, owned by J. A. Eyesler 3d, was the winner in the role of a $4.40 favorite.

The stewards announced today that Jockey Ronald Brigley, who was aboard See D, yesterday when that horse was disqualified after winning at 50-1, has been suspended for 10 days for rough riding.

Bill Bennings

Dear Folks: At Charlestown Track regulars are still amazed at the fact that six races were run off here in less than two hours when the Thursday program was delayed by a power failure. Remarkable feat considering the storm, two photo finishes, a foul claim and a disqualification. The program brought betting of $182,000 to make it the second best wagering day of the meeting to date. Tommy Kane is the hot apprentice boy here. Like Culmone, he refuses to be awed by the old time riders. The first weekend card here is topped by the Dundridge Purse, a sprint of about four and one half furlongs. Racing Secretary Freddie Burton has lined up some good 3 year olds for the test, including Blue Rocket, Love Lock and Little Orchid. For those who prefer distance racing, there are events at a mile and one sixteenth, mile and an eighth and a mile and a quarter. See you on the rail—BILL.

Next Move And Assault Also Threats

By Bob Myers

INGLEWOOD, Calif., Dec. 8 (AP).—Eight challengers for the richest purse of the year, topped by Noor and Hill Prince, today were named to race in the $100,000 Hollywood Gold Cup tomorrow.

Noor, the handicap wonder from Ireland, running under the familiar red and white silks of Mrs. Charles S. Howard, and Hill Prince, already acclaimed as the "horse of the year" for his Virginia owner, Christopher T. Chenery, dominate all pre-race predictions.

But there will be six others in the eleventh running of the Hollywood Turf Club classic, and the chance for one of those startling upsets is ideal.

Running against the big pair over the mile and one quarter route will be the powerful Calumet Farm's Ponder, the King Ranch's one-time king, Assault; Alfred G. Vanderbilt's 3-year-old filly queen, Next Move; Isador Bieber's Palestinian; E. O. Stice & Sons' On Trust, and John du Bois Wack's Great Circle.

The purse is a flat $100,000 net to the winning owner, exceeding the year's other biggest pot, the $97,000 collected by Noor last February when he won the Santa Anita Handicap.

Turf Club officials were promised perfect weather and expected upward of 55,000 to witness the race, which would be the largest turnout by far at the waning meeting here.

There were no surprises when the entries closed, but two Argentine eligibles who had been considered, Repeluz and Miche, decided to skip the battle and wait for a race which isn't packed with such tremendous talent.

Experts broke the field into groups, leading off with Noor and Hill Prince. The 5-year-old Irish horse probably will be a slim choice by the bettors, who will discount Noor's four-length loss to Prince October 7 in the Jockey Club Gold Cup at Belmont Park.

They are equally weighted at 130 pounds apiece. Their jockeys, Eddie Arcaro on Hill Prince and Johnny Longden on Noor, are superb riders. Noor won his first start since Octotber in blistering fashion. The Prince was impressive in losing by a nose and a neck to Your Host and Ponder here in the Thanksgiving Day Handicap.

Back of them come Ponder, Next Move and Assault, while Palestinian, On Trust and Great Circle are regarded as distinct longshots.

Ponder will have Steve Brooks aboard.

The Field:

PONDER (Steve Brooks)	125
ON TRUST (Bobby Permane)	110
GREAT CIRCLE (Ralph Neves)	112
PALESTINIAN (Gordon Glisson)	122
ASSAULT (Johnny Gilbert)	121
NEXT MOVE (Eric Guerin)	116
HILL PRINCE (Eddie Arcaro)	130
NOOR (Johnny Longden)	130

Navy Favored In Frostbite Sailing on Potomac

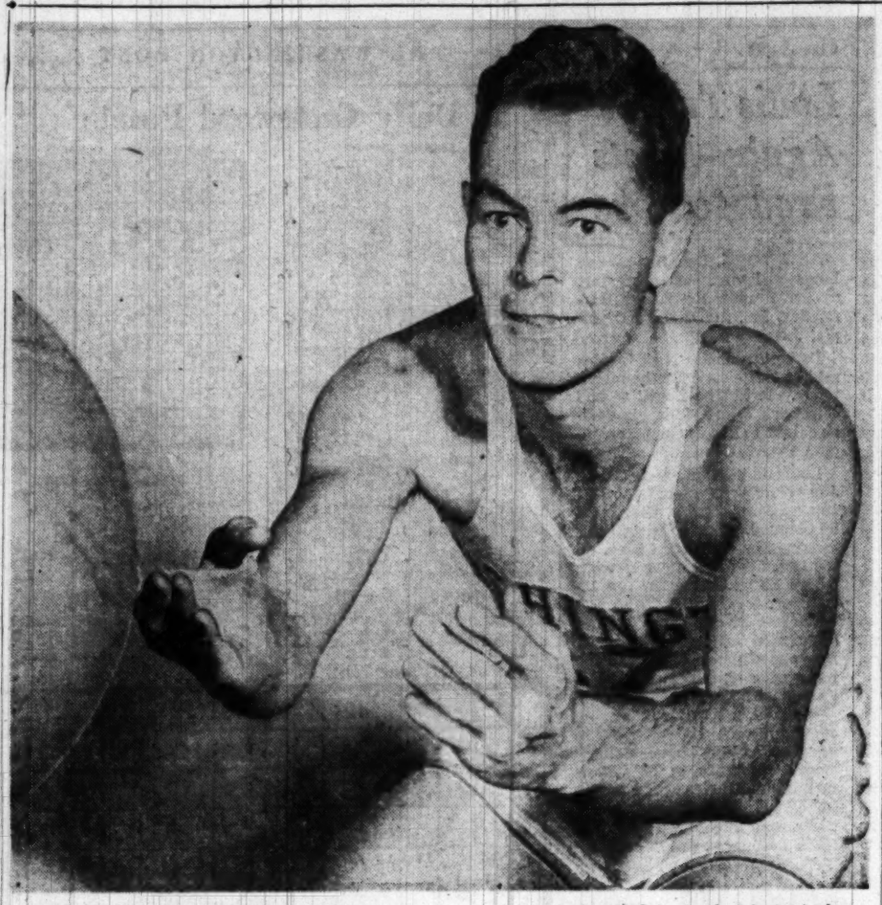
Navy will be favored in the third annual Marvin-Gorman-Byrd trophy for college sailing teams from the Middle Atlantic, New England and Midwest on the Potomac River this weekend.

Nine colleges are entered in the frostbite dinghy sailing.

Besides Navy, George Washington, Georgetown, Maryland and Catholic U. will represent the Middle Atlantic area. Toledo and Denison are coming from the Midwest and Harvard and the Coast Guard from New England.

Navy won the Middle Atlantic championship, its fall invitational regatta and the Greater Washington championship.

Its starting crew will be Bill Lepthien of Milwaukee and Bill Gallinger from Lake Geneva, Wis. Jack Martin from Annapolis, but sailing for the University of Maryland, will be the College Parkers' main hope.



BACK WITH CAPS—Alan Sawyer (above) was reinstated by the Washington Caps after being released about a week ago. He set a 4-year scoring record at UCLA, stands 6 feet 5 inches. He will play against the New York Knicks tonight at Uline Arena. (See story, Page 14)

Expensive Failure

Baseball Healthier As Bonus Rule Dies

By Red Smith

NEW YORK, Dec. 8 (NYHT.).—Baseball's bonus rule is dead. This was an adventure in asininity undertaken for the laudable purpose of helping the rich get richer, and is now abandoned as a complete and expensive failure. The 57 minor leagues, in convention in St. Petersburg, Fla., have voted to expunge the rule from the books; their action will be ratified by the majors next week.

Red Smith

The rule was designed to curtail extravagant bidding for rookie ball players. In order to penalize the spendthrifts, it was provided that when a club paid a boy $6000 or more to become a professional, he could be farmed out only one season and then must be brought up to the majors willy-nilly, hot or cold, ready or not, he must remain a big leaguer thereafter unless his owners were willing to lose him for a fraction of his original cost.

The rule had no effect whatever on competitive bidding for schoolboys, or for unschooled boys, for that matter. Clubs offered as much as $125,000 for adolescents whose voices were just changing, kids who could do nothing but squeak, "gimme," in a childish treble. In a few cases, notably those of the Phillies' Curt Simmons and Robin Roberts, the boys turned out to be worth the investment.

Far more often, the bonus player had to be tucked away on the bench like a Ming vase on a shelf. There he sat, festering in the bosom of the ball club.

THE WORKERS in the hive resented the presence of the opulent drone who was getting rich doing nothing. They begrudged him his place on the roster, which could otherwise have been filled by a workman who might help them get a slice of World Series swag. Worst of all, the kid himself was wasting the vital formative years that should be spent studying the facts of baseball life through a bus window in the Three Eye League.

That's what happened when a club was honest in observance of the rule. There is no shadow of doubt that some clubs cheated, paying bonuses and concealing that fact. With, of course, the connivance of the boy. They made kids partners in deception.

For some or all of these reasons, Happy Chandler agitated for repeal of the bonus rule a year ago. Happy was absolutely right. Everybody knew he was. But the clubs that were (A) too cheap to pay bonuses or (B) dishonest enough to evade the rule, wanted to make the big spenders like the Phillies and Red Sox and Yankee suffer a little longer because of their extravagance. So the repeal move was defeated a year ago.

Now that repeal is coming, some kids like the Yankees' Jackie Jensen, who have great possibilities and would have welcomed a chance to improve in the minors, can be sent out to get ready for the big leagues. Perhaps some have spoiled on the bench, but some can be salvaged.

REPEAL WILL also relieve the Commissioner of any responsibility which he may feel with regard to investigating charges of cheating on the bonus rule. His sense of responsibility in this connection does not appear to have been great. In an interview last spring, the Phillies' president, Bob Carpenter, blew the whistle on some cases where he strongly suspected hanky-panky. If Chandler ever inquired into these cases, the fact was not made public.

The minors have also voted to relax the high school rule so that baseball men may talk business with members of the senior class. If the majors follow this lead, it will simply mean that baseball is preparing for war and wants free access to all sources of talent.

There have been wide misconceptions about the intent and the effects of the high school rule. As drafted originally by the Major League Executive Committee, it was a reciprocal agreement with a single conference of high schools whereby baseball promised not to professionalize players in the conference, and the conference promised to promote baseball, make its coaches refrain from acting as scouts for individual professional teams, and so on.

IT WAS FURTHER provided that the Commissioner might make similar agreements with any other conferences or individual schools. Instead of making reciprocal arrangements, he simply declared the rule applicable to all high schools and all high school students. That was a politician declaring, "We are not going to deprive any boy of formal education."

The Commissioner had no authority to interpret the rule thus, but when Leslie O'Connor, then running the Chicago White Sox, challenged him on this point, the timorous owners in the American League induced O'Connor to back down. Thus encouraged, Chandler extended the rule even further. He made a high school diploma prerequisite to a career in baseball, a condition which would have barred a lot of buys like Rube Waddell, who couldn't have got through high school in 60 years.

A year ago, the owners slapped Happy down and passed a rule providing that a boy would be eligible for baseball when the class with which he entered high school had been graduated. Probably they'll go further this year, either opening the door wide or at least leaving it ajar for those who wish to professionalize schoolboys.

Too bad, the high school rule could have been a good thing, a means of helpful cooperation between organized baseball and organized high school groups. Happy loused it up.

Middlecoff, Oliver Beat Reigel, Bolt

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 8 (AP).—Tony Penna, who hasn't won a major tournament in two years, and Bob Toski, twenty-eighth ranking professional, overcame a two-hole deficit today to upset Ed and Marty Furgol, 2 and 1, and move into the semifinals of the $10,000 Miami international four-ball golf tournament.

The team of Pete Cooper, Ponte Vedra, Fla., and Claude Harmon, Mamaroneck, N. Y., continued the blistering pace they started yesterday and soundly trounced Gene Kunes, Hollywood, Fla., and Steve Warga, Miami, 6 and 5.

Defending Champion Cary Middlecoff, Ormond Beach, Fla., and Ed (Porky) Oliver, Seattle, Wash., were forced to come from behind to beat Tommy Bolt, Durham, N. C., and Skee Reigel, Tulsa, Okla., 2 and 1.

Dave Douglas, Newark, Del., and Jim Turnesa, Briarcliff, N. Y., trailed, 2 down, at the end of nine holes as Bill Nary, Chino, Calif., and Joe Kirkwood, jr., teamed to card a best ball of five-under-par 31, then they buckled down to stroke a 2-1 victory. It was the most spectacular comeback match of the quarter-final round.

The Toski-Penna team is matched with Cooper and Harmon and Middlecoff and Oliver meet Douglas and Turnesa tomorrow in the semifinals. Both the semifinals and the finals are 36-hole matches.

Ed Furgol, Royal Oak, Mich., and Marty of North Hollywood, Fla., yesterday upset the top-seeded team of Sammy Snead and Jim Ferrier and were favored to breeze past the Toski-Penna team. Ed canned a 11-foot putt on the first green to take a birdie four and it looked like a walkaway.

The Furgols went two-up on the fourth as both Toski and Penna were one over par four. But Toski holed a 10-footer for a birdie two on the eighth and both Furgols were over par on the ninth, evening the match.

Little Penna, whose last victory was the North and South Open in 1948, dropped an 8-footer to win the tenth and take a one-up lead. The Cincinnati veteran canned a 20-footer on the twelfth for a two-up margain and the foursome shot even golf through the seventeenth, where the match ended.

The Cooper-Harmon team, which yesterday carded a seven-under-par 29 on the front side, have played 47 holes of match play without a "bogie," one over par. As in their round yesterday, the pair teamed perfectly with sizzling putters to card a 32 on the front side and wind up their match on the thirteenth hole five under par.

Louis Tries Again—Meets Fred Beshore

NEW YORK, Dec. 8 (AP).—Joe Louis will make his next start against Freddie Beshore of Harrisburg, Pa., in Detroit's Olympia, January 3.

Detroit promoter Nick Londes said he had closed for the match today. It will be Louis' second comeback effort since his decisive loss to heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles.

Louis, in a telephone talk with Jim Norris, president of the International Boxing Club, said he planned to leave Chicago this evening for Lake St. Claire, on the Canadian side, near Detroit, where he will train for the 10-rounder.

The 36-year-old Brown Bomber outpointed Argentina's Cesar Brion in Chicago in a none too impressive performance last November 29.

Beshore, a slow moving but rugged heavy, should prove a good target for Louis. Charles stopped Beshore in 14 rounds in Buffalo last August 15 and in his first fight since, Beshore was outpointed by young Harry Willis in Baltimore, November 20.

Redskins' Santa Shuns Helicopter

The Redskins are dispensing with part of their aerial attack for Sunday's finale against the Cleveland Browns at Griffith Stadium.

Santa Claus, who's been making his annual appearance at the last Redskin home game via helicopter, won't tomorrow.

"The old gentleman gets air sick, he told us, so we've decided not to bring him by helicopter this time," explained Dick McCann, Redskin general manager.

Instead, Santa will make his halftime appearance on a sled pulled by reindeers and surrounded by the usual retinue.

In the past few years, the attempts to land St. Nick from a helicopter on the 50-yard line haven't been altogether successful. One year the helicopter missed its mark and landed on a rooftop of a house adjoining the stadium.

"I don't care how they bring him in but I do hope he'll have a present in the form of a win over the Browns for us," said Coach Herman Ball.

Awaits NCAA Survey

Eastern College Group Agrees To Defer Video Commitments

NEW YORK, Dec. 8 (AP).—Members of the Eastern College Athletic Conference, comprising 92 schools, agreed at their annual meeting here today to make no television commitments for next year until after the NCAA convention at Dallas January 12-13.

Ralph Furey of Columbia, chairman of the group's television committee, told the gathering that his body was of the opinion that "live telecasting of sports events presents a threat to the institution of intercollegiate athletics."

An NCAA committee headed by Tom Hamilton, athletic director at Pittsburgh University, is conducting a Nationwide survey in an effort to determine to what extent sports receipts have declined because of television, and will make its report at the Dallas session.

Immediately after the meeting at Dallas the Eastern Conference will hold a special session of its entire membership to decide finally whether it will permit television of football and other sports events.

Several of its members were not too happy at the agreement to make no commitments as, they explained, they were being pressed by television interests to make a decision now.

Asa Bushnell, commissioner of the ECAC, said "the ECAC, voted down a proposal that it urge the NCAA, to abandon its efforts to enforce the sanity code and to return to its old purely adminstrative status."

Six new members were admitted to the Eastern Conference. They were Adelphi, at Hempstead, N. Y.; American International Springfield, Mass.; Lock Haven (Pa.) Teachers; St. Francis, Loretto, Pa.; St. Peter's, Jersey City, and the United States Merchant Marine Academy, Kings Point, N. Y.

Tech's air-tight defense held DeMatha scoreless from the floor for the first six minutes and 14 seconds of the second quarter. The losers only scored two field goals during the period.

Military Offices Study Plans for Dispersion And Decentralization

A Pentagon committee is working on plans for both the dispersion and decentralization of military activities here.

The Defense Department, in fact, may move ahead on a combination dispersion-decentralization plan of its own without awaiting approval by Congress of the general bill to authorize the transfer of Federal activities here.

RETIREMENT: A bill by Rep. Eugene McCarthy (D., Minn.) would increase the annuities of the 125,000 retired Federal employes by $500 annually or 33 percent, whichever is smaller. A $500 increase would be the maximum. McCarthy will push his bill in the 82d Congress.

ARMY: A regional Army Finance Office is being set up in nearby Alexandria. It will be ready to operate January 1. About a dozen employes from St. Louis are being transferred to it and 90 others will be hired locally.

COAST GUARD: Representative Canfield (R., N. J.) yesterday came to the defense of the Coast Guard which was severely criticized in a report by the Williams Subcommittee of the House Civil Service Committee. The able and outspoken Canfield told the House:

"I was amazed to learn that the report was the product of two investigators and that no committee hearings were held in which the leadership of the Coast Guard was questioned or permitted to make answer . . . The defendants were not heard and the charges cannot be accepted as facts until the full truth is known."

AFGE: A group of leaders in the AFL's American Federation of Government Employes yesterday conferred with Representative Walsh (D., Ind.). They were looking him over as a possible president of the union. Walsh, a vigorous friend of Federal workers, was defeated for reelection. The union's executive council will meet here January 2 to name a new president.

GSA: New appointments at General Services: Leonard T. DeLiso, deputy director of compliance, and Felix E. Westwood and Charles E. Roach, assistant compliance directors.

JOBS: Civil Service has exams open for: Business analyst, commodity-industry analyst, and industrial specialist, $3450 to $6400 starting salaries; highway engineer trainee, $2875 to $3100, and correctional officer, $3125 a year. The highway engineer trainees can be filled on a permanent basis.

MEETINGS: FCCommissioner Wayne Coy will speak Tuesday on color TV at a dinner meeting of the American Society for Public Administration, to be held at 6:30 in the YWVA. You're invited . . . Treasury's NFFE local will dance Monday night at the Willard . . . A Christmas dance will be held next Friday night at the Woman's Club of Bethesda by the welfare and recreational association of the Army's Aeronautical Chart Service. New board members of the association are James Batson, Irving Beilas, George Goldberg, Harold Hitch, Ben Lane and Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Mauro.

GUN FACTORY: Just to keep the record straight, in case you're confused by conflicting reports, an official press release from the Naval Gun Factory carried this sentence: "There is a strong possibility that the Gun Factory will go on a six-day week."

In addition, Navy officials say the longer work week would be put into effect before January. They are, of course, hoping to continue on a 5-day week, but the international crisis may force the factory employes and many others on a longer work week.

JOBS: ECA needs 25 statistical typing clerks for temporary 90-day jobs, either day or night shift. No status required, $2875 salaries. Cal Sterling 6400, Branch 2872, for details.

Chest Campaign Approaches 80 Pct. of Goal As Last $887,035 Is Put Up to Community

By Tom Keller—The Washington Post

QUOTA EXCEEDED—Mrs. Richard de Buttz of Burke, Va., chairman of the Lee District in Fairfax County, is presented a Community Chest "Oscar" by Mrs. Alben Barkley, wife of the Vice President. Lee District has reached 110 percent of its quota. Presentation was made at the chest report luncheon yesterday at the Washington Hotel

Nearing 80 percent of their goal, Community Chest workers yesterday redoubled their efforts to raise a final $887,035.

This would provide for 49,136 persons who will ask for Red Feather aid next year, Chairman Hugh K. Duffield told the last general report luncheon in the Washington Hotel.

Pledges reached $3,372,965. The goal is $4,260,000.

Duffield expressed his gratification for the "fine work" the campaign organization has done during the Chest drive from the first October meeting to this final "clean-up phase."

"The organization has completed its job," he said. "The rest is up to the community at large."

The 79.18 percent booked to date does not include "overwriting" for any amount still in the "pipe lines" and not yet submitted. On Monday, the Government unit—with 87.69 percent or $1,483,642 of quota registered—will have a report meeting at 12:30 p. m. Units will continue to bring in gifts that are known to be "waiting for collection."

A regiment of Red Feather Oscars lined the head table from which Duffield spoke, Special guest Mrs. Alben W. Barkley, the "second lady of the land," presented the statuettes (of a Robin Hood attired elf with red plume jutting from his cap) to 60 volunteer workers and staff members.

Chairman of the nine solicitation units reported: Business Employes I—73.21 percent or $1,214,416; Business-Employes II—71.44 percent or $173,731; Government — 87.69 percent or $1,483,642; Special Solicitation—79.01 or $237,812; Alexandria—77.33 percent or $62,641; Arlington—73.27 percent or $45,644; Fairfax—89.59 percent or $35,386; Montgomery—67.63 percent or $87,919; Prince Georges—61.10 percent or $31,770.

The 1952 budget needs of the District Health Department will be presented in detailed reports at a United Community Services health section meeting on Monday at 11 a. m. in the Lee House.

Virginia State Senator Charles R. Fenwick, chairman of the 1951 Community Chest campaign in Arlington County, will address the group at its 12:30 p. m. luncheon on "The Citizen and the Budget."

"The younger boys and girls are going at a pretty reckless pace" in Arlington.

Police said Stickley was the driver of a car that crashed into a tree Wednesday night on N. Hartford st. near Key blvd.

Three of the auto's six occupants were teen-aged girls—one 14 years old, the other two 15 years old.

One of the passengers, George E. Monteith, 26, of 703 N. Fillmore st., Arlington, testified he had a fifth and a pint of liquor with him in the car and that Stickley "had been drinking."

The three girls testified they were "picked up" in Stickley's car in Clarendon and asked Stickley to drive them home.

En route, they said, Stickley took the turn from Herndon st. into Key blvd. "too fast." At this point, all three girls told Judge Thomas, they screamed and asked to be let out, but Stickley kept going.

When he took the turn into Hartford st., one girl testified, "he turned too sharp and couldn't help but hit the tree." Two of the girls and Stickley were slightly injured in the crash.

But the three girls denied to Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Paul G. Varoutsos that there was any drinking going on in the car.

In sentencing Stickley, Judge Thomas observed: "You might have killed any number of people in that automobile."

It was Judge Thomas who last month ordered an investigaion of reports of teen-age drunkeness at a high school fraternity party Thanksgiving night. The investigation is still under way.

Court Orders New Trial for Sam Lano

Faulty Indictment Brings Reversal of Extortion Conviction

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 8 (AP). The Court of Appeals today reversed the conviction of Sam Lano, slot machine distributor, on a Prince Georges County extortion charge.

It ordered a new trial for Lano, who gives his address as 820 Allen st., Falls Church, Va.

The court found Lano was tried originally on a faulty indictment.

Reversal came seven months after Maryland's high court upheld the one-year sentence handed to Lano in the Prince Georges Circuit Court. But he won a new hearing and the case was argued again last month.

Lano was convicted of threatening to file a bad check charge against John Duffy, owner of a tavern at 4308 Rhode Island ave., just over the District Line, D. C., unless Duffy kept two of Lano's slot machines.

Lano denied the threats.

In its reversal, the Appellate Court declared that the second count of the indictment failed "to allege one of the essentials of the crime."

The second count charged Lano with "unlawfully" accusing Duffy of a bad check charge. But the law stipulates that it is wrong for someone to accuse another "falsely" of a crime, in order to extort money.

The Appellate Court said that it first "presumed" the validity of the second count because Lano's lawyers originally admitted the count as worded "was laid in the language of the law."

This is not so, said the court on closer inspection.

"It is the 'falseness' of such a threat that makes the threat a crime," Judge C. Gus Grason wrote, not its "unlawfulness."

Lano had been cleared of another count in the indictment.

Change Favors Business Groups

The Arlington Chamber of Commerce yesterday voted to give fuller representation to county business associations. Henceforth the board will consist of 25 members-at-large elected, plus one representative from each business association.

Bladensburg Case

Snags Lewis Evidence Thrown Out

The Prince Georges County Circuit Court yesterday ordered suppressed the evidence obtained against William (Snags) Lewis and 3 of 18 other defendants in a gambling raid on a Bladensburg house in 1949.

The decision followed a hearing of a motion filed on behalf of all 19 defendants on November 25.

The motion sought to quash the search warrant, suppress evidence obtained in the search and to have the seized property returned to the defendants.

The warrant, obtained by United States marshals from United States Commissioner F. Archie Meatyard, jr., in Bethesda, was ruled invalid in that the affidavits upon which it was issued showed no grounds for its issuance nor probable cause to believe that such grounds existed.

In the opinion, Judges John B. Gray, jr., Charles C. Marbury and J. Dudley Digges separated the defendants into two groups.

One was composed of Lewis, John Ralph Mitchell and George P. Scott, lessees of the premises, and Mrs. Sadie T. Stanton, owner. The house is at 4310 46th ave., Bladensburg.

The reasoning behind the decision, the court said, was that Maryland's Bouse Act protects the owners and lessees of property from illegal search and seizure in misdemeanor cases.

The defendants were indicted by a county grand jury on charges of bookmaking and operating a lottery.

The judges concluded the Circuit Court "has no authority to quash the Federal search warrant . . . nor to order return of the property seized thereunder."

Under the ruling, the indictments stand against all defendants and, by implication, any new evidence could be used against Lewis and the three others against whom the present evidence was ordered suppressed.

State's Attorney A. Gwynn Bowie, who presented the State's argument against the motion, refused to comment immediately on the decision, saying he would have to study it further.

2500 Chain Store Clerks Get Pay Rise

New Contract Gives Them $4.50 More For a 45-Hour Week

Some 2500 chain store employes have been granted a 10-cents an-hour, $4.50-a-week pay increase under new contracts, it was learned yesterday.

Fifteen hundred employes of Safeway, A&P, and American stores get the 10-cent boost as a result of an agreement reached with Local 639-A, AFL Grocery Clerks. The clerks, who are on a 45-hour week, had a $5 increase in April. Basic wage for beginners is now $55 a week for two-year men $68.

A thousand butchers and helpers employed by Safeway, Food Fair, A&P, and American Stores receive the 10-cent raise under a contract reached with Local 555, AFL Meatcutters.

Another 10 cents an hour in premium pay goes to those meatcutters who have to work after store hours at night. The one-year contract continues the 45-hour week, and provides $56 a week for apprentices, $72 for journeymen with three years' experience, $85 and $110 for head meatcutters; $49.50 to $54.50 for weighers and wrappers in self-service markets.

Woman Denied Right to Adopt 5-Year-Old Child She Reared

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

A woman who had just been denied the right to adopt a 5-year-old girl she had brought up was detained half an hour yesterday in District Court to "spare a little heartbreak."

The lawyers and the judge were afraid to let the women be present at her home when the child was removed. There will be pain enough, they said, when she packs Linda's clothes and playthings.

A few minutes earlier the court heard the story of the relationship of Mrs. Charles A. Ehrmantrout, 34, and Linda Jean Reisen, who believes they are mother and child.

Linda was turned over to Mr. and Mrs. Ehrmantrout a few weeks after birth.

Last year, Mrs. Ehrmantrout filed for adoption, and there was the routine Board of Public Welfare report. Among other things, it said there were inadequate lighting and bathroom facilities in the Ehrmantrout home at 1671 Wisconsin ave.

There was some testimony last May. Judge Edward A. Tamm asked for a further investigation, and a six month delay.

Recently, the case was reopened. It was decided yesterday. Judge Tamm's summary of the facts follow:

Between 1929 and 1939, Mrs. Ehrmantrout was a patient at St. Elizabeths Hospital. She was released as fully recovered, but there have been two periods in which she voluntarily took further treatment.

In 1946, Miss Margaret Reisen, a waitress, gave the Ehrmantrouts her daughter.

"The Ehrmantrout home is the only home the child has known. They have been good parents. If anything, they have spoiled Linda because they treated her with typical natural parental indulgence," said the judge.

The judge added that the "very objective" welfare report showed that Linda was a "superior child with intelligence of a person twice her age." The Ehrmantrouts were persons of "limited intelligence," said the report.

A welfare department spokesman told the court it was feared "the child would dominate the parents," and that "they could not give her the proper guidance."

"Don't children always dominate their parents?" asked Judge Tamm. He got no answer.

At the end of the case, it developed there was no written consent of the natural mother to the adoption. Also, Miss Reisen said she knew the father, but did not name him.

"Under the facts and the law," said the judge, he was refusing the adoption request. "Some hearts are bound to be broken."

There was then a bench conference, where the judge was told Mrs. Ehrmantrout loved Linda so much she might kill the child rather than give her up. The lawyers agreed to talk to Mr. and Mrs. Ehrmantrout in a room at the court until the Welfare Department could take the child away.

The natural mother says she plans to marry January 1, and hopes that within a year she can take the child.

Meanwhile, Linda Jean will be sent to a foster home.

Cops Stymied For Clews to Bank Robbers

Stolen Auto Found Abandoned, Believed Used by Holdup Trio

Washington police and the FBI yesterday appeared to have drawn nothing but blanks in their investigation of the city's latest bank holdup.

The three bandits who held up the National Metropolitan Bank's branch at 49th st. and Fordham rd. nw. at noon Thursday made a clean getaway with $35,825.

A special group of detectives, summoned from jobs on other squads, yesterday joined robbery squad sleuths to concentrate on the search for the robbers, who struck swiftly and then vanished. Capts. Otto Fuss and Edgar E. Scott head the police group.

Police were particularly interested in the similarity of Thursday's holdup with that of the Shepherd Park branch of the Hamilton National Bank last February, when three bandits, answering the same general description and using the same methods, got away with $28,351. The robbery is still unsolved.

A stolen dark green 1950 Oldsmobile sedan, believed used in the holdup, was recovered Thursday night at 48th st. and Butterworth pl. nw., about three blocks from the branch bank in fashionable Spring Valley. After careful examination it was returned to its owner, Jerome Livingstone, 6301 16th st. nw., who reported it stolen Thursday morning from 16th and Sheridan sts. nw.

Police would not say whether it provided fingerprint clews. Nor would they disclose whether holdup witnesses identified the robbers from rogue's gallery photos.

Their only lead, Inspector Robert V. Murray, head of the detective bureau, insisted, was a report that three men in a dark Mercury sedan, similar to a car seen cruising around the bank before the holdup, were spotted speeding toward Annapolis in Anne Arundel County Thursday night. Two Washington detectives and two FBI agents were dispatched to help Anne Arundel County and Annapolis police in a further search there.

Police theorize the trio may have used the Oldsmobile for a quick getaway from the bank and transferred later to the Mercury.

The bandits forced four employes of the bank at gunpoint to lie on the floor behind the counter, then made Francis E. Hildebrand, a vice president and branch manager, open the vault. A customer who entered during the holdup was forced to join the four employes on the floor.

Jury Choice Hit

Collazo Asks Dismissal of Indictment

Attorneys for Oscar Collazo, Puerto Rican nationalist, who tried to assassinate President Truman, yesterday asked District Court to dismiss the first-degree murder indictment against him.

Collazo was indicted after one policeman was killed and two wounded during the shooting November 1 in front of the Blair House. Collazo's confederate, Grisello Torresola, was killed in the shooting but is named codefendant in the indictment.

Leo A. Rover, Sidney S. Sachs and Kenneth D. Wood, court-appointed attorneys, in petitioning to have the indictment dismissed, said that two jury commissioners instead of the requisite three chose the grand jury and that the jury commissioners are not appointed legally.

They also charged that the indictment is "vague, uncertain, indefinite and invalid" in that it charges a crime to Torresola, "a deceased person."

The indictment is further defective, they argue, since it is charged the murder was in the course of a housebreaking and it must be shown that the housebreaking "involved property of someone other than the accused."

The grand jury, it is alleged by Collazo, had one member absent and more than 10 Government employes or nonresidents of Washington.

A plea for a bill of particulars was also filed. Collazo wants to know the name of the person holding the weapon which killed Police Pvt. Leslie Coffelt in the shooting.

Another motion charges it is prejudical to include in the indictment the fact that the shooting occurred at the Blair House and to mention the President by name.

2 Firemen Felled By Smoke in Fire On 33d St. N.W.

Fire yesterday wrecked the interior of a three-story frame house at 5924 33d st. nw.

Two firemen were overcome by smoke. Police said the tenants, Joseph A. Dupont and family, were not at home.

One fireman, Pvt. Lawrence Sheehy, 34 of 315 Marvin rd., Silver Spring, Md., attached to No. 14 Truck Co., was taken to Emergency Hospital suffering from smoke inhalation. Police said he was overcome while on the second floor and was rescued by other firemen.

Sergt. W. M. Anderson, No. 12 Truck Co., was treated by the fire rescue squad.

The fire was discovered at 2:18 p. m. when a neighbor saw smoke coming from basement windows and turned in an alarm. By the time the first apparatus arrived, flames were shooting out of the basement windows

Wife of Policeman Changes Story, Drops Divorce Suit

Mrs. Audrey L. Crawford, 29, agreed yesterday to dismissal of her divorce suit after she admitted on the witness stand that she had marital relations on several occasions with her estranged husband as late as last summer.

Mrs. Crawford, a pretty brunette secretary, had charged Police Pvt. James D. Crawford, 36, with slapping her and publicly insulting her. On the District Court witness stand Thursday, she had repeatedly denied that she ever had marital relations with her husband after they separated in 1949.

She changed her story yesterday. She said that there had been numerous instances, but couldn't remember the exact details.

Under the dismissal order to be signed by Judge Richmond B. Keech, Mrs. Crawford is barred from bringing another suit based on the same incidents.

During her earlier testimony, she charged Private Crawford, at a party, pointed his pistol at her and threatened to shoot. She admitted yesterday she did not know the name of any person who was a witness to this, although she earlier had named several persons at the party.

Lawyer for Beloff Heiress, 7, Sues to Break Her Father's Will

A District Court suit was filed yesterday in behalf of Sylvia Beloff, 7, to break the will of her late father, Simon Beloff, wealthy real estate man.

Mr. Beloff died October 3 leaving an estate of over $250,000. He divorced his wife two years ago, and Sylvia is his only child.

The suit was filed through Attorney Alvin L. Newmyer, court-appointed guardian for the child's interests.

The will had put the bulk of the property in trust for any children Sylvia might have, provided she remain in the Jewish faith and name her first-born for the deceased. Sylvia herself gets $1000 a year plus a small additional amount if she goes to business school.

The suit charges the will offered for probate is not in fact Beloff's last will. It charges the witnessing was improper and that Beloff was mentally incompetent to make a will because fraud and deceit were exercised on him as well as undue influence.

The suit did not elaborate on the charges.

Folk Music From Ceylon At Library

By Paul Hume

Folk music all the way from Ceylon came to the Library of Congress last night.

On the stage of the Coolidge Auditorium, Devar Surya Sena and his wife, whose professional name is Nelun Devi, played and sang simple but alluring songs of Ceylon, India, and Pakistan.

Surya Sena was brought to Washington with the assistance of the Ambassador from Ceylon, G. C. S. Corea. Through the generosity of the Coreas and of Ambassador and Mrs. Ispahani of Pakistan, the stage was handsomely set with rugs and native furniture.

The sources of folk music are the same the world over. Lullabies, working songs, and songs derived from scenes and creatures of nature provide the limitless variety of such songs.

His wife, as richly costumed as he, played old native instruments and a modern grand piano.

A nine-million-dollar superhighway project for Prince Georges County, under consideration for five years, was tossed into the ash can yesterday by the new Republican county commissioners.

Officially abandoned by the economy-minded Republicans was the 8-mile-long Cross-County Metropolitan Freeway. It was planned to extend from Takoma Park to the proposed Annapolis Freeway near Ardwick. The belt highway was first proposed by the Democratic commissioners' advisory board in October, 1945.

The project was shelved after a discussion of the coming year's road construction program with County Engineer Arthur W. Tayman.

The project was termed "entirely too expensive" for consideration at this time by the commissioners.

And, "if it should ever be undertaken in the future it should be relocated further out" beyond the perimeter of concentrated development, Board President Thomas E. Latimer said.

Removal of the freeway from consideration means the county must now refund to the Federal government some $63,000 remaining from $75,000 advanced by the Federal Works Agency for preliminary plans, Tayman said. A total of $12,000 was expended on plans and need not be repaid under the terms of the advance, he said.

The commissioners reacted favorably to a recommendation by Tayman for establishment of a centrally located garage and maintenance shop for the engineering department. Tayman was instructed to recommend a site for the facility, which would also be used for maintenance of other vehicles.

Linden Briscoe, incumbent clerk to the commissioners, was appointed deputy clerk to Thomas F. Hicks, who was named clerk Tuesday. Briscoe will serve at the pleasure of the commissioners, but he was assured the appointment will remain in effect at least until next September 6 when he becomes eligible for retirement.

Spout Run Road Link Nearly Ready

The Spout Run link of George Washington Memorial Highway between Key Bridge and Lorcom Lane in Virginia will probably be open to traffic by Saturday, December 17, Edward J. Kelly, superintendent of National Capital Park, said yesterday.

The new parkway is connected with Lee Highway by Lorcom Lane, which has been widened and improved by Arlington County to receive the expected increase in traffic.

Kelly's announcement followed a final inspection of the paving contractors' work on the Spout Run connection.

Erection of necessary directional and traffic signs is expected to take only several days, Kelly said.

The completed project provides a continuous parkway from Mount Vernon to the Lorcom Lane-Lee Highway connection.

The Spout Run link is a dual highway with the westbound lane overlooking the palisades of the Potomac. The nigh-level eastbound lane gives an excellent approach view of the Nation's Capital, Kelly said.

Work on this section, approximately nine tenths of a mile long of the parkway was started early in 1948. Construction costs were about $850,000.

The parkway eventually will extend westward along the Potomac River to a proposed bridge crossing above Great Falls, where it will connect with a similar development following the Maryland shore of the river.

The trial was before Judge George D. Neilson and the jury deliberated 90 minutes. Prosecution was by Assistant United States Attorney Frank H. Strickler.

Carry Machinegun

D. C. Alerted For 6 Norfolk Jail Breakers

Washington police yesterday were alerted to look out for six prisoners, armed with a submachine gun, who may have headed in this direction after sawing their way out of the Norfolk, Va. city jail.

The six men were believed to be traveling in a 1948 Ford sedan or a 1941 blue Ford coupe, or both, the police broadcast said.

Their escape was discovered yesterday at 6 a. m. Apparently they slipped into one cell at lock-up time Thursday night, jail authorities said. They then got out by removing a ventilation duct from the wall and climbing through the 2-foot opening to a shower room, where they sawed the bars off a window. Climbing out into the jail yard, they scaled a wall by climbing a pile of coal.

The lookout identified them as William Henry Bowen, 18, of Norfolk, sentenced to six years for grand larceny of $2000, dark complexion, 5 feet 10 inches and 160 pounds.

Alexander Edward Tanner, 26, of Norfolk, sentenced to 11 years for robbery and larceny of a car; 5 feet 10 inches, 146 pounds, hazel eyes, dark blond hair, ruddy complexion.

Thurman West, 27, of Trenton, Ga., sentenced to seven years for safecracking; 6 feet, 175 pounds, blue eyes, brown hair.

Levy Benjamin Ingram, jr., 20, of Norfolk, sentenced to two years for grand larceny of $134; 6 feet 3 inches, 153 pounds, hazel eyes and brown hair.

Charles Whit Huffman, 32, of Norfolk, sentenced to four years for grand larceny of $2695; 5 feet 7½ inches, 130 pounds, brown eyes and brown hair.

Marvin Jackson Dobbins, 19, of Norfolk, awaiting Police Court action on a charge of larceny of a car; 5 feet 11 inches, 162 pounds, blue eyes, brown hair, ruddy complexion.

Police said Bowen and one of the others visited Bowen's in-laws in Norfolk after the escape. How the men got the submachine gun was not disclosed.

Morningside Bus Action Due Monday

School bus service over Woodland dr. in Morningside will not be cut off Monday, despite an ultimatum to town authorities to repair the road by then, a Prince Georges County school spokesman said yesterday.

John W. Heim, director of school transportation, said the street was not fully repaired yesterday, but that he would wait until Monday before taking final action.

"We want to give the local authorities an opportunity to have the work done over the weekend," he said.

Mayor William Spahr said earlier this week the work would be done "if the councilmen have to shovel gravel themselves."

School authorities informed town heads last Friday that bus service would be stopped Monday if holes in Woodland dr. were not filled by then.

The town council subsequently awarded a contract to an Arlington firm to patch the road with asphalt.

If the road is not passable on Monday, buses will be taken off the route on Tuesday, Heim said. This would add about a half mile to the distance pupils normally walk to the bus line.

Mrs. Williams Honored by Civic Group

Mrs. Velma G. Williams, a member of the District Board of Education, was honored last night at the annual award dinner of the Federation of Civic Associations.

For her services on the board and within the federation, Mrs. Williams was presented a bronze plaque. Among the guests honoring Mrs. Williams was the president of the Board of Education, Melvin C. Sharpe.

Principal speaker was Gerhard P. Van Arkel, general counsel for the Senate District Committee. Home rule for the District, he said, would "convince the world that we sincerely believe in democracy and do not just talk about it."

Attorney Margaret A. Haywood, of the federation's legislation committee, was presented a trophy by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People for her civic contributions.

The Evening Star Trophy went to the East Central Civic Association for its services to the community during 1950.

Trouble shooters from the Potomac Electric Power Co. and the District's Department of Vehicles and Traffic replaced the fuses on the master board with heavier fuses and the lights went back on at 4:35 p. m.

Educator Says Colleges Must 'Sell' Selves

ROANOKE, Va., Dec. 8 (AP).—American colleges are going to have to sell themselves as important social institutions or 750 financially "sick" schools are going to die, in the opinion of Dr. John H. Everett, youthful president of Hollins College.

They won't die all at once, Dr. Everett said. They will die by gradually diluting their programs until all they have left is a football team.

Dr. Everett made his prediction last night in appealing to college public relations men to do a better job.

Witness Lays Forgeries to Ex-Postmaster

Signatures on 29 forged checks were linked to the handwriting of French S. Brawner, former postmaster of Dumfries, Va., by a second Government handwriting expert in Alexandria Federal Court yesterday.

W. A. Shulenberger of the Treasury Department told a 14-man jury he was of the "unqualified opinion" that Brawner forged all the checks introduced by the Government.

The 61-year-old former postmaster is on trial on a 60-count indictment charging forgery of 29 Government checks, passing the same number of forged checks, embezzlement of a letter in which one of the checks was mailed, and forgery of a postal money order. Brawner has pleaded not guilty to all counts.

Another Government handwriting expert had testified on Thursday that signatures on 28 of the forged checks were "similar in character" to Brawner's handwriting.

Both experts were cross-examined extensively yesterday by T. Brooke Howard, attorney for the defendant. They did not budge from their opinions that Brawner was responsible for most if not all of the forgeries.

All of the checks represented income-tax refunds mailed through the Dumfries postoffice from 1946 through 1949. The trial will be resumed Monday at 10 a. m.

Executive director of the interim committee is Miss Elma Phillipson. Miss Lois Gratz, of the State and Local Action staff, was named consultant.

Mother Given Son

Christmas Carol Enters Custody Suit

Dickens "Christmas Carol" played a part yesterday in the decision of a custody case in District Court.

Sidney Rubin, 29, of 4839 New Hampshire ave. nw., was seeking custody of his son, Robert Stevens, 7, from his former wife, Mrs. Eleanor Rubin, 31, a Navy Department secretary.

Robert, according to testimony is crippled and is now at Stratford Academy in New Jersey. The boy takes treatment for a hip and foot ailment in Philadelphia.

The father stated that the boy would be better off in Washington, but Mrs. Rubin said that since she works, the school is preferable.

"Will the boy be at school on Christmas?" asked Judge Alexander Holtzoff.

Her lawyers said that Robert will have a Christmas holiday at home.

"I am glad of that," said Judge Holtzoff.

"We all know the Dickens story of the crippled boy and what happened to him on Christmas. I wouldn't want this boy to be away from home on Christmas," he said.

The mother was allowed to retain custody.

New Landlord Asked to Keep Draft Offices

The Federal Government yesterday asked the American Automobile Association not to move national Selective Service out of the nine-story building at 1712 G st. nw., which has been purchased by the auto club.

Selective Service was due to move this month from the centrally located headquarters to off-the-beaten-track wartime dormitories at Langston Stadium, Oklahoma ave. and 24th st. ne. The AAA planned to modernize the structure and move in next summer.

The auto association along with the District Motor Club has occupied rented space in the Mills Building, 17th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw., since 1924. Last May, the AAA bought control of the G st. building, which though privately owned has been accupied by Government agencies since it was built in 1917. Selective service moved in two years ago.

General Services Administration told the AAA that in view of space shortage, it would like AAA to postpone the move indefinitely. The AAA board of directors has the request under consideration.

Paroled Convict Kills Police Captain

58 Die in Week

Rains, Snow Cripple Many Communities

By the United Press

The Midwest dug out Friday from a "wrong-way" storm that piled up huge snowdrifts and all but stalled traffic.

The same blow drenched Middle and North Atlantic States with rains and high winds.

The whirling Midwestern storm lashed across the upper Mississippi valley and Great Lakes region from the south, instead of the usual entry from the northwest.

"Baby" blizzards struc' at many points during the night, roads shut with drifting snow and making driving impossible.

Chicago suburbs were littered with hundreds of cars and trucks in ditches, abandoned temporarily by their owners. Commuter trains or buses ran hours late or not at all.

Some Chicago commuters never reached home at all, holing up in hotels, rooming houses, police stations and city halls. Friday they faced the task of getting back to work while snow plows struggled to free the roads.

Wisconsin was hit by the same kind of blowing snow. Milwaukee reported one of its heaviest snow storms on record with eight inches. Plows worked across the clock to free stalled cars and trucks.

Indianapolis was without electricity for two hours during the night when a feeder line broke.

Cold weather created a gas shortage at Louisville, Ky., and the International Harvester Co. was forced to halt tractor production and send 2000 workers home. Heavy home use of gas for heating caused the shortage.

SAGINAW, Mich., Dec. 8 (U.P.).—A paroled convict killed a police captain and wounded two other officers in a wild gun battle today and fled with a woman companion at the wheel.

But the couple was captured a short time later, without a shot being fired, because of a quick-thinking cab driver.

The parolee, 33-year-old Larry Nelson, was not expected to live and the two wounded officers were reported in serious condition.

Nelson and Sylvia Van Conant, 35, a parolee from the Detroit House of Correction, had been sought for disarming three policemen yesterday and fleeing in a hail of bullets fired by a fourth policeman. The policemen had gone to a bar to investigate a disturbance.

After their arrest today, Miss Van Conant told police Nelson killed Paul Walters, 38-year-old Wayne, Mich., auto plant worker, November 11 and dumped his weighted body in a stream.

Capt. Dan Waters, 38, left his tenth wedding anniversary celebration to follow up the tip. When he and two fellow officers arrived in front of the Bancroft Hotel, the gun battle began without warning.

Before Waters could draw his revolver, Nelson blasted him with four bullets. One struck Waters in the head, killing him instantly.

Detective Clarence Dietzel was wounded in the abdomen and Parole Officer Alvin Johnson was struck in the hand and chest. They shot Nelson in the chest before he staggered into a waiting car and fled.

Minutes later the couple asked a cab driver for directions to a hospital, then made a wrong turn after he radioed his office and learned of the shooting. The cab driver trailed the killer's car and guided police cruisers with his radio. The couple did not resist arrest.

Hiss Asks Continuance Of Bail During Appeal

NEW YORK, Dec. 8 (AP).—Alger Hiss, former high State Department official whose perjury conviction was upheld by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, today asked that he be continued free in bail pending an appeal to the United States Supreme Court.

The Court of Appeals fixed Monday morning for oral argument on the application. Hiss has been free in $10,000 bail since his conviction last January on a charge of lying when he denied he gave Government secrets to Whittaker Chambers, courier for a prewar Soviet spy ring.

$8961 in Boxes Found at Dead Seamstress' Home

FREDERICK, Md., Dec. 8 (AP).—Several boxes, crammed with bills and coins adding up to $961, and United States bonds totaling $8000, were found today in the house of an elderly seamstress who had just died.

Miss Fannie Louise Ziegler, who lived alone, was found dead in bed by a niece, Mrs. J. Welty Fahrney. Dr. R. W. Baer, County medical examiner, has not issued a verdict, but indicated death was due to natural causes.

One of the coins was a facsimile put out as an advertisement by a restaurant. On one side was the declaration: "It's tough to be poor."

TV Education for Atom Raid Urged at Broadcast Parley

NEW YORK, Dec. 8 (AP).—The use of television for mass training in defense against atomic warfare was proposed today by J. R. Poppele, president of the Television Broadcasters Association.

Speaking at the association's annual meeting, Poppele said television also could be used to train millions in air raid warden service. He recalled that TV was used for that purpose to a limited extent in World War II, although there were only a few thousand sets in service at that time.

The television industry, he continued, is ready also to aid the defense effort in other ways, including the sale of defense bonds and broadcasting Red Cross instructions.

George T. Shupert, vice president of Paramount Television Productions, Inc., said the industry seemed to be arriving at a common conclusion "that virtually all TV programs, with the exception of some news, sports picksups, and a few audience-type shows, eventually will be on film."

For the present, the best educational resultts in television are to be obtained by cooperative efforts between commercial stations and colleges, said Dr. Alexander Ruthven, president of the University of Michigan. However, he said both the industry and education would benefit "if a goodly number of educational stations could be located throughout the country, a development now being considered."

The association's board authorized appointment of a committee "to explore the possibility of effecting some amalgamation or confederation" with other trade groups. This was regarded as a possible prelude to a merger with the National Association of Broadcasters.

Poppele was reelected president for the seventh consecutive term, and Will Baltin of New Brunswick, N. J., was made secretary-treasurer for the eighth year. Others reelected included Ernest Loveman, Station WPTZ, Philadelphia, vice president, and Paul Raibourne, New York, assistant secretary-treasurer.

$312 Million Mail Payment to Rail Lines Is Approved

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday approved payment of an extra 312 million dollars to the Nation's railroads for carrying the mail.

The ICC held that previous rates for mail transportation were not fair and reasonable. Railroads claimed they were losing money under the old arrangement.

The payment, averaging nearly seven millon dollars a month, covers the period February 19, 1947, through December 31, 1950. It had been agreed upon by the Post Office Department and the carriers.

The railroads already have received an interim increase of about 160 million dollars which means that only about 152 million dollars is due them under yesterday's settlement.

An ICC spokesman said the way still is open for final determination of "fair and reasonable" rates to be paid after next January.

Troops May Escape Transportation Tax

The House unanimously approved and sent to the Senate yesterday a bill to exempt servicemen on furlough from paying the 15 percent Federal tax on transportation tickets.

The exemption would apply only where members of the armed forces are in uniform and are traveling at the reduced round-trip rates which the railroads plan to put into effect December 15. The railroad travel rate for servicemen is to be two cents a mile.

Six Arraigned for Contempt Plead Innocent, Post Bond

By the United Press

Philip J. Jaffe, central figure in the controversial 1945 Amerasia stolen secrets case, and Communist organizer Steve Nelson pleaded innocent yesterday to congressional contempt charges.

They were arraigned along with two wartime atomic scientists — Giovanni Lomanitz and David J. Bohm; West Coast union organizer Marcel Scherer; and William L. Patterson, executive secretary of the Civil Rights Congress.

The six defendants, accused of refusing to answer questions by congressional committees, all pleaded innocent and were released on $1500 bond pending trial. The trial date for Nelson, western Pennsylvania party organizer, was set for January 8.

If convicted, they face up to one year in jail and a $1000 fine for each contempt charge against them. Nelson, who faces 35 charges, could be fined $35,000 and imprisoned 35 years.

Other tentative trial dates were: Patterson, January 10; Bohm, January 18; Scherer, January 15, and Jaffe, January 15. No trial date was set for Lomanitz, who was given until January 3 to file preliminary motions.

The court rejected a Government request to set Nelson's bail at $5000. Assistant U. S. Attorney William Hitz said Nelson is "very likely illegally in this country under a false passport."

"He has traveled to all parts of this country and elsewhere in the world, probably as an underground agent of the Soviet Union," Hitz said. Federal Judge Matthew M. McGuire set bond at the usual $1500, however, when he was informed Nelson had been in the country 31 years and has a family in Pittsburgh.

Jaffe defied a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee investigating the Reds-in-Government charges hurled by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.). The Senator had cited the Amerasia case as an example of what he termed the Administration's "softness" toward communism.

It involved the disappearance of several hundred military and diplomatic documents which later were found in the New York offices of Amerasia magazine, co-edited by Jaffe. Jaffe pleaded guilty to conspiring to obtain Government papers and was fined $2500.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 8 (AP).—The Widener Building, an 18-story structure at Juniper and Chestnut sts. in downtown Philadelphia, was sold today by Lit Brothers department store to a syndicate headed by Lawrence D. Mayer of New York for $4,000,000.

Messenger Given Suspended Term for Discarding U. S. Data

The price for being a few hours late in delivering some documents proved high yesterday for William Byrd, former Commerce Department messenger.

Byrd drew a suspended sentence of 8 to 24 months and was placed on probation for destroying three packages of Commerce data, which the Government charged he threw into a trash basket last January 20 rather than admit he had dallied a few hours in making the two-block journey from Commerce to the Treasury Department.

In another case, District Court Judge Edward M. Curran sentenced Frank B. Snaer, 28, 2283 H st. nw., to one to three years in prison but suspended sentence and placed him on probation on condition that he make restitution for an $84 uniform obtained by misrepresenting himself as a Marine Corps major.

Judge Curran previously sentenced Robert N. H. Catlow, 33, former disc jockey on the public address system at Walter Reed Hospital, to 6 to 18 months in prison, but suspended sentence yesterday and placed him on probation for three years for mailing information on how to receive indecent pictures.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 8 (U.P.).—Pfc. Edward H. Hamilton, a member of the First Cavalry Division, was flown home from Korea because of the serious illness of his father.

One of the first things he did was to donate a pint of blood to the Red Cross Blood Center here.

"It may save my life some day," he said.

Cellist Plays at Swiss Legation

By Marie McNair

THE SWISS MINISTER and Mme. Bruggmann asked a group of their friends with a particular interest in music to hear a very fine musician yesterday afternoon. He's a Swiss and a cellist who specializes in Bach, and he gave an hour's program at the legation, playing without piano accompaniment.

Before the 60 or more guests had settled comfortably in the green drawing room, there was tea. And before the group had left they were offered cocktails and had an opportunity to congratulate the artist. Howard Mitchell, conductor of the National Symphony Orchestra, had a seat in the front row, not once taking his eyes off Mr. Honegger and his cello.

The Ceylonese Ambassador and Mme. Corea were interested listeners, but left promptly to pick up their guests for the concert at the Library of Congress given by their compatriots Deva Surya Sena and Nelun Devi, who have revived the folk songs of their country.

I saw the Minister of Luxembourg and Mme. LeGallais, and Mrs. Malik, wife of the Lebanese Minister, and Mrs. Harold Burton, sitting together; the Finnish Minister and Mme. Jutila and Mlle. Sophie Myer, niece of the French Ambassador and Mme. LeGallais.

Mrs. Adolph Casper Miller, who has long been a patron of music, was there and Mrs. William R. Castle, Mrs. Corrin Strong, Mrs. Edward B. Meigs, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lippmann, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Snow, Mr. and Mrs. Garrison Norton and Mrs. Thomas Finletter, wife of the Secretary for Air, who had stopped by with only time enough for a cup of tea.

Also there were Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Douglas—she was Jean Wallace—niece of the hostess and daughter of former Vice President Henry Wallace.

WELCOME HOME

A ladies tea CAN be fun!

Chatter was uncensored at Mrs. Roy St. Lewis' party yesterday to welcome her old friend, Mrs. Hollister Sturges to Washington for the winter.

There was hot chocolate piled high with whipped cream served in tiny gold cups, steaming cups of tea offered from the other end of the tea table, and squares of deep frosted cake, hot cheese strips and a dozen other fattening delicacies.

Peggy St. Lewis looked like a French print, with her golden hair high on her head and wearing a long green tea gown banded in fur.

MRS. STURGES' dark frock was topped with a wine red hat. Senora de Berckemeyer, wife of the Peruvian Ambassador, came in, found pretty Senora de Oreamuno, wife of the Costa Rican Ambassador and Mrs. Harold Burton at the tea table. Mrs. George Thorpe took her turn serving chocolate so did Mrs. Bourke Hickenlooper, wife of the Iowa Senator.

Mrs. Stanley Suydam was telling of the trials of remodeling a Georgetown house. Mrs. Guy Goff was telling her friends she'll join her son-in-law and daughter Representative and Mrs. Carroll Reece and their children, in New York, for Christmas, and Mrs. Harry G. Meem was hurrying off to pick up her young grandson, Ned McLean for a lecture at the National Geographic.

Others there were Mrs. Matthew Pack, Mrs. Robert Waggaman, Mrs. B. B. Jones, Baroness von Schoen, Mrs. William A. Scully, Mrs. Deborah Glassford, Miss Rose Saul, Mrs. Edmund B. Montgomery, Mrs. Bernard Gallagher and Mrs. Martin Vogel.

Virginia Group to Hold First Tea

By Nicha Searle

A CUP OF TEA, Old Dominion charm—interspersed with chamber music—that's what is on the Virginia Society party calendar for Sunday.

The first tea of the current season will be held from 4 to 6 p. m. in the American Newspaper Women's Club, 1604 20th st. nw. The chamber music ensemble will be directed by Philip Lester. In the receiving line will be the president of the society, the three vice presidents and their wives.

Officers of the society are Capt. George P. Grove, president; Assistant Secretary of Commerce Thomas W. S. Davis, Representative Porter Hardy, jr. and Assistant Attorney General H. Graham Morison, vice presidents.

MONTANA STATE SOCIETY has planned a triple threat for its Congressional reception and cocktail party next Friday in the East Lounge of the National Press Club in the National Press Building. The party will be from 5 to 7 p. m.

The Treasure Staters will have a chance to meet the congressmen that represent them. Honored guests at the fete will be Senator James E. Murray, Senator Zales N. Ecton, Representative Mike Mansfield and Representative Wesley A. D'Ewart.

Myrna Loy, formerly from Helena who is now with the State Department as a member-at-large of the United States National Commission for UNESCO, has been invited to attend.

Last, but not least, the "Montana Sonata" a musical composition written by David Patterson will be introduced at this party.

CHIEF JUSTICE Fred Vinson will head the list of honored guests at the Kentucky Society Judiciary Night celebration. The annual event will be held next Friday at the Shoreham Hotel.

In addition to the Chief Justice, other members of the judiciary who will be honored are Associate Justice Stanley Reed and Judge Wilbur K. Miller of the Federal Court of Appeals.

A pre-dance reception has been slated along the Bird Walk of the Shoreham at 9:30 p. m. Dancing will get under way at 10 p. m. This reception will be the second Kentucky one this year.

ANOTHER FRIDAY night fete (the state societies are really celebrating on that night) is the gala party of the Massachusetts State Society in the West ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel.

Rumor has it that Santa himself will drop in on the Bay Staters. In the meantime, the Massachusettsians will dance from 10 p. m. to 1 a. m. to the music of the Dave McWilliams orchestra. The program is under the direction of Mrs. Estelle McQuade.

ON THE NEXT night (December 16) Santa Claus will drop in to see the New Yorkers.

Spirits will teeter between state pride and holiday mood at this New York State Society function. For it will not only be the New Yorkers' Christmas party but it will be New York day on the National Capitol Sesquicentennial Commission's calendar.

The dance will be held in the main ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel with a reception at 9:30 p. m. and the dance from 10 p. m. to 1 a. m.

Another Christmas is near at hand and it's time again for the ever-popular Tar Heel Mistletoe Mingle.

North Carolina's traditional Christmas dance will be held in the large ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel Friday from 10 p. m. to 1 a. m. with Dave McWilliams supplying the music.

Adding to the merriment of the occasion will be a group of Christmas Belles who will supplement the orchestral music with their jingling bells. The Christmas Belles will include the Misses Courtney Murphy, Rose Caudle, Teresa Wohl, Charlotte Moseley, Betty Jenkins, Janet Boney, Nina Britoon, Elizabeth Fuller, June Gilbert, Carolyn Bason, Nell Morrison, Mary Brown, Charlotte Graham, Betty Jo McDaniels and Katherine Ledbetter.

Christmas carols will be sung during intermission with Lawrence Redmond at the piano and Miss Bertie Earp leading the group singing.

Special guest at the Tar Heel Christmas party will be the chubby little old apple-cheeked fellow who will have his pack, bulging with Christmas gifts.

TWO STATE SOCIETY fetes are listed on tonight's calendar.

The Volunteers of Tennessee will hold their second dance of the season tonight at the Wardman Park Burgundy Room. Dancing will begin at 9 p. m., with Tiny Meeker's band providing the music.

In the Shoreham Hotel, Federal Judge Burnita Shelton Matthews and 20 other members of the legal and medical profession will be honored by the Mississippi State Society. The honored guests are all former Mississippians now living in Washington. Dave McWilliams' orchestra will supply the music for the dance.

In Moderation

In order to achieve the best . . . And gain the fullest measure . . . We should relax and have a share . . . Of merriment and pleasure . . . But whether in a group of friends . . . Alone or on vacation . . . Our self-indulgence should be in . . . The best of moderation . . . We should not wear our bodies down . . . Or dull our mental powers . . . By too much love of appetite . . . Through long and sleepless hours . . . For when the piper must be paid . . . It is a different story . . . And all too often and too late . . . We find that we are sorry . . . So let us be intelligent . . . About our recreation . . . And let us daily strive to do . . . All things in moderation.

Hebrew Auxiliary Pledges

$40,000 for Fund of Aged Home

By Flora Gill

IN THE course of an hour's luncheon at the Mayflower yesterday, the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Hebrew Home for the Aged, through pledges of the members, added $40,000 to its building fund, or exactly half of its $80,000 goal.

Dr. Abram L. Sachar, president of Brandeis University and guest speaker at the luncheon, said that the fund-raising purpose, which seeks to provide new quarters for the outmoded ones presently occupied by the home, was "one of the most effective ways we can reaffirm our faith in the ideas we hold dear.

"In a democracy like ours every human life is precious," Dr. Sachar said. "We don't say that the life of a boy fighting in Korea is more sacred that that of an elderly person." He added that the lives of elderly people, such as the ones sheltered by the home, would be of no interest in a totalitarian state.

Dr. Sachar spoke also of the tragedy of insensitiveness which has been growing in recent years because people are "tired of hearing stories of grief."

HE TOLD the gathering that a generation ago when World War I saw twenty or thirty thousand casualties, the populace regarded them as human beings and reacted accordingly. But in the recent war, when there were millions, "They weren't people any more—they were statistics," he said.

"Blessed is the community that can keep open the channels of sensitivity," Dr. Sachar concluded.

The speaker also paid tribute to Mrs. Charles Goldsmith whose eightieth birthday provided the luncheon theme "Life Begins at 80," referring to the new life beginning for occupants of the home. Mrs. Goldsmith was one of the founders of the home 36 years ago and a few years later, when additional facilities were needed, herself raised $85,000 in 85 minutes.

A short documentary film showing scenes in the home, and demonstrating the need for the new building, preceded the luncheon. There was also an auxiliary presentation by Mrs. Harry Badt, its president, to Mrs. Goldsmith of eighty red birthday roses.

Mrs. Nat H. Levy was chairman; Mrs. I. E. Levinson, pro- others at the head table were Mrs. Ralph Goldsmith, hostess chairman; Mrs. Alexandria Hassan, Mrs. Louis Janof, Mrs. Cecil D. Kauffman, associate chairman. Others included Mrs. Alfred Goldstein, publicity chairman; Mrs. I. E. Levinson, program chairman; Mrs. Louis Dinowitz, chairman of arrangements; Mrs. S. A. Davis, office director; Mrs. Herman Gelman, Ladies auxiliary chairman and Mrs. Leo Bernstein, chairman of ushers.

Mergenthaler Net and Sales Drop in Year

By S. Oliver Goodman

Mergenthaler Linotype Co. yesterday reported net income of $1,536,699 or $6.52 a common share for the year ended September 30.

This compared with $2,597,565 or $11.02 a share in the preceding fiscal year.

These figures do not include $350,648 individends received this year from the British subsidiary on account of accumulated prior years' dividends. In 1949, Mergenthaler received $756,538 from the British subsidiary.

Net sales of $18,936,288 compared with $23,124,530 in the previous year. President Martin M. Reed commented that volume, while not as large as that of 1949, approximated the 1947 and 1948 levels.

"During the spring and winter of 1949-50," he said, "printers and publishers, along with most buyers of capital equipment, were marking time in their purchases because of uncertainty as to economic conditions immediately ahead. That situation began to change in late spring and then disappeared completely in the rush of buying that marked the outbreak of hostilities in Korea."

Looking ahead, Reed predicted that Mergenthaler sales for the 1951 fiscal year will show an increase, although "material shortages or allocations and Government restrictions on sales could have a profound effect upon our operations . . . It is reasonable to assume that curtailed commercial sales would be replaced by increased sales to the Government."

Mergenthaler's annual report revealed that the Davidson Manufacturing Corp. of Chicago was acquired last June through a cash outlay of $1,482,787. Davidson's sales for the 12 months ended September 30 totaled $2,015,047 and net profit was $51,677 after taxes.

STORE SALES: Washington department store sales in the week ended December 2 were 2 percent less than in the like 1949 week, but soared 35 percent ahead of the previous week this year. For the four weeks ended December 2, local dollar volume was 2 percent down. The figures are reported by the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond.

ODD LOTS: Packard Motor Car Co. has begun payment of about $1,300,000 in lieu of 1951 vacations to 7300 of its hourly-rated employes . . . Nickel Plate Railroad plans to offer 33,700 additional shares of common stock to present holders on the basis of one new for 10 old . . . Procter & Gamble announced price increases of 3½ percent at the wholesale level for its shortening and for soap powders . . . Order backlog of Electric Boat Co. was estimated at 94 million dollars on November 30, compared with 40 million dollars on March 31 . . . One carpet maker has just increased prices 7 to 10 percent, the sixth time this year the firm has boosted prices. The tags now are more than 50 percent higher than they were at the end of 1949.

ANNIVERSARY: American Security & Trust Co. is 61 years old today. It opened on December 9, 1889, and at the end of that year its deposits totaled $18,870. On October 4, 1950, deposits aggregated $177,276,161. In its 61-year history, American Security has had only four presidents: A. T. Britton, 1889-93; Charles G. Bell, 1893-1928; Corcoran Thom, 1928-46, and Donald W. Bell, from 1946.

Chicago Grain

CHICAGO, Dec. 8 (AP).—Wheat bounded up in a brisk buying movement on the Board of Trade today.

The bread cereal, which had given signs of taking over the market's leadership in earlier session this week, today assumed command in no uncertain fashion. It was active and higher right from the start, outdistancing everything else.

Wheat closed 3¾ to 4½ higher; corn, ⅞ to 1¼ higher; oats, ¾ to 1½ higher; rye, 2½ to 2¾ higher; soybeans 1½ to 2¾ higher, and lard, 10 to 22 cents a hundred pounds higher.

Commission houses and local traders bought wheat in early dealings, concentrating on the July contract. Speculative purchases were attracted to this delivery because of the six months capital gains (or losses) tax feature.

'F.D.R.: His Personal Letters'

Roosevelt Gave Grant's View Of 'Unconditional Surrender'

Installment Twenty-Seven

F. D. R to Cordell Hull

(This is the twenty-seventh of 31 installments of the personal letters of Franklin D. Roosevelt, from the two-volume work, "F.D.R.: His Personal Letters." The books were edited by Elliott Roosevelt.)

THE WHITE HOUSE,
Jan. 17, 1944

Memorandum for the Secretary of State:

Frankly, I do not like the idea of conversations to define the term "unconditional surrender." Russia, Britain and the United States have agreed not to make any peace without consultation with each other. I think each case should stand on its own merits in that way.

The German people can have dinned into their ears what I said in my Christmas Eve speech—in effect, that we have no thought of destroying the German people and that we want them to live through the generations like other European peoples on condition, of course, that they get rid of their present philosophy of conquest. I forget my exact words but you can have them looked up.

Secondly, the German people and Russia should also be told the best definition of what "unconditional surrender" really means. The story of Lee's surrender to Grant is the best illustration. Lee wanted to talk about all kinds of conditions. Grant said that Lee must put his confidence in his (Grant's) fairness. Then Lee surrendered.

Immediately Lee brought up the question of the Confederate officers' horses, which belonged to them personally in most cases, and Grant settled that item by telling Lee that they should take their horses home as they would be needed in the Spring plowing.

A few little incidents like the above will have more effect on the Germans than lots of conversions between the Russians, British and ourselves trying to define "unconditional surrender." Whatever words we might agree on would probably have to be modified or changed the first time some nation wanted to surrender.

F. D. R.

Hull reported that Molotov, on his own initiative, had raised with Ambassador Harriman the question of giving a more precise definition to "unconditional surrender." Molotov made it clear that the Soviets were not interested in offering milder terms to the enemy countries, but believed that the lack of precision as to what the term meant enabled enemy propagandists to define it as they wished and to play on the worst fears of their people, thus stiffening their will to resist.

F.D.R. to Cordell Hull (Memorandum)

THE WHITE HOUSE,
Jan. 24, 1944

Memorandum for the Secretary of State:

I saw Halifax last week and told him quite frankly that it was perfectly true that I had, for over a year, expressed the opinion that Indo-China should not go back to France but that it should be administered by an international trusteeship. France has had the country—30 million inhabitants for nearly one hundred years, and the people are worse off than they were at the beginning.

As a matter of interest, I am wholeheartedly supported in this view by Generalissimo Chiang Kia-shek and by Marshall Stalin. I see no reason to play with the British Foreign Office in this matter.

The only reason they seem to oppose it is that they fear the effect it would have on their own possessions and those of the Dutch. They have never liked the idea of trusteeship because it is, in some instances, aimed at future independence. This is true in the case of Indo-China.

Each case must, of course, stand on its own feet, but the case of Indo-China is perfectly clear. France has milked it for one hundred years. The people of Indo-China are entitled to something better than that.

F.D.R.

Ambassador Halifax had told Hull on January 3rd that F.D.R. on his travels to Teheran, informed the Turks, the Egyptians, and perhaps others, of his views on Indo-China. Lord Halifax wanted to know whether F.D.R.'s views represented definitive policy.

F.D.R. to Edward J. Flynn in New York

THE WHITE HOUSE,
Feb. 8, 1944

Dear Ed:

I am delighted to hear that you are getting on all right, and you will be amused by the following:

Your telegram saying "What do you mean crashing my racket" arrived Saturday afternoon and a few hours later a telegram came from the Western Union as follows: "Our signed Ed Flynn sent by Edward J. Flynn Room 418 St. Lukes Hospital. He was formerly Democratic National Chairman."

You must have an awfully bad reputation at the hospital, or else they have you located in the psychopathic ward—I don't know which.

My head is coming along—they took out eight stitches on Sunday and I hope you will enjoy that horrible process as much as I did!

Take care of yourself and get Helen to let me know when they "let you out."

As ever yours,

F.D.R. went to the hospital on February 2nd to have what he called a "wen" removed from the back of his head. Ed Flynn was in St. Luke's Hospital for an operation at the same time.

F.D.R. to Evans F. Carlson at F.P.O., San Francisco

THE WHITE HOUSE,
March 2, 1944

My dear Carlson:

Your letter of the twenty-third of February has come at the very moment when I am reading of your wedding in today's paper. My hearty congratulations to you and your Missus.

You and Jimmy must have had a very interesting time at Tarawa and Makin on this last cruise. The careful preparation certainly counts in the long run.

In regard to China, I think we are going through a transition period—especially the part relating to North China. I have done my best to keep some of the Chinese leaders from taking more positive action against the Eighth Route Army leaders, but it seems to go hard with the Generalissimo. I am sure, however, that the time will come when we will all want you back here. My best to you,

Always sincerely,

Colonel Carlson, head of a Marine raiders unit, and James Roosevelt had participated in November in the attack on Makin and Tarawa in the Gilberts. Jimmy had received the Silver Star for gallantry in action on Makin. Before the war Carlson was an observer for the Marines with the Chinese Communist armies, and, much impressed with their method of guerrilla organization, had made good use of his experience in the training of his Marine raiders. The Communist Eighth Route Army had its base in North China. American policy at this time was to bring about an end to the Kuomintang-Communst struggle so that both would concentrate on fighting the Japanese.

Court Ponders Penalty for Boy Who Stole and Freed Zoo Birds

LONDON, Dec. 8 (AP).—The gentle St. Francis of Assisi, who loved all animals and called them brother, might have been the proper judge for a 15-year-old boy who stood in a juvenile court, and stammered and couldn't defend himself.

According to the statutes, what the boy had done was stealing—and that in a rather big way. Over the course of months, he had crept by night into the London zoo. With pliers he cut wires and took live birds—Egyptian geese, a peregrine falcon, jackdaws and owls.

But he didn't sell them, or trade them for something a 15-year-old boy finds useful. He carried the creatures a long way across the big town, and freed them in St. James's Park, some to swim in the park lagoon, which is very close to the King's Buckingham Palace.

After a time the boy was caught. In court yesterday he couldn't find the words to explain anything. So it was said for him that, like St. Francis, he loves all living creatures, and can't bear to see them deprived of liberty behind the wires of a zoo.

It was testified that the birds were worth $565.60. That makes the offense, if it is indeed a crime, grand larceny, and the court had to take a serious view. The boy was questioned sympathetically.

In school he likes to draw animals and birds, but he doesn't do it very well. He gave up the job as apprentice to a taxidermist because he likes animals alive. He was a failure as a helper in a pet shop because he likes animals free. Teachers called him a rather dull boy, but with some strange fire burning deep within.

The court could find no ready answer. The chairman, Mrs. Madelaine Robinson, said softly:

"We must know something more about you. We will remand you on bail for 14 days."

Which means that for a few days the boy is as free as the birds he liberated. And at St. James's Park frustrated keepers are trying to coax 15 swimming birds to shore so they may be taken back to the 700 cages.

Santa Wins Over Shy 3-Yr.-Old With Few, Well-Chosen Words

DAYTON, Ohio, Dec. 8 (AP).—Only persons who don't believe there is a Santa Claus need read on.

Three-year-old Margery Bidstrup obviously was frightened by the bristling court-like set-up Santa had in the gaily decorated department store. Mrs. Henry Bidstrup was having no luck comforting her daughter.

Margery watched the line of children file up to see Santa—and sobbed.

Finally, her mother leaned down and whispered in tones easily heard by Santa.

Quick as a reindeer's wink, Santa beckoned to the damp-eyed little girl:

"Kommst du hier, kleine maedchen."

Margery's sobs stopped. Her eyes widened.

And in half a reindeer's wink, she was in his lap.

A few moments more conversation, and Margery rattled off her Christmas list:

"Ein weihnachtsbaum (she just couldn't remember Christmas tree) . . . a plate . . . and a skillet."

"Auf wiedersehn," he called out with a jolly wink.

Margery winked back.

Thomas Reports Threats Follow Red Exposures

Henry Thomas, president of Local 74, AFL Building Laborers' Union and admitted former Communist, told authorities yesterday he has been threatened physically from the right and left since his exposure of party members.

It was learned that Thomas, who told the House Un-American Activities Committee Wednesday about a Red cell he headed in the local until 1949, complained he has been threatened by non-Communist members who felt they were "duped" by his leadership.

Earlier this week, Thomas complained he was threatened by local Communist sympathizers because of his revelations about Red undercover activities here.

The union's executive committee recently suspended Thomas as president of the local on charges of Communist affiliations. But he was reinsfated October 31 by a two-thirds vote of the membership.

Radio 'Hams' to Aid In Civilian Defense

By C. E. Butterfield

NEW YORK, (AP).—The Nation's 80,000 amateur radio station operators, many already experienced in emergency communications in floods and other instances, are getting set to aid in civilian defense.

The "hams" plan to do this through a supporting communications system for use in event of enemy attack, such as an atom bomb.

The amateurs are cooperating with the National Resources Board which has included their service in its defense communications layout. The amateurs would use two-way short-wave radio installations in automobiles or portable pack sets (walkie-talkie type), all self-powered.

RECENT HYPOTHETICAL atom bomb drop tests conducted in Seattle and Chicago indicated the extent to which amateur facilities were prepared to furnish emergency circuits. In Chicago 300 amateur mobile radio units were available. The Seattle trials also had a large amateur group.

Explaining how the system used in the tests came about, the American Radio Relay League, national association of the amateurs, gives this outline:

"The preparedness did not just happen. For many years under guidance of ARRL, amateurs have operated an emergency communications service, the ARRL emergency corps. In each of the league's regional areas, usually State-size, a section emergency coordinator has charge. Local emergency coordinators keep contact with Red Cross, Civil Defense and other municipal agencies.

"Each year in June the emergency corps participates in a field day, operating portable equipment under simulated disaster conditions for a 24-hour stretch. Annually in October, the league sponsors jointly with the Red Cross simulated emergency tests on a surprise basis.

"The emergency corps is always alert and ready to serve in emergencies and disasters, whether it be supplying communications for search parties looking for a lost child, or furnishing scores of mobile and portable radio stations as the only means of communication with the outside world in such incidents as the Texas city explosion."

WHEN THE LAST two world wars started, amateur stations were closed down to make their air space available for the heavy military use. However, six months after Pearl Harbor in World War II, a stop-gap civilian defense war emergency radio service was set up, organized and manned primarily by amateurs.

Now the planning is that in event of war, segments of the amateur channels would be retained for use by amateurs in suppliyng civil defense communication facilities.

THE JOYFUL HOUR, another Father Patrick Peyton Production, is being planned as a Christmas television feature. It will be made available to the major networks as well as independent stations.

The program, produced ahead of time in the Fairbanks Studios in Hollywood, will depict the Annunciation, the Visitation and the Nativity. Cast is to include Ruth Hussey as Mary and Nelson Leigh as Joseph.

Father Peyton, who orginated the weekly family theater on MBS radio, also has been the inspiration for such seasonal programs as "The Triumphant Hour," an Easter presentation. It was the first to be put on film for TV.

Little else but the scripts and the years have changed for Jean Hersholt's Dr. Christian dramas of CBS in the 13 years it has been on air. The series has been on the same network, at the same time, for the same sponsor, with the same leading lady, Rosemary DeCamp, and the same announcer Art Gilmore, all that time. This will be pointed up December 13 when the anniversary will be observed with the script, "Always Remember."

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Backstage With Serge Koussevitzky

Serge Koussevitzky and the Boston Symphony Orchestra drew quite a crowd to Constitution Hall Thursday night. Unfortunately, most of those in the audience had good seats, and couldn't see what went on just offstage.

At the conclusion of each number, when Koussevitzky strode from the stage, an attendant waited for him in the wings, holding a huge fur cape. This he draped over the maestro's shoulders for a few seconds; then off came the cape, and out strode Koussevitzky to take a bow.

Back to the wings again, and on with the cape; out to acknowledge the applause again, and off with the cape. It was quite a sight, visible to only a few in the audience, as a sort of compensating bonus for their side aisle seats.

GIVE-AWA S

"Part-Persian kittens." (Warfield 3272.)

"Well-adjusted, lively 7-year-old Eskimo spitz." (Lincoln 3-8388 after 6 p. m.)

"Pretty 7-month-old male kitten, prefers adult company." (Lawrence 6-7556.)

"Healthy, friendly 6-week-old kittens; also one 5-month-old tiger." (King 8-3517.)

"Six-month-old male pup wants home with fenced yard." (Hudson 5743.)

MISCELLANY

Do your Christmas shopping and mailing early and when you ask the harried postal clerk for a book of stamps, for goodness sake tell him what "size." One poor fellow yesterday looked like he was ready to chew nails . . . Sergt. Mike Hackett, who lives at 2517 Mozart pl. nw., when he's not busy with his Marine buddies in Korea, will have plenty of time to enjoy those fruit and rum cakes you sent his outfit. Mike was hit in the Red drive to the south, was removed to a Naval hospital in Japan, and is now in a rest camp, recuperating . . . Two more invalidated streetcar tokens for Children's Hospital, this time from Mrs. J. M. Montgomery, 6410 Ridge dr., Brookmont, Md. . . . If you stay home today, it's your own fault. For example, Roberta W. Hill of 6007 Pontiac st., Berwyn, Md., invites you to the bazaar that will be held from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. today at the Berwyn Heights Elementary School. Sponsors are the school PTA and the Berwyn Heights Volunteer Fire Department . . . And, speaking of the smoke-eaters, permit me to interrupt myself with a thought from Mrs. Edna C. Miller of 5434 Taylor st., Bladensburg, Md. Her hubby is a volunteer fire fighter and she's an auxiliary, and she points out that as stupid as false alarms are in ordinary places, they're downright infuriating in rural areas, where volunteers drop whatever they're doing to rush to the rescue . . . Getting back to our invitations for today, Mrs. Eleanor Arbogast (her mister is Bill Arbogast of the Associated Press) wants you to know that the Mother's Club of St. Mary's School, Alexandria, is also sponsoring a bazaar this afternoon. It'll be held at the Lyceum in the 300 block of Duke st., from 1 to 6 p. m. . . . Aridell Myrick of 1238 Fairmont st. nw., would rather see you at the bazaar being sponsored from 2 to 10 p. m. today by the Hospitality Circle and the Camelia Flower Circle of the Peoples Congregational Church. It'll be held at the Inspiration House, 1867 Kalorama rd. nw. . . . Rachel and Frances Y. Slanger Chapters of B'nai B'rith Young Women are holding an informal open dance at the Kennedy Warren Hotel tonight, and Pauline Roush of 1903 Kenyon st. nw., says I must be sure to be there to help judge the "Miss B'nai B'rith" beauty contest. For an ugly guy, I sure get my share of looking at pretty girls, don't I? . . . Max R. Shohet, Washington manager for Radio Reports, points out a curious fact about Bruce Eliot, topflight New York network announcer. Bruce's brother is Jack Rowzie of WINX, who resisted efforts to convince him that he ought to change his name. He says: "Rowzie was good enough when I was with the Metropolitan Police Department, so I figure it's good enough for radio" . . . Frances Noel Crane of the Arlington Community Chest and Council was at Chest headquarters when Richard Palmatier, the group's executive director, dropped by the other day, accompanied by his 5-year-old daughter, Trudy, and her 6-year-old neighbor, Joanie Lindenbaum. To keep the kids occupied, Frances gave them a handful of red feathers. That afternoon, the girls turned in 10 pennies to the Chest drive. They'd gone out and sold the red feathers from door to door at a penny each, to help the cause along . . . Is your pledge in yet?

Truman-Attlee Divided on China

By Drew Pearson

Those who sat in on the prolonged talks with Prime Minister Attlee and President Truman agreed that they set a new high-water mark for Anglo-American cooperation — something that had been needed for a long time.

Attlee

The two men talked as if they were fellow members of the same cabinet—though the Prime Minister, in his friendly way, did more talking than the President. Attlee even told Truman quite frankly that both he and French Premier Pleven were worried over his growing opposition in Congress and wondered whether any military agreements, made now, would be honored in the new Eighty-second Congress. President Truman later expressed some concern about this, and asked his staff to see what they could recommend to get the bipartisan foreign policy back on an even keel.

However, despite the healthy Anglo-American agreements to cooperate on economic matters and move for quick rearming of Europe, the two men remained far apart on policy toward Communist China. In fact, the only thing they agreed to regarding China was to disagree.

Firm Last-Stand in Korea

A joint policy on the intermediate problem in Korea was a lot easier. And here is how the Korean discussions progressed.

Prime Minister Attlee arrived with the feeling that the United Nations would be better off if we pulled out of Korea altogether. His views were confirmed when Gen. Omar Bradley, top chief of staff, gave an unvarnished account of the terrible casualties, and expressed doubt regarding the wisdom of trying to hold a beachhead.

The joint chiefs of staff, incidentally, have been unanimous behind Bradley; believe it might take as many as 50,000 casualties to maintain a beachhead.

This view was seconded by the British chief of staff, Field Marshal Sir William Slim, who also doubted the wisdom of remaining in Korea.

Acheson Held Firm

However, Secretary of State Acheson took the opposite view. Though branded an appeaser by Republicans, Acheson was anything but an appeaser in the talks with Attlee.

He argued that there were two ways of getting out of Korea—one to pull out, the other to get kicked out. To run out on a small country like Korea, he argued, would brand us as dishonorable, without courage, and a Nation not to be trusted as an ally in the future.

If, on the other hand, we went down fighting to the last ditch and with colors flying, Acheson argued, our position would be far better in the eyes of the world.

Therefore, the Secretary of State urged that we keep at least a beachhead in Korea, during which time we would do our best to improve our diplomatic bargaining position.

President Truman vigorously supported his Secretary of State, and Prime Minister Attlee, after listening to the arguments, changed his mind and agreed that Acheson was right.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff meanwhile estimate that with enough warships standing off shore and pounding the enemy around a beachhead, plus enough airplanes overhead, they can defend an Allied toe hold in Korea indefinitely.

Having agreed to this, the next big question was joint Anglo-American diplomatic policy toward China. This was the most difficult nut to crack of all.

In this case Acheson again proved to be anything but an appeaser. He favored a stiff straight-arm policy against the Chinese Communists, including a naval blockade and a boycott.

He proposed stationing the American and British fleets off the coast of China and preventing a single pound of merchandise or material from entering any Chinese port—until China was ready to revert to a peaceful status.

Acheson was also not averse to the idea of having Chiang Kai-shek's air force pound Chinese cities with bombing raids, and in brief putting our own U. N. iron curtain around China until she got over her belligerency.

Acheson also opposed any diplomatic negotiations with the Chinese delegates at the United Nations except regarding Korea. He said the State Department would flatly refuse to talk to the Chinese about either Formosa or admission to the U. N. or anything else until they corrected their belligerent position toward the U. N. in Korea.

Attlee's Position

The Prime Minister argued:

1. That a naval blockade of China would not work, that China, a big and generally self-sufficient country, could import needed materials from Russia, Burma, Indo-China.

2. That the United Nations would not OK a blockade of China.

3. That such tough tactics would alienate other Asiatic countries.

4. That such a blockade would drive China into the arms of Russia.

Attlee argued that if we continued normal relations with China, there was a chance for Titoism—a chance that China would come back to her traditional policy of friendship with England and the United States of America. But if we kept China at arm's length, he maintained there was no chance of undercutting Moscow's influence.

Faced with this impasse, Truman and Attlee decided to postpone any joint decision on Chinese policy, but play it by ear. They will wait and see what happens and cross each bridge as they come to it.

NOTE—The British got little information from their friends, the Indians, regarding the attitude of the Chinese delegation at Lake Success. After Sir Benegal Rau, head of the Indian delegation, lunched with the Chinese Communists, he reported fully to his government in New Delhi, but said almost nothing to the British. His inference was that the British would tell all to the Americans. However, he did give enough information to indicate that the Chinese Communists had been extremely tough and almost impossible to deal with.
